Diefenbaker Sharply Rapped In Munsinger Probe Report

MARTIN TELLS UN

All Nations Should Be Represented

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today said Canada wants to see all the people of the world represented in the United Nations—indicating a flexible Canadian government attitude on the question of admitting mainland China to the world body.

Martin told the UN General Assembly the capacity of the United Nations to act in the Viet Nam war remains doubtful "as long as certain parties involved in that conflict are not members of this organization and are not bound by the terms of the charter."

The world body wouldn't necessarily be able to settle the conflict if China and two Vietnamese states were members, but it "would have a better chance of doing so if those parties were sitting here today."

Martin, making Canada's first statement in general debate at the 1966 assembly session, said "there is a growing opinion in Canada that, if this organization (the UN) is to realize its potential capacities, all nations and especially those which, like continental China, represent a significant portion of the world's population, must be represented here."

"A solution to this problem of representation has eluded us for many years and, in spite of impelling reasons, I do not know whether it will be possible for us to resolve this question within the next few months. Universality, however, remains our objective."

The assembly has on its agenda this season a nine-country resolution calling for "restoration of the lawful rights of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations."

Non-Aligned Have Special Role

Martin said efforts to control and reduce armaments cannot hope to succeed unless all the principal world powers, including China, participate in the negotiations. He thought "the non-aligned countries have a special role to play in persuading the People's Republic of China to participate in such discussions."

The external affairs minister said Canada remains hopeful that the International Control Commission for Viet Nam — made up of Canada, India and Poland—can play a part in ending the war.

Noting that Canada has served on the commission since its inception in 1954 at the end of French colonial rule in Viet Nam and the other territories of Indochina, Martin said: "In that time we have witnessed at first hand the erosion of the ceasefire agreement of 1954. We have known—and we still experience—the frustrations of the observer who is powerless to prevent what is happening before his eyes."

The control commission was set up to watch over the observance of the ceasefire agreemnt and report infractions to the Soviet Union and Britain, co-chairmen of the Geneva conference at which the agreement was worked out.

Martin said that despite the deterioration of the Vietnamese situation into an intense, undeclared war, "we have attempted to develop our responsibilities into opportunities for constructive action."

Means of Facilitating Contacts

"It still seems to us that the commission can provide a means of facilitating contacts between the two sides. Nor have we excluded the possibility that the commission might help the parties to scale down hostilities as a means of eventual disengagement."

Martin noted that U.S. Ambassadoe Arthur Goldberg, speaking in the assembly Thursday, called on North Viet Nam to say whether it would take "corresponding" steps to cut down military action if the United States stopped bombing its territory and consented to a supervised and gradual withdrawal of troops.

"Against this background, it is all the more essential that channels for contacts between the two sides be developed and maintained to prepare the way for negotiations whenever they are possible. We also believe that such channels are important in circumstances where the risk of misunderstanding and miscalculation is ever present.

"In Canada's view, it is essential that the attention of the world community should not be diverted from the urgent necessity of a diplomatic solution."

Martin said an exclusively military solution of the conflict is impossible. Canada believed that "only a political settlement which takes into account the legitimate interests and aspirations of all concerned can restore peace and stability in that country."

He couldn't accept the view that the time isn't ripe for a settlement in Viet Nam. "The road to peace in Viet Nam will not be easy and it may not be quick. But a start on that road must be made."

On disarmament, Martin re-

GROMYKO IN UN

Soviet Rejects U.S. Peace Plan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union replied today to the latest U.S. Viet Nam peace proposals by demanding the immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from South Viet Nam as the only way to peace.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told the United Nations General Assembly in a policy declaration "there are still no signs testifying to the seriousness of the intention of Washington to seek a settlement of the Viet Nam war.

He dismissed the latest proposals of U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg as part of a "so-called peace offensive" and said each new peace move was followed by "a further escalation of aggressive actions."

Munsinger Report Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence's findings in the Munsinger inquiry:

The relationship between then associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny and Gerda Munsinger in 1959 — 61 constituted a "startling" security risk, although no actual breach of security was evident.

John Diefenbaker, then prime minister, did not properly handle the case when it was brought to his attention.

Mr. Sevigny did not tell the truth to Mr. Diefenbaker in December of 1960 when he claimed to have ended his association with Mrs. Munsinger months earlier, and should properly have resigned or been dismissed from the cabinet.

The relationship between George Hees, then transport and later trade minister, and Mrs. Munsinger was a casual one, not at all improper in character. But Mr. Hees should have displayed more discretion.

Davie Fulton, then justice minister, should have investigated more fully the security aspects but such action would have been improper without the instructions or approval of the prime minister.

Despite his denial, there could be no other conclusion than that Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger had for some time indulged in intimate sexual relations.

Prime Minister Pearson's action in asking the RCMP for any reports of impropriety involving MPs was a natural and proper one.

Justice Minister Cardin was justified in his contention that certain aspects of the Munsinger case were worse than the Profumo scandal.

Mr. Fulton's action in reporting promptly to Mr. Diefenbaker when he learned of the Munsinger affair was commendable, but his later direction to the RCMP to be kept informed generally was not sufficient.

It was "startling" that Mr. Diefenbaker did not inform Douglas Harkness, then defence minister, of the security risk that had been created by the Sevigny-Munsinger liaison.

It was regrettable that Mr. Diefenbaker did not see fit to testify at the inquiry.

Mrs. Munsinger was a "self-admitted espionage agent" who had carried out assignments of a minor character in Germany for the Russian intelligence service.

She also had a record as a prostitute, petty thief and smuggler and "could very easily betray those who trusted her."

DIEF ON REPORT:

'It's Political Assassination'

TORONTO (CP) — The Star quotes Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker as saying the Munsinger report was "exactly what I expected."

Mr. Diefenbaker was interviewed in Boston, where he and Mrs. Diefenbaker were on a one-day visit. He had not yet read the report of Mr. Justice W. F. Spence criticizing his handling of the Gerda Munsinger affair.

"When he revealed that 'handy document,' I knew what to expect," Mr. Diefenbaker is quoted as saying in reference to a digest of police information released by the commission earlier this year but not dealt with as evidence.

"I simply state no judge or commissioner has the right to examine the exercise of discretion of a prime minister. That hasn't been done since the days of the Star Chamber."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the whole furor over the Munsinger case was "a flagrant attempt . . . at political assassination" by Prime Minister Pearson.

He said he had made his view clear in the past that no security was involved in the affair and he saw no reason to alter it.

Tories See PM Error In Suicide Episode

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today that Prime Minister Pearson when external affairs minister did not put national security first in the 1956 Herbert Norman security case.

In a "preliminary statement" on the judicial report into the Munsinger affair, Mr. Diefenbaker said that the point is made in the report that a doubt as to loyalty must be resolved in favor of the state.

"This was not followed by the present prime minister in the Herbert Norman case," Mr. Diefenbaker added in the statement issued by his office here.

Norman was Canadian ambassador to Egypt when he committed suicide after a U.S. senate committee revived charges against him that he was a communist as a youth.

He quoted Mr. Pearson as saying:

"It has always been a principle and, I think, a correct principle of our security investigation that we would not deal publicly in connection with a security inquiry with the details of any allegations made, for the reason that the details of a man's private life should not be the subject of accusation and rebuttal in public."

Mr. Diefenbaker added: "That was the principle in 1957."

Burning Indictment, Says Socred Chief

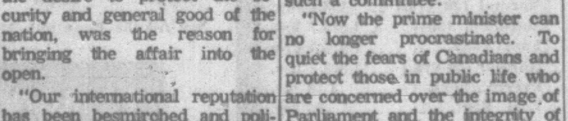
EDMONTON (CP)—Robert Thompson, national Social Credit Party leader, today described the Munsinger story, as it developed in the House of Commons and the Spence inquiry, as "a burning indictment of the present operations of politics in Canada."

He said he is convinced political reprisal, rather than the desire to protect the security and general good of the nation, was the reason for bringing the affair into the open.

"Our international reputation has been besmirched and politicians who thought they could gain from it have only lowered the image of public responsibility and the Canadian Parliament."

However he said the report pointed up the "urgent need" to establish a committee to investigate present Canadian security procedures, and to what extent subversive forces and organized crime are at work in the country. He said he had asked Prime Minister Pearson "at least 10 times" to set up such a committee.

"Now the prime minister can no longer procrastinate. To quiet the fears of Canadians and protect those in public life who are concerned over the image of Parliament and the integrity of the individual, an investigating committee should be set up immediately."



Mister Diefenbaker has dished it out fer a long time. Now, kin he take it?

Should Have Fired Sevigny, Says Judge

OTTAWA (CP)—The judicial report on the Gerda Munsinger sex-and-security affair today criticized Opposition Leader Diefenbaker on every count.

The report by Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada said that Mr. Diefenbaker, then prime minister, should have removed Pierre Sevigny from the associate defence portfolio in 1960 when he found out about Mr. Sevigny's relationship with Mrs. Munsinger.

It said Mr. Diefenbaker had resolved doubt in a case of national security in favor of Mr. Sevigny instead of in favor of the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker should have consulted the cabinet on the case and have informed Defence Minister Harkness and Trade Minister Hees.

"It is difficult to understand how anyone could be retained in any cabinet post when the slightest doubt remained as to his reliability from the point of view of national security, as all ministers must have access to much classified information, but to retain him as associate minister of national defence under the circumstances would appear to have been most imprudent," the report said.

"A more dangerous cabinet position than that of national defence, from the point of view of espionage by enemy agents or information-seeking by greedy racketeers, could hardly be imagined.

Moved to Another Post

"Even if the decision could be made to retain Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet, surely enough doubt lingered to justify, indeed demand, that he be moved to a cabinet post not so vital to the national security as that of associate minister of national defence."

The report says Mr. Sevigny was sexually intimate with Mrs. Munsinger and told Mr. Diefenbaker "much less than the whole truth" about the affair and that was a "startling danger of blackmail and improper pressure."

PARTIAL TEXT OF REPORT PAGE 15

His attempted concealment of the closeness of his intimacy throughout 1960 "alone should have driven him to tender his resignation."

A more thorough investigation on Mr. Diefenbaker's orders would have revealed a situation which would have entitled Mr. Diefenbaker to call for Mr. Sevigny's resignation.

The judge said Mr. Hees' association with Mrs. Munsinger "would appear to have been a casual one, not at all improper in character."

The inquiry arose when Justice Minister Cardin charged that Mr. Diefenbaker had mishandled the Munsinger case when it was brought to his attention.

Staking his Commons seat on his charges, he also alleged that "two or more" ministers in Mr. Diefenbaker's cabinet were involved with the 37-year-old German woman and that this constituted a security risk.

Security Risk Did Exist

Mr. Justice Spence agreed that a security risk had existed. He also said he is convinced that Conservative Justice Minister Davie Fulton—"despite his failure to remember"—knew that Mrs. Munsinger intended to return to Canada when she left for a trip to Europe in December, 1960.

Mrs. Munsinger lived in Canada from August, 1955, to February, 1961

The judge said "it is to be regretted" that Mr. Diefenbaker didn't testify at the inquiry.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker had made a "most surprising statement" in the Commons March 7 that there had been no danger to national security in the Munsinger case.

He said Justice Minister Cardin's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker had not sought legal advice and that there were circumstances which might have affected security were "justified."

The report said it would have been imprudent and "clearly bad administration" on Prime Minister Pearson's part not to have asked RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan for files indicating impropriety or scandal involving any member of Parliament.

The prime minister's request had been made at the height of the Commons debates on the Lucien Rivard narcotics affair involving allegations of influence peddling.

Pearson Wasn't Prying

Neither Mr. Pearson nor the commissioner could have understood the prime minister's request as an attempt to pry into MPs' lives, the judge said.

"To have contemplated any further investigation by the RCMP four full years after they had reported in December, 1960, would have been purposeless."

Mr. Justice Spence says the same conclusion applies to Guy Favreau, former Liberal justice minister, who was given a copy of the RCMP report Dec. 1, 1964.

Mr. Justice Spence agreed with Mr. Cardin that in some aspects the Munsinger case might well have been worse than the Profumo scandal in Britain in 1963.

In the Profumo case, Christine Keeler had had no contact whatever with any matter concerning espionage or national security and Lord Denning had been satisfied in his investigation that she did not try to obtain any information from British War Minister John Profumo.

"Mrs. Munsinger, on the other hand, according to the RCMP reports which would appear to be the sole source of information available to the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, was said to have acted

FULTON:

'One Man's Opinion'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Davie Fulton, justice minister in the cabinet of then prime minister Diefenbaker at the time of the Munsinger affair, today said the report of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence is "nothing more than one man's opinion six years after the event."

"I do not agree with him," said the Kamloops Progressive Conservative MP. "I have already given my views in my testimony and in the letter I wrote to the commissioner in June.

"Accordingly I have no further comment to make on the commissioner's opinion."

Mr. Fulton added that he did not "think the report accomplishes anything except to demonstrate the pointlessness of the whole inquiry into events of six years ago.

"It is much more important for us to get on with today's business for Canada and that is what I intend to do."

It's Foolish Says Sevigny

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Sevigny, central figure of the Munsinger "affair," said when reached by phone at his brokerage firm here today that his only comment for now on the report of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence is that is "foolish."

"I haven't read it yet—I've been too busy — but I know what's in it," he said.

"This whole business was foolish to begin with and it's as foolish today as it ever was.

"I am not a security risk and I never was a security risk, and beyond that I have no further comment to make for the time being."

No Comment From U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — British authorities today steered clear of comment on the report of a Canadian commission of inquiry into the Gerda Munsinger sex and security scandal.

They declined to express any view on the judgment as a matter of protocol which prevents them from commenting on internal affairs, let alone jurisdiction, of a friendly nation.

The verdict revived, however, recollections of Britain's own sex scandal which involved former defence minister John Profumo during the premiership of Harold Macmillan.

SANDOWN PARK

Analyst's Comments — Saturday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE — Whaang Leather will probably be the short price and thrives at Sandown. But we were impressed with the fractions Evidently turned in before running out of oxygen. They may not send Evidently on the pace—he can come from off it—but if they do it could be quite a race. Sunrise Gal came to life and adds to the early speed duel. If Joe Papp runs one of his good ones (he likes Sandown) look out! . . . EVIDENTLY, Whaang Leather, Joe Papp.

SECOND RACE — In a field noticeably bereft of early speed Lees Time should have a ball. That's her trouble. She has fine foot but she handles corners occasionally as if they were square. Same Affair's debut was good enough to earn a share and he drops seven. Tammy Dee is in good hands and should improve. Much was expected of Abundant but delivery has been slow. Our serious thinking centred on Fuel Baron. He seems to prefer a fast strip but he moves resolutely and meets easier here . . . FUEL BARON, Same Affair, Tammy Dee.

THIRD RACE—What can go with Yankee Mac? That seems to be the main issue. If he gets it all his own way early they may not catch him. Humahawk can shift gears but lacks a race over the course. Missile Jill and Mystic Flash are threats in this company. Wifflaw has been marathoning. Justice John is very fresh; that means a lot at this time of year. All Danger will appreciate the distance but needs a pace duel to aid his rally. . . . YANKEE MAC, All Danger, Justice John.

FOURTH RACE — With not too much to hinder him early, Pils Friday might hit the road fast and try to steal it. Wee Jock and Aleja could have something to say about that. Court Glamour, Pepperoni and Donmaid do their gamboling late and will need alert navigating from the old oak tree in. First Fashion has a look with these. In a scramble . . . DONMAID, Pils Friday, Court Glamour.

FIFTH RACE—If class counts, Sir Kit is the one to fear. But he doesn't seem to be with it lately. He has run well here in the past. Eastern Imp is no stranger to the winner's circle and the turns shouldn't be a problem. If this was the Sefton Park who ran here last year the others could forget it. Peaceful Nite and General John put on the runaway freight train bit and figure prominently. Belles Sheilah is dropping . . . SIR KIT, General John, Sefton Park.

SIXTH RACE — Except for minor incidentals this looks like the same field that met opening day. Who's Haydn picks up three pounds for winning but the cast hasn't changed much. Bouncy Belle and Jolly Pop are there to punch holes in the wind. And despite his post, Lord Highland, will no doubt have something to add to the frazzling fracas. He's quick and fresher than most of them but essentially the quick ones compromise each other's chances in here. This should set it up for Who's Haydn in the stretch. . . . WHO'S HAYDN, Jolly Pop, Lord Highland.

SEVENTH RACE — Few can pass the poles as hastily as Permano. If Phillips can give him a breather along the way he may not have real problems. Little Choo Choo was right there with the likes of Westbury Road and if he takes to the track is a threat. The girls, Princess Vega and Devonshire Cream, are sharp but unless it comes up soft they face a tall task. Keno's Boy should improve off his last. And if Gladys Ann ran to her Santa Anita races they could all stay in the barn . . . PERMANO, Little Choo Choo, Devonshire Cream.

EIGHTH RACE — Ky Master and Some Standard should take them most of the way. The former does not surrender easily. Fraser Canyon and Quarter Time will need hustling rides—they've been marathoning. June's Choice fits with these and Inner Guard has a look after his sprint try. . . . KY MASTER, June's Choice, Some Standard.

SUB RACE—There's no Swan Lady here to bother Bevy's Boy—if Shields can get him away well he could make it rough for Fair Duel and All Smoke. Hour Magic and Loodani can rub elbows with these and Corval is no slouch . . . BEVY'S BOY, Fair Duel.

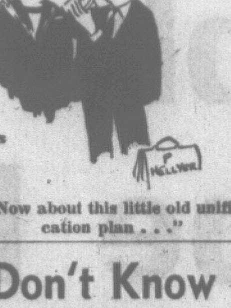
Ill-Fated Sub Towed Into Port

EMDEN, West Germany (AP) —The ill-fated submarine Hai was towed into port today and experts will try to determine the cause of her sinking in a North Sea gale 10 days ago.

Only one member of the 20-man crew, the cook, survived. Bodies of eight of the 19 victims have been recovered in the open sea. Most or all of the others are believed trapped in the water-filled hull, raised two days ago from the bottom of the sea.

FIRST CALL with Ben Wicks



"Now about this little old unification plan . . ."

'Don't Know Just Where We're Going'

MONTREAL (CP) — Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Thursday party members are wondering where, if anywhere, the party is going.

"We no longer know what the party's policy is on the problem of Confederation, foreign affairs, defence, welfare," Mr. Camp said in an interview.

"The policy of a party is something other than a series of arbitrary judgments on the decisions of others."

The national president has raised a storm since making the suggestion earlier this week that appraisal of present party leadership is an urgent matter.

WOULDN'T DISCUSS CALL

Interviewed in Toronto Thursday night, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker declined to discuss a call by Mr. Camp for a convention decision on whether Mr. Diefenbaker should stay in office.

Mr. Camp in his interview said he has no ambitions for the party leadership, but there are indications that "there will be some very good candidates in the ranks and that satisfies me. . . . Unfortunately, we don't have in the party the climate necesary for the candidates to assert themselves openly."

The national president said he has ambitions only concerning the party's organization and a seat for himself in the Commons.

AFTER TORONTO PARLEY

Dief Remains Mum on Plans

By DAVID MILLER

TORONTO (CP) — Conservative Leader Diefenbaker emerged smiling and chipper Thursday night from a meeting with high-ranking party supporters, but remained silent on the question of his leadership.

The two-hour meeting with the Toronto Progressive Conservative Businessmen's Club was closed to the press, but informants said later Mr. Diefenbaker was asked if he planned to put his leadership on the line at the next party convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker was reported to have avoided the question, saying it was one that could cause dissension in the party ranks.

Dalton Camp, national party president, said in Toronto Tuesday that Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership should be confirmed—or otherwise—at the party's annual meeting in Ottawa in November.

Mr. Diefenbaker brushed off reporters' questions as he entered the meeting. Asked if he planned to resign, he said: "No comment. The street is no place for discussion."

GIVEN OVATION

He spoke for an hour to about 300 supporters who gave him several standing ovations. After his speech he answered questions which an aide described as "pointed and friendly."

In his speech, one informant said, Mr. Diefenbaker reviewed his years in and out of office and said he was confident as ever about the future. If an election was called tomorrow, he said, he would win.

Questions ranged from unification of the armed forces to Confederation. "The only leadership question discussed was that of Prime Minister Pearson's administration," an aide said.

When he left the meeting, Mr. Diefenbaker was asked on the street how secure he felt as leader of the party.

"What you should be thinking about is opportunity, rather than security," he replied.

Martin Refuses Probe

Health Minister Eric Martin said Thursday the provincial government will not act on a petition for a judicial inquiry into the affairs of Cariboo Memorial Hospital at Williams Lake.

Mr. Martin said the dispute between doctors and the administration is already under investigation. The request for a judicial probe will be held in abeyance, he said.

More than 300 citizens from the Interior community were reported to have signed a petition asking for the probe following suspension of hospital privileges to two doctors.

He said a committee representing the B.C. Medical Association, the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the B.C. Hospitals Association and the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service is going to Williams Lake today.

Maid Cleaned Room First

OTTAWA (CP) — Police searched a hotel room here Thursday night seeking clues to the bombing of the Cuban Embassy building but found it had been cleaned out by the maid.

The room in the Alexandria Hotel was registered to a man who signed is as Orlando Atienza of Miami. He stayed at the hotel Wednesday night after arriving without luggage and paying in advance.

Police checked the hotel after finding a rented car that apparently was used to transport the two anti-tank missiles used in the bomb attack. The car also was rented to a man who gave the name Orlando Atienza.

Only one of the 3.5-inch anti-tank rockets, of a type not used by Canadian forces, went off in the attack on the embassy Thursday morning. No one was injured.

Party Officials Killed by Guards

MOSCOW (AP)—Chinese Red Guards are beating and murdering Communist party officials, Pravda reported from Peking today.

A dispatch in the Soviet Communist party newspaper described many brutal acts by the young militants unleashed to root out evidences of foreign influence and opposition to the teaching of Mao Tse-tung.

The Red Guards now are under daily attack in Soviet newspapers.

Pravda gave no details of the murders. The dispatch said the leaders of the Red Guards are trying to dissociate themselves with the extremist actions.

Another dispatch from Peking distributed by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said a group of Chinese workers from Fukien province had appealed to Mao Tse-tung for help against the "white terror" of the Red Guards.

The report said a Red Guard squad arrived in the province last month, seized a group of party workers and held them without food, occupied the radio station and post office in the workers' town, and denounced the party's provincial first secretary.

One soldier was killed when he accidentally set off the first mine. As other men hurried to the aid of troops wounded in that explosion, they tripped three more mines, killing six more men.

Martin Likes U.S. Proposal

Halt Bombing Idea Brings Mixed Reaction From Delegates

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk met for private talks on Viet Nam and other world issues Thursday night. The talks followed a major U.S. policy speech in the UN General Assembly that proposed to end the bombing of North Viet Nam if Hanoi agrees to take "corresponding" steps.

Both Gromyko and Rusk declined afterwards to comment on the substance of the first discussions they have had in a year—since the 1965 session of the General Assembly. They meet again Saturday night.

Mixed reactions here have followed the speech Thursday by Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, in which the U.S. also proposed that it and North Viet Nam agree to a phased military withdrawal from South Viet Nam under some kind of international supervision.

Some diplomats seemed to see the U.S. position on Viet Nam as more flexible, but others saw Goldberg's speech as a restatement of an essentially unchanged position and were skeptical about it leading to anything new.

Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, told reporters Goldberg's speech was "one of the most constructive I've heard in a long time."

Hopes U.S. Will Be Patient

He hoped that careful replies would be made to the questions posed by Goldberg and that "the U.S. government will likewise be patient in the time that will be taken to get responses to these questions."

Martin indicated later he found even more room for encouragement in what Goldberg had to say about the relationship of mainland China to the United Nations.

Goldberg told the 118-member General Assembly the United States isn't trying to isolate and injure China. "On the contrary, we have sought to limit the areas of hostility and to pave the way for the restoration of our historically friendly relations with the great people of China."

But Goldberg said the United States will oppose any attempt to seat representatives of the Peking regime at the UN in place of the Nationalist Chinese delegates from Formosa. Mainland China was demanding terms of admission that would "transform and pervert" the United Nations from the purposes expressed in its charter.

Some diplomats saw it as significant Goldberg didn't say the United States would oppose the seating of both mainland China and the Nationalist Chinese regime. They also saw significance in the fact that a U.S. ambassador referred to Nationalist China as "the Republic of China on Taiwan (Formosa)" rather than simply as "the Republic of China."

SEES ADVANCE

"I think this is the most advanced statement that the United States government has made on China's admission to the United Nations," Martin said.

"I would like to think that this meant we might make some progress on this question at this session. I think it would be tragic if we do not, and I rather detect in Mr. Goldberg's words the strong conviction that the time had come when we must do something about the principle of university in this organization."

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko called Goldberg's speech "a set of declarations and words with familiar old sounds and tunes."

Although Canada has already taken such initiatives as sending veteran diplomat Chester Ronning to Hanoi on a peace mission, and trying to persuade Poland and India, its fellow members of the International Control Commission for Viet Nam, to join in an effort to stop the shooting and start peace talks, Canadian diplomats declined to speculate on what new moves might be in prospect.

One Canadian diplomatic source said "the Ronning channel (to Hanoi) is still open and as far as I know, it's the only channel that's open." But when asked where Ronning is or will be in the near future, he would only say: "Mr. Ronning is in Alberta."

While Goldberg said the United States was ready to take the first step by halting air attacks on North Viet Nam, provided it got an "assurance" from Hanoi that it would reduce its military activities in the south, he was more cautious about who should be first to set a date for troop withdrawals.

He denied that the United States is engaged in Viet Nam in "a holy war against communism," an indirect reply to Secretary - General U Thant's statement last Sunday that it is dangerous to treat the Viet Nam war as an ideological crusade.

Asked for comment on Goldberg's speech, a spokesman for Thant said the secretary-general considers it an important document and "wishes to study it closely."

BOBBY KENNEDY LOOKS GOOD IN DEMOCRATIC POLL

LBJ's Personality His Worst Asset; Stock Drops

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — As of today, Lyndon B. Johnson has been president as long as John F. Kennedy held the office—1,037 days. They had a few things in common and some great differences.

At the time of his assassination, Nov. 22, 1963, Kennedy's popularity in the public opinion polls was dropping, although that may seem strange in view of the adulation given him now. Johnson's popularity now also is dropping, sharply.

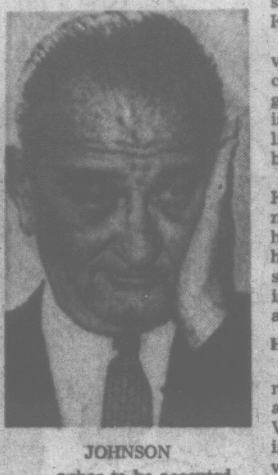
Two recent polls showed:

Among Democrats, Kennedy's brother Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York, is the choice for president over Johnson in 1968; voters now, by only 51 to 49 per cent, prefer Johnson over Michigan's Republican Governor Romney for president in 1968.

President Kennedy's popularity dwindled in 1963, the pollsters said, because he was pushing civil rights too hard. Johnson pushed them harder and more successfully, getting two bills through Congress. He was blocked on a third this week.

HURT AT POLLS

His performance in this field hurt him in the polls but there were other complaints: His handling of various problems, like the war in Viet Nam, the anti-poverty program, the economy, and so on.



JOHNSON
. . . aches to be accepted

But Johnson's personality probably is a major factor. Kennedy's personality was perhaps his greatest asset. His speeches, with life and light could be understood by everyone, but they had grace and style, too. Not Johnson's.

They are heavy - footed and carpeted with banalities. Kennedy, realizing his success in public appearances, used television to its maximum. Johnson seems to realize he can't match Kennedy in this field.

He makes scant use of television. Instead, he likes to meet crowds in the flesh, and gets a good response. But even here he is awkward. On his recent political trips he resorted to a bullhorn.

In his public appearances Kennedy always acted like a man who assumed he was heartily accepted. Johnson—by his intonations, facial expressions, and the almost sad look in his eyes—acts like a man who aches to be accepted.

HAS SMOOTHER ROAD

Johnson has had a smoother road than Kennedy in foreign affairs except for the war in Viet Nam, although American involvement there was under way with Kennedy. The latter had a great disaster, a great crisis and a great success.

The disaster—the Cuban invasion of 1961; the crisis—the triumphant missile showdown in Cuba with Russia in 1962; the great success—the 1963 agreement with Russia to ban nuclear testing above ground.

Johnson has had no ups or downs like that. His most spectacular foreign action outside Viet Nam, was sending U.S. troops into the Dominican Republic to prevent what he said he feared was a Communist takeover.

Johnson was shrilly criticized but the action had a good ending: The Dominicans finally got themselves a democratic government. Any praise Johnson got for this never matched the criticism.

That the world has been relatively quiet in Johnson's time—during which communism suffered setbacks around the world—may have been just his luck or may have been due in part to Johnson manipulations not yet revealed.

On the Record

IN HIS FORMAL REITERATION of what has been considered for some time as United States policy on Viet Nam, U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg apparently attempted a double play. His statement to the United Nations yesterday may be considered as an important peace overture to North Viet Nam, and also as a clear effort to meet one of the complaints which Secretary-General U Thant voiced in his rejection of another term as the United Nations' chief official.

U Thant had included the United States in his plainspoken indictment of countries which were not giving practical effect to ideals of global peace. He called for three steps as a means of eradicating the Viet Nam conflict. One was the cessation of bombing in North Viet Nam. Another was a phased withdrawal of all outside troops from South Viet Nam. And the third was the inclusion of all parties in peace talks — this would include Viet Cong spokesmen.

Mr. Goldberg's statement of the present United States position made specific reference to each of these requests, and he stressed his country's wish to carry them out if the corresponding action was forthcoming from North Viet Nam.

As a gesture of agreement and encouragement for U Thant the American statement should carry some weight. The prospects of favorable reaction from North Viet Nam are thought to be less likely, for the Northern government has so far refused to put the conflict on a basis of negotiation without certain prerequisites. For one thing, the North insists that bombing of its territory must halt because it is illegal, that it cannot be considered as a bargaining point in mutual withdrawals. And any proposals for peace talks must be assessed against the current background of vast increases in the military forces of both sides and still greater escalation in the planning stage.

Another consideration, of course, is the question of North Viet Nam's political independence. There is recurrent insistence in some quarters that Hanoi's policies are dominated by Peking, and that since Red China is opposed to peace in Southeast Asia—particularly when the war does not constitute any appreciable drain on Red Chinese resources but does furnish considerable propaganda material—there is little likelihood that any American peace overture can win acceptance.

Apart from this rather unassessable factor, the present situation has elements conducive to a negotiated peace. The United States campaign, while very costly, has demonstrated sufficient strength to enable Washington to claim that it was the war effort that had brought about the desired result. Hanoi, on the other hand, could rightly claim that it had not been defeated and that there was no defeat yet in sight. The antagonists could meet as equals in the military sense, and thus avoid loss of face. The eventual goal of a free vote on the question of unifying North and South Viet Nam—the avowed American objective—could then be negotiated and the Communists would seem to have an opportunity to gain much and lose little.

In any case, the United States offer is now plainly on the UN record and the next move should come from Hanoi — if it still has that power.

Who Spends the Money?

A NUMBER OF BANKERS, industrialists and economists have raised the point, following Finance Minister Sharp's recent fight-inflation speech, that the place where spending should be cut is in government. If governments don't hold the line, they have asked, how can they expect cutbacks in the private area of the economy to be effective.

This makes sense, of course, except that a new study by the National Industrial Conference Board shows that it may not be as easy as it sounds. For one thing since 1955 the ratio of spending between the three levels of government—federal, provincial and municipal — has changed markedly. And it is the municipal governments—least amenable of the three levels to anti-inflation measures—which have increasingly been taking the lion's share of the Canadian tax dollar.

The study shows that in 1955 government spending was carried out 30 per cent by municipalities, 17.6 per cent by provinces and 52.4 per cent by Ottawa. Ten years later, the most recent figures available show this division: 42.7 per cent municipal, 23.3 per cent provincial and 34 per cent federal. In this period municipal spending has risen from less than a third of total government payments to nearly half.

Where is all the extra money going? The report says that wages and salaries account for a large part of the increase. Back in 1955 when municipalities were spending about $1.43 billions, their wage and salary bills totalled $642 millions. By 1965, with total municipal expenditures up to $4.2 billions, the sum of $1.9 billions went to employees — an increase of more than $1.25 billions over 10 years, and nearly half of the increase in the governmental wage bill at all levels for the period.

In the over-all picture, since 1955 there has been a decline in the proportion of governmental spending on goods and services—from non-governmental sources—from 56.7 per cent to 51.2 per cent. This leaves less room for cutting expenses in an inflationary period, unless it is accepted that government employment should be reduced. It also emphasizes, the NICB states, the need for governments to ensure that they are getting full value for wage and salary payments, "that staffing and remuneration . . . be balanced by controls on effective performance under conditions where the discipline of the market place is missing."

This is pertinent advice considering that government employment of all types in 1965 accounted for 15.7 per cent of total Canadian labor income, compared with only 12.7 per cent in 1955 and less than 11 per cent on the average from 1945 to 1952.

Water Pressure Temporarily Eased

THE UNITED STATES HOUSE of Representatives has vetoed a resolution to authorize the spending of $1,200,000 for an 11-day international conference on water for peace in Washington next May. Presumably that means the end of the whole idea for the time being.

Canada officially showed something less than enthusiasm for the meeting. Questions in Parliament drew ministerial replies that Canada could not accept or reject the proposal until the formal invitation was received. In any case, they said, Canada would be severely pressed to prepare for such a conference by next spring.

This obviated the necessity of admitting that Canada has at this time no desire to talk with the Americans about their pleas to share Canadian water on a continental basis. Mr. Arthur Laing has been forthright enough on the issue with his statement that "our water is not negotiable," but others have brought in qualifications on time and later studies of Canadian needs.

If the embarrassment of attending the Washington gathering seems to have been removed, Canada cannot forget water. We have not, at this time a national policy on fresh water, though we are reportedly evolving one. In view of the fact that more overtures may be expected from Washington and private American interests in an effort to establish the principle of "continental" supplies of water — meaning American needs and Canadian resources — we should lose no time in forming a strong policy of conservation of this priceless asset which will ensure that Canada's requirements will have top priority in both the near and distant future.

Holding a Critical Viet Nam Hill

Alsop

WHERE the helicopter circled downwards, four valleys in the mountains converge, making a wide bowl-like space. From the bowl's floor, a jagged tooth of rock thrusts upwards for hundreds of feet. The Marines in the observation post perched on the narrow summit of this rocky fang waved to the chopper when it hovered close to get a better look at them.

"That's the Rock Pile," said the general. "It's the key terrain feature in this whole area. As long as we hold it, we command all the approaches through these mountains. And we're going to go on holding it."

Just below the Rock Pile lay the command post of the second battalion of the Fourth Marine Regiment, which the general had come to visit. W. B. Kyle, commander of the Third Marine Division, is a leathery, sardonic man, not much given to compliment in the ordinary way. But he had mainly come to pay his compliments to two young company commanders.

Ground Held

For days, Bravo and Delta companies, led by Cap. Ron Frederickson of South Sioux City, Neb., and Lt. Daniel McMahon of Oceanside, Long Island, had been surrounded in the mountain-jungle by a heavily-reinforced North Vietnamese battalion. Night and day, the battle had gone on, and sometimes the fighting had been almost hand to hand. In Lt. McMahon's company alone, 13 had fallen, and more than half were wounded. Yet the companies kept formation, held their ground and continued to mow down their attackers, until the last.

It was curious to see the officers whose leadership had inspired such a memorable feat of arms. Lt. McMahon already wears two silver stars for gallantry in the field, but he might well be mistaken for a particularly wiry high school senior. Capt. Frederickson is a bit older, but is otherwise cut from much the same piece of cloth. Both appeared a bit embarrassed by the compliments tendered to them.

"The only thing is, General," said McMahon, "we didn't get to the top of the ridge line."

"We'll get there soon enough," said General Kyle.

"In fact, we're on our way right now. And I reckon that North Vietnamese outfit you tangled with won't have much stomach left for the next round of fighting."

Spirit of Marines

The foregoing little scene deserves to be recorded because it helps to convey the spirit the Marines have shown in the face of a grave challenge. The story begins last spring, with the first indications that a North Vietnamese division, the 324 B, was nakedly invading South Viet Nam, moving straight across the falsely described demilitarized zone.

The invasion, supported by a rear area sanctuary, was indeed a challenge. To make matters worse, the advance parties of the 324 B division were attempting to organize a base area in the most difficult terrain any soldier has ever seen—the jagged, jungle-clad mountains converging on the Rock Pile. And it was quite clear that if such a base area were permitted to be organized, the North Vietnamese would sweep down out of the mountains and try to conquer this whole province of Quang Tri.

There was great initial apprehension in Saigon, where it was recalled that the Marine specialty had always been beach-storming rather than mountain climbing.

But when the Marines' overall commander, General Lewis Walt, established a forward base near this little town and sent his men into the mountains, they proved to have the most useful combined qualities of jungle rats and mountain goats. The fighting, which has cost the enemy very dearly, is now in its third phase.

In Phase One in July, the six forward battalions of the 324 B division were so badly damaged that they retired beyond the demilitarized zone. In Phase Two, in August, the remaining three battalions got the same treatment. In Phase Three, now in progress, more North Vietnamese troops, just possibly from another division, have again moved into the same mountain area, and the rice plain has also been invaded by units of the North Vietnamese 341st division.

Invasion on the scale of two divisions, aided by a near area sanctuary, looks pretty formidable in a war like this. But the whole rice plain to the east of here is within comfortable range of our cruel naval guns, which will make any serious enemy effort at that end of the line a hideously costly business. And at the mountain end of the line, any successful forward movement must depend on prior success in establishing a solid advanced base; and this is precisely what Lt. McMahon, Capt. Frederickson and a great many other Marines are grimly determined to prevent.

Bad Weather Clue

The bad weather is coming soon in these northern provinces, when our airplanes and even our helicopters will be handicapped. Yet the results so far have made Gen. Walt and Gen. Kyle rather sternly confident they can handle anything the enemy sends against them. They are results that should make all Americans both deeply proud and everlastingly grateful. And if the two generals' confidence is justified, Hanoi's last wild gamble to gain a show-victory will have ended in yet another sanguinary failure.

Secret Ballot Could Depose Dief

THE show-down has come for Mr. Diefenbaker—precipitated this week by Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative Association, who will seek a second term as president at the party's convention here in November.

If Mr. Camp wins he has promised there will be a leadership convention in the Conservative party in 1967. The voting in such a convention would be by secret ballot.

Mr. Diefenbaker has twice before successfully taken up the challenge to his leadership from his critics within the Tory party. He won a vote of confidence at the national convention in 1964. It was an overwhelming vote — despite all the mutterings of dissatisfaction with Mr. Diefenbaker behind the scenes. The vote at that convention was by a show of hands on the floor.

Narrowly, the leader again won endorsation at the Conservative national executive meeting early in 1965. Again there were rumblings of discontent within the party, but the "Chief" led his party into the general election in November, 1965 and by a super-human effort prevented Prime Minister L. B. Pearson from winning the majority that the Liberal leader called for throughout the campaign.

Mr. Diefenbaker, while aware there were several of his old antagonists still plotting against him, had assumed that his victory at the polls would be sufficient to ensure him the leadership until he was prepared to step down. He was cockily confident last week. At his birthday party he told newsmen he was all set to fight yet another election.

That did it. The anti-Diefenbaker group came out into the open with Mr. Camp taking the lead. His Toronto speech did not mention names but he said the time had come for both major party leaders to consider retirement.

In that speech Tuesday Mr. Camp said Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership had to be "reconfirmed or otherwise." He stressed that the "leadership job is not a lifetime contract."

Talking to Organizers

Mr. Camp told newsmen he has no intention of stepping down — as Mr. Gordon Churchill suggested he should. Instead he is embarking on a trans-Canada tour to meet local party organizers and get their views on the leadership issue. He said he would seek re-election at the November party convention. If he was again elected president he would take it as an endorsement of his stand that there must be a leadership convention in 1967.

Mr. Camp is already campaigning. He wants the presidency for another term. Mr. Diefenbaker is aware that if Mr. Camp wins the presidency his days as national leader are numbered.

Mr. Diefenbaker's opponents are confident that if a national leadership convention was held, and the voting was by secret ballot, the leader would lose. But his supporters are equally convinced the "Chief" would win.

The test will come when Mr. Camp stands for re-election.

Will the voting for a new president be by secret ballot? If it is Mr. Camp may stand a good chance of winning re-election. But if it is not he could go down to defeat.

No Verdict on Vote Form

The national office of the party here could not say today which procedure would be followed in the voting for the presidency.

Marcel Bureau, assistant to the party's national organizer at the party's national headquarers here said that "normally" the voting for the president was by secret ballot. However, he said it was up to the floor to decide that procedure as it was not spelled out in the constitution. He assumed the question would be put to the delegates at the annual general meeting, Nov. 13 to 16 and they would decide the procedure.

On that decision could rest the future of Mr. Diefenbaker.

"LET'S GO INSIDE, WE MIGHT AS WELL SMELL IT, TOO!"

Looking Back

From the Times of Sept. 23, 1906:

With the customary dance in the exhibition hall last evening the 39th annual Saanich fair, a rather disappointing edition this year, came to a close. While there was a splendid display of horses, the showing of grain was sadly lacking. There was a fair group of cattle and sheep but the number of pigs was very limited. Farmers questioned at the fair agreed that the old fair was not up to its usual mark, but explained that with the dry season they hadn't had time to ready themselves and their entries as they have in other years.

Voices Of Quebec

Montreal Le Devoir

Eight young men soon will have to answer for the death in LaGrenade shoe factory of an employee killed by a home-made bomb last May 5.

As far as we are concerned, recourse to physical violence and to bombs to overthrow an established order can only be justified when the established order is equivalent to a form of oppression, when all other means of escaping it have been explored or have been recognized as being ineffective, and when a large proportion of the population is solidly behind the uprising.

In the case we are considering, we do not believe that any of the three conditions exist.

First of all what sort of oppression are we suffering as a nation? To touch on but a few sectors, some say that we in Quebec are unable to obtain prominent positions in large industries. That is true. But perhaps to a lesser degree, it is also true of our English-language compatriots, not only in Quebec, but in the country as a whole. This is a question of capital investment, which independence will not automatically solve.

Of what sort of tribulations are we the victims? We are poor, poorer than the citizens of other provinces where English-speaking people are in the majority. This can be explained in part by unjust treatment received from the central government. However, this poverty would be considered riches in many other countries . . .

We hasten to admit, however, that people can think differently. The proof can be found in the fact that we have separatists among us.

If they were prevented from spreading their doctrine or from enlisting recruits, recourse to force might be justified. But the fact is that they are not hindered. Proof of this can be found in the fact that two separatist parties which contested the last general provincial election were in no way molested because they preached a radical change in our system of government . . .

The fact is that the present case does not involve a war, it involves murders aimed solely at drawing attention of the remainder of the country and of the world to our problem. It is possible to warn the world in this way, but to warn it as much against us as against those we wish to "liberate."

Montreal La Presse

Did members of the itinerant commission of the estates-general ever doubt that their first regional meeting in Montreal would take on all the appearances of a convention of le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale—a separatist orgnization?

The estates-general, designed to bring together representatives of the main groups in the French-Canadian community, established the itinerant commission to tour the province and to try to find out what form of government French Canada wants for the future.

The organizers . . . expected 1,000 to 1,200 delegated representing all shades of opinion, ranging from the status quo to independence.

As a result of the unexplained absence of some 700 delegates, spokesmen for independence found themselves with a strong majority. They did not hesitate to make their weight felt in the discussions.

Before the election last June 5, it was possible to over-estimate the number of voters favoring political independence for Quebec. Now we know much more what to expect; the number is not greater than 10 per cent of the voting population. The inherent danger in meetings such as that in Montreal is to distort the image of public opinion in conferring—even unintentionally—on a minority the appearance and voice of the majority.

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouveliste

A new disagreement has arisen between Mr. Sharp and his predecessor. The government has undertaken a fight against inflation and among the decisions adopted was one calling for postponement of the important medical insurance program.

In the party, Mr. Gordon directs the group opposed to postponement . . . According to Mr. Gordon, the medical insurance program would not exert any inflationary pressure.

The discontent is strong enough within the party to have forced Mr. Pearson to agree to a caucus where he will attempt to justify the anti-inflation program of his finance minister, Sept. 17.

To the Editor

Protesting C. J. Carr

Neither President Johnson nor columnist Joseph Alsop needs any defence by me. However, as an American correspondent with years of service in the Far East, Europe and at home, I am obliged by professional and personal standards of taste and integrity to protest C. J. Carr's letter "Unutterable Rubbish" in your issue of September 19.

Mr. Alsop, it should be noted, is reporting from Saigon. This is the fifth or sixth time he has gone there to cover the war. He does not do his reporting from a Saigon bar but from the jungle where the fighting is, taking the same chances the men in the armed forces take in the course of their duty.

As for C. J. Carr's attack upon President Johnson and my country, let me try to enlighten him: The United States is in Viet Nam in support of the Republic of Viet Nam and the Vietnamese National Army, under the terms of a pact that has had the support of the four past U.S. Presidents. Behind the lines, the Americans are working closely with the government to unify the people and build a nation. C. J. Carr has probably forgotten, if he ever knew, that it was the American Marshall Plan, paid for by the ordinary American's tax dollars, supplemented by our technical knowledge and skill, that rebuilt a devastated Europe after World War II. We shall do the same in Viet Nam.

In travelling around your beautiful province, I have found the people as warm and friendly and hospitable as the land is magnificent. C. J. Carr's intemperate emotionalism leads me to suggest he get out in the British Columbia forest wilderness where I have been and come to terms with his soul. He is the only sour note I have heard in the symphony of beauty which makes B.C. a land of enchantment. — Irene Corbally Kuhn, 45 Christopher St., New York, N.Y., 10014, USA.

Special and Fearful Kind of Arrogance In Viet Nam War

By HENRY STEELE COMMAGER

(Conclusion of an article in Saturday Review titled "Can We Control the War in Viet Nam", a study of "limited conflicts".)

Now, once again, we are involved in a war that began, quite fortuitously, as a minor action and developed into a major one.

Because public relations, propaganda, and perhaps pride, are more insistent than ever before, we are assured more persuasively than ever before, that everything is under control. No need to fear a further enlargement of the war; no need to fear war with China; no need to fear an atomic conflict.

But the one thing that is inescapably clear is that nothing is really under control. Month after month, year after year, we have been misled and deceived.

We have been told that the conflict in Viet Nam was not a real war, that a show of force would bring it to an end; that the Viet Cong were being decimated, and were deserting by the thousands; that a few days' bombing would bring North Viet Nam to its knees; that we had at last set up a stable government; that the Souh Vietnamese army was a real fighting force; that the long-awaited social and land reforms were finally being filled; that we had staunch allies who would surely come to our aid.

But why go on? The record of no other war in our history is so littered with the bric-a-brac of miscalculations, misguided policies, and mistaken predictions.

Yet those responsible for this matchless record of confusion, self-deception, and error still have the temerity to assure us that everything is under control — their control.

Chessboard

We are still asked to believe that the President and his advisors make all the decisions and direct all the actions, that they can calculate with certainty just how far the war will go and how far it will not go; that they can move the pieces on the chessboard of Asia with such deftness and skill that we need never fear that anything will go awry.

Confidence in our ability to control the war in which we are now so hopelessly entangled is part of that larger intellectual and moral vanity which is one of the most frightening features of the American character today.

It is of a piece with those games theories which so fascinate the servants of the Rand Corporation, of a piece with Henry Kissinger's careful calculations of the tolerable limit of losses in a nuclear war — is it 50 per cent or 70? — of a piece with Herman Kahn's theory of controlled escalation of atomic warfare, all as neat and impersonal as a computer.

First Make Vain

Those whom the gods would destroy they first make vain. To suppose that we are a special people, that we can not only foresee but control the future, that we can bestride the swift currents of history, that the choice of life and deah for nations and even for Mankind has been delivered into our hands — this is a special and fearful kind of arrogance and pride.

Nothing in our experience promises us that we can subdue the arrogance or conquer the pride.

Famous Last Words

Fremont Older
(1856-1935)

"Death is just something that happens," this California "fighting editor" used to say. On his last day, he drove his wife to a camellia show in Sacramento but stayed in the car to write a column on Montaigne. His last sentence was: "He refused to be depressed by death, which is the inevitable end of us all." Shortly after, he died at the wheel, of a heart attack.

A South Vietnamese Ranger forces a suspect's head into a mudhole in search of information. The Rangers had landed in the Mekong Delta area shortly before dawn in search of Viet Cong units. Johnson No Separatist; At Least Not Quite Yet

By STAN McDOWELL
(Times Quebec Correspondent)

QUEBEC CITY — Since he arrived back from the federal-provincial tax conference in Ottawa, Premier Daniel Johnson hasn't missed a chance to say that he is still a long way from committed to separatism.

On the way into a cabinet meeting this week, Mr. Johnson said that the equality he demands for the "French-Canadian Nation" does not mean the independence of Quebec.

"Equality for the French-Canadian nation, he said, "that could be done at the national," he corrected himself, "the Canadian level."

He had already said that his demand for 100 per cent of direct taxes was one thing, equality for the nation was another, and independence still another.

It remains that Mr. Johnson has, again and again, insisted on establishing direct links among these three things.

His demand for 100 per cent of direct taxes was made in the name of Quebec's role as the heartland of a nation.

He insisted that the tax demands be placed in the perspective of his constitutional goal: strict equality for the two nations.

And the alternative to equality, he maintains, is independence.

●

Mr. Johnson has said repeatedly that he has never refected the separatist course. It would be foolish, he argues, to throw away a trump card before the hand is played.

PIERRE BOURGAULT
. . . gives a warning

The positions Mr. Johnson has taken, added up, do not make him a separatist, although they do not make him a resolute anti-separatist either.

A leading member of the Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale put the difference between Mr. Johnson and himself this way:

"To us independence is a goal; to him its a threat."

The RIN view is that former Premier Jean Lesage, and now Mr. Johnson, have "blackmailed" English Canada with the threat that Quebec will separate if it does not get what it wants.

Mr. Johnson has been a militant nationalist all his life. There is nothing in the record of his attitudes on the constitution to indicate that he would back away from separatism in the long run if his demands for Quebec were rebuffed indefinitely.

But Mr. Johnson has also said that he hopes separation will not be necessary.

●

As one of the poorer provinces, Quebec has every interest in remaining tightly integrated with the Canadian union. The Atlantic provinces may get larger per capita equalization payments than Quebec, but Quebec's total take from the richer provinces is the largest.

In contradiction with this, Quebec believes it has a responsibility, as the homeland of French Canada, to become an autonomous French-speaking community to the greatest degree that it can.

To gain one of these goals the other must be sacrificed. Federalists choose the tie with Canada. Separatists choose full autonomy.

Mr. Johnson, at present, is trying for both, and bolstering his effort with the warning that if he can't get the best of both worlds he will fall back on complete autonomy.

Separatists disagree with Mr. Johnson on the wisdom of this strategy.

They argue that Quebec cannot hope to impose a new constitution, somewhere between the present system and full independence, on the whole of Canada.

English Canada, they say, would probably choose a clean split before it would accept any sort of double-majority or associate-states stalemate.

After last week's federal-provincial meeting, Pierre Bourgault, president of the RIN, warned Mr. Johnson that he should not use independence as the coin for bargaining.

If he did, he said, the matter might be decided for Quebec by the rest of Canada and Quebec would be forced into a precipitate independence for which it was not prepared.

Whether Mr. Bourgault, or Mr. Johnson, has the better grasp of the psychology of the rest of Canada is a question that remains to be answered.

Some indication from the rest of the country as to what the answer might be would undoubtedly help Quebec to clarify its own feelings.

'IN THE LONG RUN PEOPLE REWARD HONEST, EFFICIENT GOVERNMENTS'

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA — Thomas Alexander Crerar cocked his white-thatched head to one side and slowly drawled out the distillation of half a century of active political life.

Much of it he had said before—from public platforms, in the Commons and Senate chambers, or in critical reports as chairman of the Senate finance committee on growing government spending after the Second World War.

But the words fleshed out the bare bones of political jobs that spanned half the years since Confederation, as member of Parliament, party leader, cabinet minister in two world wars and, finally, as senator. He resigned the last post this year at the age of 90.

What had he aimed at as a Liberal cabinet minister?

"When I had a department, I was interested in seeing if I could run it more efficiently and economically. I was never interested in trying to use government as an agency for getting votes. There's a place for that but it is not in public administration.

'No Bribery'

"I don't agree with the philosophy that if you're going to get electoral support you've got to bribe the people widely. In the long run, the people reward those who give honest and efficient government."

He had already been a school teacher, farmer and grain company executive when he joined the Union government of Robert Borden as minister of agriculture in 1917. He quit in 1919 and led the Progressive party, a rural-based movement which he captained until 1922.

Of the Progressives, Mr. Crerar says:

"There was never a greater illusion than that these people were radicals. What the Progressives wanted was a change in the tariff structure to eliminate protection as far as possible.

"That was due mainly to the fact that they were farmers, working, producing and selling in competition, but buying almost all they needed under a tariff that increased their costs 20 to 40 per cent.

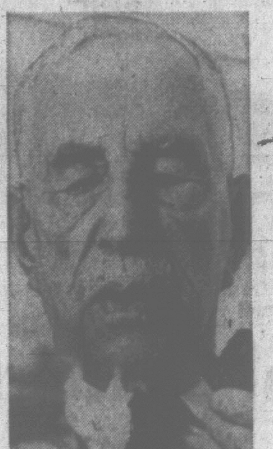
"If Mackenzie King had had the courage and the vision in 1921 to do what his natural impulses told him was desirable, there would almost certainly have been a merger of the Progressives and the Liberals.

"It would have meant that many of Mr. King's supporters would have left him, but out of that might have come a realignment of political parties."

As it was, the Progressives, a small, 13-member group in the Commons when Mr. Crerar headed them in 1919, stunned the country by electing 64 members in 1921, mostly from Ontario and the Prairies.

Thereafter they declined in numbers with each election. But from 1921 until 1926 they held the balance of power in a minority parliament.

Looking back on those days, Mr. Crerar now says he doubts the wisdom of third parties. The parliamentary system "functions best when you have one party in government and one in opposition."



T. A. CRERAR
. . . 'wider duty for MPs'

"But I do think this, that within the respective parties there should be a good deal more independent judgment exercised. There is a tendency today for MPs to leave everything to a few at the top. That can never mean the effective functioning of the democratic process."

Resigned in 1922

Mr. Crerar resigned his leadership in 1922 to devote more time to his first love—the grain trade—although he remained in Parliament until 1926. He had played a big part in founding the United Grain Growers in 1917, a move by the farmers to break the power of the grain elevator companies over grain prices.

But by 1929, he was back in politics, as a minister in the Mackenzie King government. After only five months in the Commons, he was defeated along with the government in the 1930 general election.

However, he returned to Parliament in 1935 and began a long period as a senior member of various King cabinets—as minister of mines, immigration, colonization and the interior.

He stayed through the Second world War, resigning to go to the Senate in 1945.

Mr. Crerar still holds as true something he first heard when he came to Ottawa during the First World War. A friend told him "the great failure today is that Parliament has abdicated to the cabinet and the cabinet has abdicated to the civil service."

"There is a natural tendency to the concentration of power. If we value our freedoms we must always guard against centralization of power.

Good Intentions

"Probably all MPs come here with excellent intentions of trying to do their bit toward establishing sound policies. But it is not long before they are overwhelmed with the multiplicity of reports that come before them.

"Too many slip too easily into the practice of leaving things to the cabinet and the idea that their job is just to vote with the government, write letters to constituents, and do little chores for them.

"They forget Burke's dictum that every MP owes a much wider duty to the whole country than to his own constituency."

In retirement, Mr. Crerar sees some grave dangers ahead for Canada.

"There is no doubt that at the moment there has been a falling away of confidence in our leadership. And the average person sees inflation creating increasing difficulties for him.

"Inflation is one of the most insidious dangers we've got."

Powerful neighbors don't worry him. He figures the United States has enough to do governing 50 states without taking on Canada as well.

After a lifetime that began nine years after Confederation, 50 years of it in politics, Mr. Crerar admits there's plenty of material for memoirs. But he has no intention of writing his.

"We've had the publication of an increasing number of good books in recent years and we've also had a large number of poor ones. I don't want to add to that number."

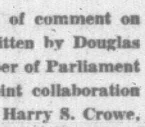
Sharp's 'Sacrificial Religion' Vs. Gordon's 'Folk Mythology'

Starting today, the column of comment on Canadian affairs formerly written by Douglas Fisher, the former NDP member of Parliament for Port Arthur, will be a joint collaboration between Mr. Fisher and Prof. Harry S. Crowe, associate professor of history and director of management labor programs at Atkinson College, York University.

Manitoba-born, Prof. Crowe served in the Canadian and British armies during the war and was awarded the Military Cross. From 1950-58 he was associate professor of history at the University of Manitoba; from 1959-64 director of the research department of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, and from 1964 to this year, co-director of a study of relations between English and French Canadian labor unions for the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

Canadians and Canadian politics would benefit greatly from a sustained and wide-ranging debate on economic policies. And it appears that we are going to get one. But unhappily it seems probable that the debate will revolve around the position of Mr. Sharp as against that of Mr. Gordon.



Fisher

What is so disturbing about this is that the Sharpist and the Gordonian positions are not really rooted in economics at all. It is true that they both use the language of economics, that many years ago one had formal training in economics and that the other had dabbled with economic ideas. But the Sharpist position, widely hailed in non-economic circles as orthodoxy, is much more akin to a pre-Abrahamic sacrificial religion, while the Gordonian position, usually described as non-orthodox, is much closer to a folk mythology.

To Mr. Sharp it is clear that there are gods who must be propitiated. Confronted with what he believes to be a problem of inflation—without stating or evaluating the evidence upon which he bases his belief—Mr. Sharp's response is to ask: "What damage can we inflict upon ourselves so the gods will be appeased?"

Crowe

The answer he comes up with is to cancel medicare for 1967 and put off the granting of scholarships and research aid. There is no evidence that medicare would put into circulation one dollar more than the helter-skelter patchwork arrangements by which Canadians now pay for their medical services. There is considerable evidence that it would substantially improve the health of the nation.

Therefore, if there is the problem which Mr. Sharp apparently believes to exist, medicare, like university scholarships and research aid, would help to meet the problem.

A healthy work force, like improved tachnology, leads to increased productivity. But the Sharpist response to an economic problem is to offer up a sacrifice.

To Mr. Gordon there is an indefinable virtue in Canadian as against American capital, save for Time and Readers' Digest which have a special dispensation. "Indefinable" is the operative adjective, because one must accept or reject as an article of faith that it is better, let us say, for Canadian workers to receive X cents per hour in a Canadian-owned factory than to receive X plus Y cents in an American-owned one. Mr. Gordon's A Choice for Canada is an exercise in folk mythology rather than in economics. Folk mythology has its place, but not in a debate over economic policy.

The conclusions of a debate on economic policy would probably be less important than the general education which would flow from the process. Even more important, although perhaps Utopian, might be the result that politicians in the future would be expected to justify economic measures at least in part according to the demands of the discipline of economics.

Economics is a much abused subject. Despite popular skepticism there is substantial agreement among economists on many of its fundamentals, particularly as they relate to public policy within the free market system. There has been a generation of economic analysis since Keynes, but most of those in politics and the public media who even bother to look into the matter are still back at Keynes' General Theory of Employment, Interest and Money.

Perhaps it is too much to expect to hear public figures quoting Samuelson, Solow, Boulding or Harry Johnson, but surely we could hope for debates on the fixed versus the floating exchange rate, on the degree of relevance of balance of payments to domestic policy, and on the reduction of tariffs as the main path to increased domestic efficiency.

How badly we need such debates, and at least some degree of sophistication on the part of those who influence public opinion, is shown by the curious current unwillingness of our leaders in politics and in the public media to accept the fact that high employment and steady price rises, including the price of labor, go together.

If there was general acceptance of so elementary a proposition then surely there would not be such an inflation of the illusion of inflation as we have just witnessed. It would be hard to find an economist who would venture the analysis that we are in a classic or early-type period of inflation in which there is too much money chasing too few goods. Just look at the inventories. But this statement has been made time-and-again in the past month.

As for the new-type, or cost-push inflation, which could fit the current ailment, is there evidence that this affliction can affect adversely the whole of an economy? From there let us go to the wisdom of guidelines, the experience elsewhere with incomes policies, and to other palliatives. But, above all, preserve us from a battle between the devotees of sacrificial religion and those of folk mythology.

Municipal Leaders Fear Loss of Local Powers

(By Staff Reporter)

PENTICTON—Reeves and council members from the Greater Victoria area are expressing alarm at the growing powers of the newly created regional districts.

Reeve Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, said Thursday that if planning and zoning powers are given regional districts, as suggested by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell when he addressed the Union of British Columbia Municipalities earlier this week, municipal councils will become a thing of the past.

"If planning and zoning powers are taken from the municipalities and given to the regional districts we shall just become tax-collecting agencies," he said.

Mr. Campbell has denied that it is his intention to give the regional district boards any more than broad planning powers for the governing of district development.

NOT REASSURED

But local council members are far from reassured by his bland answer.

Ald. Clyde Savage, Victoria, said he remained extremely pertubed by recent moves which see the regional district taking over administrative tasks formerly performed by municipalities.

"I have been afraid of what the regional districts might develop into ever since they were formed nine months ago," he said.

"That danger is becoming ever more apparent. There is no doubt in my mind that Mr. Campbell is trying to force amalgamation on us."

Ald. Savage is not against the amalgamation of Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt, but he says he would like to see it come about voluntarily rather than by provincial manipulation.

LOST AUTONOMY

Ald. Michael Griffin expressed similar concern.

"Over the years we seem to lose more and more autonomy," he said. "Power is being concentrated, under Mr. Campbell's direction, in ever-narrowing circles.

"If he keeps it up we shall soon have municipal government being directed by one municipal council—the provincial government.

"I seriously think the danger is very real."

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis, chairman of the regional district of the capital of British Columbia, said he would like more clarification on Mr. Campbell's planning and zoning ideas before being too critical.

"If he meant specific zoning it would be alarming," he said. "But if he means general zoning I don't see anything too dangerous."

Other delegates to the 63rd annual convention expressed fears similar to those of the Greater Victoria representatives.

END OF UBCM?

"We seem to be giving more and more power and responsibilty to the regional districts," said a northern B.C. mayor who preferred to remain anonymous.

"If they keep it up I can see the annual convention of the UBCM attracting maybe a dozen delegates in a few years' time instead of the 1,100 registered this year."

Even Reeve Curtis, though reluctant to join the ranks of the fearful, admitted that if the regional districts gained control of specific zoning and water distribution sales they would have the power and the financing to supersede existing municipal government.

Grabbing Meat Costs Woman Fine of $75

Two women pleaded guilty in central court Tuesday to charges of shoplifting.

Margaret Bell, address unavailable, admitted putting $5 worth of beef roast, pork chops and round steak in a shopping bag and trying to smuggle it past the cashier at Oakcrest Foods, 3475 Quadra Street.

At the time the mother of four had over $100 in her purse, defence counsel said.

Mrs. Bell was fined $75.

Twenty-year-old Adele Foley, staying at 1621 Island Highway, pleaded guilty to shoplifting a sweater and a pair of baby-doll pyjamas worth a total of $22.38 from the Woolco Store at 3651 Douglas Street.

Having taken the merchandise she later returned to ask for a refund and was apprehended.

Her case was remanded for a pre-sentence report.

"I think what some of these people require is a re-assessment of their principles," Magistrate William Ostler commented in passing sentence on Mrs. Bell. "They do it because they think they can get away with it, not for psychiatric reasons."

Shoplifter Fined $100

Mrs. Muriel Georgelin has handled $100,000 in the past eight years in her job as tire store manager, her employer said in court Thursday.

"In 40 years I've never met a more honest woman," said Hector Robertson of Vancouver, president of the firm.

The 55-year-old widow, who lives at 1002 Vancouver, was fined $100 after pleading guilty to shop-lifting goods worth $15.12

A store detective said she watched while the accused secreted a roast, a barbequed chicken, cheese, wafers, crayons, ink, scotch tape and other items in her shopping bag and left the department store at 1701 Douglas without paying

IDEAS ASKED, BUT

Municipal Act Changes 'Out'

By JIM HUME
Times Staff Reporter

PENTICTON — Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Thursday he was opposed to every one of 19 proposals to revise the Municipal Act.

"The proposals are not recommendations of the department, just recommendations for consideration and an expression of opinion. I am against every one of these," he said.

The proposals, taking up almost a full day of discussion by the 1,100 delegates attending the annual convention of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, were presented by the department as "Proposed Revisions of the Municipal Act."

In the preamble to the proposals it is stated that the "department of municipal affairs and the executive of the UBCM recommend the following principles relative to a revision of the Municipal Act for consideration and expression by the membership. . . ."

OPINION ONLY

Interviewed Thursday afternoon to seek clarification on store closing hours, Mr. Campbell said the operative words in the preamble were "for consideration and expression of opinion."

"It took is three hours to work out that first paragraph," Mr. Campbell said.

Delegates interviewed later in the day expressed shock at Mr. Campbell's apparent rejection — before discussion — of the resolutions dealing with subjects as far apart as municipal financing and Sunday sport.

All stated that they had understood from the presentation that the 19 items were placed on the agenda as recommendations for changes in the act by Mr. Campbell's department and the UBCM executive.

"You should read more carefully," Mr. Campbell told the Times reporter. "All we looked for today was an expression of opinion. We have received that. But it does not mean that these items will become part of the Municipal Act. As a matter of fact I don't think the shopping hours regulations have a hope of becoming law."

The shopping hours proposal would see store hours removed from municipal control and wide-open shopping seven days a week.

This morning Mr. Campbell said that his earlier statement had been misunderstood.

"What I intended to say was that I am neutral on these questions. I am neither for nor against them at this point," he said.

Russians Protest U.S. Blast Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials indicated Thursday that the United States will go ahead with plans for 24 non-nuclear underwater test explosions off the Russian-held Kurile Islands despite a Soviet protest.

Authorities described the program as a major seismological experience to determine how fast sound waves travel through the earth in a vast earthquake-prone area of the north Pacific, 500 miles long and 90 miles wide.

This information is essential to the accurate locating of earthquakes and other phenomenon, it was explained.

Sources said the series of one to five-ton TNT blasts will begin in October under the direction of the defence department.

The program is designed to study the feasibility of distinguishing between underground nuclear explosions and earthquakes through the detecting, locating and identifying of seismic disturbances.

RUSSIANS PROTEST

The Russians have protested that the blasts may damage their seismic equipment in the area as well as disrupt fishing and the migration of fur-bearing seals. More than 300 Russian fishing trawlers operate among the 36 islands of the Kurile chain located between Russia's Kamchatka Peninsula and Japan.

The state department announced Wednesday it has assured Russia that all possible precautions will be taken against damaging fishing resources.

It said representatives of the Soviet Union and Japan have been invited to observe the blasts, which would not be made within five miles of fishing vessels on the high seas. Two chartered commercial ships will undertake the experiment and all results will be made available to the international scientific community, the state department said.

The tests will work this way, officials said:

A temporary network of 13 ocean-bottom seismographs will be set up along the islands, none being placed within 20 miles of the shoreline. The explosions will be set off at 300- to 600-foot depths in water 1,000 fathoms or deeper.

WANT ACCURATE CHARTS

The ultimate goal is to assure that any blasts or earthquakes near the islands could be charted accurately by the 120 stations of the worldwide seismological network operated by the U.S. coast and geodetic survey.

Officials said such tests have been going on since 1961.

"We're trying to make a geological roadmap of the world," one source said. "If we don't have an accurate map, we can't actually locate where an underground or underwater event occurs."

This was demonstrated last year, a source said, when the United States set off an 80-kiloton nuclear device in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska. Although the weapon was four times as powerful as the Hiroshima nuclear blast, the worldwide network was as much as 25 kilometres off in determining its location.

Officials said some U.S. scientists worry that unless they can narrow such gaps, an on-site nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia would have drawbacks.

CLAIM DENIED

Pilot Believed CIA Had Approved Flight

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Lawyers for two men accused of conspiring to ferry B-26 bombers and other armaments to Portugal illegally say their clients assumed the flights received U.S. government approval.

And, they say, another man, indicted in the case but not in custody, was the key figure in the plan.

The statements came Wednesday in the opening of the U.S. district court trial.

The government charges seven of the reconditioned, Second World War-vintage bombers were flown to Portugal without necessary export licences for eventual use against rebels in that country's African colonies of Angola and Mozambique.

The missing defendant is Gregory R. Board, a native of Australia and a naturalized U.S. citizen. His last known address was Tucson, Ariz., where the flights allegedly originated.

In his statement to the jury Wednesday, the lawyer for John R. Hawke of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., one of the defendants, said the flights had been secretly backed by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, a claim federal officials have denied.

Prosecutors said Hawke, 28, an RAF veteran, was the pilot on the flights, which, they said, took place between May and September, 1965. They touched down at St. John's, Nfld.

Hawke's lawyer, Edwin Marger, told the court testimony would prove "the United States allowed Board to leave the country at a time he could have been apprehended; that the government knows where he is and has done nothing to bring him back."

Marger said Hawke assumed he was working for the government and that Board had obtained the necessary clearance.

Edward Brodsky, the lawyer for the second defendant, Count Henri de Montmarin, told a similar story. He added that his client, a 58-year-old French importer-exporter acting as agent for a Swiss firm, "had every reasn to believe" the licences had been granted.

An opening statement on behalf of a third man on trial, Woodrow W. Roderick, a Winnipeg businessman now living in Tucson, was deferred by his lawyer.

Under prosecution questioning Keat Griggers, 42, an aircraft mechanic from Jamestown, Calif., testified the planes had been certified for civilian use by the Federal Aviation Agency after they were reconditioned.

Griggers was named in the indictment, but charges against him later were dropped.

Yard Probe Of JFK Death Suggested

LONDON (Reuters) — American lawyer Mark Lane has called here for a new investigation in U.S. President Kennedy's assassination — suggesting Britain's Scotland Yard could possibly do the job.

Lane was speaking on the eve of publication in Britain of his book Rush to Judgment, which rejects the official Warren commission view that Lee Harvey Oswald—later shot to death by Jack Ruby—was the sole assassin.

Lane showed newspaper men filmed interviews with three railway workers who said they witnessed the assassination during Kennedy's cavalcade through Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

All spoke of seeing shots fired from behind a wooden fence on top of a knoll to the front and right of the president's car.

The commission headed by U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren concluded in its report that all the shots which hit the president and Governor John Connally of Texas were fired from a high window of a Dallas book depot—behind the car.

SAW FLASHES

In the filmed and taped interviews, the railway men spoke of seeing puffs of smoke and flashes of light from behind the fences.

Lane said the railway men's evidence had been ignored by the Warren commission.

The lawyer demanded that all evidence on the shooting—some of which had been placed in the national archives in Washington as classified material not to be opened for the next 70 years—should be made available and a new inquiry opened.

"There are suggestions that the inquiry should be made by an outside agency — such as Scotland Yard," Lane said. "That is worth considering."

VANCOUVER (CP) — The will of postman-spy George Victor Spencer, whose case caused a nationwide stir, was filed for probate at the courthouse here Thursday.

Lawyer Harry Rankin, who represented Spencer at a national inquiry after the postal clerk died April 6, was named executor.

Spencer's gross estate was $11,012.

The will, made Nov. 8, 1965, specified a $1,000 bequest to his friend William Ranta and that the balance go to the Cancer Institute of Canada and the Co-Op Bookstore at Mr. Rankin's "sole discretion."

Documents filed with the will showed that Mr. Rankin exercised his discretion in the ratio of $7,000 to the bookstore and $1,690 to the cancer institute.

Spencer, 61, died of a blood clot shortly before a royal commission was to inquire into his dismissal from the post office and allegations that he was a spy for Russia.

The main item in the Spencer estate was a house valued at $7,100. He had bank accounts of $2,288 and $473, a Canada Savings Bond maturing in 1983 with a face value of $100, a car valued at $700 and publication rights to a manuscript entitled Red Tape Jungle valued at $750.

APOSTLE OF NORTH

Broken . . . Buried Symbol Stands Again

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Second annual trek of the East Kootenay Historical Association was held last Sunday and believe it or not, I was in the gathering.

Motoring in the area with a friend, we saw the group on a stretch of ground above the Kootenay River just before you cross the bridge to go down to Canal Flats.

Forbes

Centred on this ground was a brand new provincial government marker well concealed by a Union Jack.

We slowed down to get a better look. In a moment we were waved over to a narrow approach, shown a spot to park our car and were being greeted by the association president, Betty Oliver, and Mayette Slade, who only recently bowed out as a newspaper publisher when she sold the Kimberley Daily Bulletin.

* * *

The marker, we were told, had been erected to the memory of Father Peter de Smet. It was to be unveiled by two oldtimers in the district. The television cameras were there. People had come from as far north as Invermere and from Cranbrook in the south to be present.

It was a short, simple ceremony. Mrs. Oliver spoke briefly on the historical significance of the event. A priest who seemed to know everyone by their first names said a prayer.

A few gentle tugs by aged fingers and the Jack dropped to reveal the shield-shaped marker with its dogwood emblem.

* * *

Sunshine flicked across the faces of those men and women who crowded close to get a good look. And it picked out in bold relief the first words on the marker — "The Apostle of the North."

In her talk Betty Oliver told us a little about this "black-robed priest" who came to the East Kootenays from Montana in 1845 and who travelled back and forth between the border and the Kootenay and Columbia rivers for some years.

He was a "great power for good in the land," she said, and he "smoothed out many difficulties between whites and Indians."

So beloved and respected did he become that the Indians named the country he travelled so frequently between Canal Flats (where we stood last Sunday) and Sinclair Creek (many miles away) the Plains of the Nativity.

In his turn Father de Smet erected a great wooden cross on a river bank in this territory to mark the fact that the Indians had accepted Christianity.

* * *

No doubt Father de Smet thought this cross would stand as a symbol of his time and work over many years. But flood waters on the rivers and streams decreed otherwise.

The cross was eventually broken and buried by mud and almost forgotten. Except by the old ones who knew the story and handed it on to their children.

Finally Oswald McGinnis, now of Invermere, and his brother who is a priest, determined to make an all-out search over the Plains of the Nativity for the relic.

Last Sunday, Mr. McGinnis, older now and slower in movement and speech, stood beneath the newly unveiled marker on the banks of the Kootenay River and told us something of that search.

First the two men read old records (some left by Father de Smet himself). They studied old maps that showed routes the priest had taken on his travels through the country. Then they talked to others who had looked for the cross and to Indians and whites who could go back to a day when the stories were not distorted by time.

* * *

And they pinpointed five or six acres as "about the place" the cross must have been erected. This ground was carefully worked over and narrowed down to an area that in Mr. McGinnis' own words "seemed most likely."

Here they went to work with rakes and shovels. "We covered every inch of it" he said with a quiet note of triumph in his voice," and we found it!"

The cross was in three pieces and scattered in different spots. When it was reassembled in the little Indian church on the Shuswap Reserve — where it stands today — it was 11 feet high and five-and-a-half feet wide.

Next stop on the historical association's trek was down on the flats where remains of a canal that once linked Columbia Lake and Kootenay River were to be viewed. We were invited to "come along."

But first the field director, a tall, dark-haired young man named Larry Miller, told us how and why the canal was built.

He also described the journey of the last boat to go through that canal — back in 1902.

On Monday, I'll try to give you something of that story in this column.

'Think For Yourself'

The world's hungry millions are no longer content to remain hungry, says Dr. Brock Chisholm.

Speaking to Sidney Elementary PTA, he said 20 years ago the hungry were resigned in their belief that their condition could not be altered but this is no longer true.

He said because of this there is a growing hostility towards those whose skins are white.

"White people are in the minority and are considered the bad people by the hungry masses," he said.

Dr. Chisholm said a solution to the world's problems is a radical change of thinking by the younger generation.

Children must be taught to think for themselves and not necessarily accept the ideas of their parents, he said.

Discarded Clothes Needed

Where there's a will there's a way.

Especially when it's Goodwill.

The handicapped society, with brand new offices in Victoria, has plenty of helpers and more than enough space.

But it's looking for a way to round up more odds of material and old clothing.

Said executive director Samuel Ree today: "Goodwill urgently needs more materials.

"We must appeal to the public for more of the discarded household materials on which our whole program is based."

NEW BOOTHS

As part of the stepped-up drive, 10 new blue-and-yellow collection booths are being placed at newly arranged locations throughout Vancouver Island.

At the same time, thousands of Goodwill bags bearing an urgent appeal message, will be distributed to housewives in a door-to-door operation by Goodwill staff and volunteers over the next 10 weeks.

The clothing and material is handled by handicapped people who make it into something useful for selling.

During the first eight months of this year, Goodwill provided training for 137 handicapped people — more than ever before — and paid a record $126,229 in wages.

PATIENT'S AUTOMATIC PILOT

VANCOUVER (CP)—An electronic nurse is the latest piece of equipment at Vancouver General Hospital.

It's called a cardioscope, a $3,600 electronic device presented to the hospital by Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Woodward.

It simultaneously monitors a child's heartbeat, temperature, respiration and pulse rate. It has a built-in alarm which gives warning when, for example, the patient's pulse rate drops below a safe level.

"It acts for the nurse in much the same manner as an automatic pilot in an aircraft," says Dr. Sydney Israels, head of the University of British Columbia pediatrics department.

Single Uniform Gets Early Test

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer said Thursday that trials for a common uniform for Canada's three armed forces may begin in the near future.

He made the comment at Greenwood, N.S., as he explained the government's armed forces unification policy to officers and men at RCAF stations there and here before winding up a three-day visit to the Maritime Command.

Mr. Hellyer said the trials would determine "the acceptability of the cloth and the cut of the new uniform."

Although the trials could begin soon on a limited basis, it might take "up to four years" before common uniforms would be supplied to all forces.

Mr. Hellyer arrived here by air from Greenwood. He flew out for Ottawa at 6:15 p.m.

The meetings of officers and men at both bases were closed to reporters, but airmen said he received a quiet reception at both places.

Mr. Hellyer said that as far as dress uniforms are concerned, provision will be made for color.

"The guards ceremony on the (Parliament) Hill and reserve units and others will be able to wear dress uniforms which will provide some variety in color," he said.

The minister told news conferences both here and at Greenwood that there are no existing plans to close either base, although there would have to be some reductions throughout the country in the future.

He said he told the men at both bases that substantial raises would be awarded to armed forces personnel next month and told reporters that he had been courteously received in all his meetings with servicemen in Halifax, Greenwood and Summerside.

More War Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara said Thursday it has become prudent to buy 280 more war planes than originally slated for the fiscal year beginning next July. The cost $700,000,000.

CHEMICALS CLEAR ZONE

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. military spokesman disclosed Thursday that United States planes using tons of plant-killing chemicals are turning the six-mile-wide demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam into a barren no man's land to halt Communist infiltration.

Ore Carrier Aground

CAPE VINCENT, N.Y. (UPI)—The 730-foot Canadian ore carrier Hilda Marjanne went aground Thursday at Baford Point light on Wolf Island in the St. Lawrence River.

Surveyor Hits Moon at 5,800 MPH

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—The $65 million Surveyor 2 moon explorer crashed into the lunar surface at a speed of 5,800 miles per hour Thursday night, jet propulsion laboratory scientists reported.

The crippled spacecraft, designed to soft land on the moon and send back pictures of possible landing sites for Apollo astronauts, had been doomed since Tuesday night when one of its three steering engines failed to ignite during a critical mid-course manoeuvre.

Had the manoeuvre been succesful, the Vernier engines would have stabilized the behicle's trajectory and assured a bulls-eye landing in the Sinus Medii, or middle bay, of the moon's equator facing the earth.

Instead, the failure of the No. 3 engine sent Surveyor somersaulting in space, unable to lock its sensors on the sun to recharge its batteries.

During its 63-hour flight, scientists made more than 38 attempts to halt Surveyor's violent rotations. When it became certain the efforts were futile, officials performed a series of routine tests on the spacecraft, including firing of the 10,000-pound-thrust retro rocket.

The retro firing may have torn the vehicle almost apart.

More Britons Jobless

LONDON (AP) — Unemployment in Britain rose to 339,947 this month, the government reported Thursday. This was an increase of 22,936 over August. The figure represented 1.5 per cent of the work force, officials said.

Pre-ignition, even with highly leaded fuels, is virtually unknown! Engine efficiency and reliability are dramatically increased! Idling is silken-smooth, plug fouling is forgotten. Thunderbolt fires new four and six cylinder Mercs with lightning speed and power.

From the world leader in marine propulsion comes the most advanced, most complete line of outboards!

At Lake X and Sarasota, Florida, at Fond du Lac and Oshkosh, Wisconsin, Mercs are put through the toughest tests Mercury engineers can devise. They run day and night for weeks at full throttle, in both fresh and salt water, over timed, measured distances . . . hit sandbars at 40 MPH to prove shocks . . . plow through saw grass and water hyacinths to test cooling systems. The '67 Mercury you buy has already been proved in years of customer use—squeezed into weeks of intensive tests.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—After working into a range of both strength and weakness, trading in the grain futures market almost came to a stand-still today.

By early afternoon, soybeans had slid into further weakness for the fourth setback in five days this week. However, the grains were generally firm to strong.

Brokers said the weakness in soybeans reflected further scattered liquidation and a virtual absence of demand. Speculative short covering was credited with the support of wheat and rye, particularly.

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Grain Market took on a firmer appearance today in moderately active trade, steadied by modest rallies on the Chicago grain market.

Oilseeds were active with fair buying interest in flaxseed, spurred by confirmed reports of a major sale to France—estimated at about 8,000 tons—and to Japan. Other countries also were reported interested in flax. Hedging in early prices were fairly well absorbed.

Rapeseed was irregular with easier tones, reflecting a decline in the Chicago soybean market.

Toronto prices fell in sympathy with New York.

AT VANCOUVER five mining stocks fell to 1966 lows, Arctic, Jaye Explorations, McKinney, National Ex. and Silver Standard all dipped to new depths for the year as the market remained quiet.

In addition, Bethlehem and Granduc both lost 15 cents and Cascade Moly fell six cents to $1.71 on 33,225 shares.

Silver Arrow, however, recouped some of Thursday's loss by putting on eight cents to 58.

In the industrial section, Steel of Canada reached a new low of $22.50.

AT TORONTO, Inco tumbled 2⅛ to 84⅜ in pacing the market lower. A company spokesman said he knew of no reason for the decline.

Falconbridge, Canada's second largest nickel producer, also retreated, losing 1 to 87½. Bell Telephone slipped ⅜ to a low of 48⅛.

Uraniums sparked a base-metal advance. Denison, which has the world's largest known supply of the precious metal, climbed 1⅛ to 55⅝ and Rio Algom ⅝ to 24½.

AT NEW YORK key stocks lost from fractions to more than a point. Glamor stocks fell 2 or more points.

SUBSIDY URGED

Chamber Joins Gas Rate War

Local producers should put pressure on B.C. Hydro to obtain lower gas rates in Victoria, Chamber of Commerce president Courtney Haddock said today.

"It is obviously unfair that Victoria producers should have to pay about 2½ times as much for gas as producers in Vancouver," Mr. Haddock said.

"With a combined effort by the Chamber of Commerce and local trading organizations, I'm sure we could persuade the government to give us a more equitable rate."

Mr. Haddock supported an earlier statement by John McDonald, president of Victoria Bakery Production Club, that local industry is being "choked" by high gas rates.

"Electricity rates have been standardized throughout the province," Mr. McDonald said. "I think we should ask the government to standardize gas rates by subsidy."

Mr. McDonald said gas bills for his own bakery firm amounted to $445.18 in one month without the five per cent provincial tax.

For the same volume of natural gas in Vancouver, he would have paid only $176.85.

A smaller Victoria bakery paid $155.37 in one month whereas in Vancouver the bill would have been $57.38.

A B.C. Hydro official confirmed these figures.

HIGHER RATE

He said rates are higher in Victoria because butane gas imported from Taylor Flats in the Peace River country has to be brought here in pressurized tanks.

The fuel then has to be mixed with air before going into the distribution system.

In Vancouver natural gas is piped directly from the Peace River area.

"The combined rail and fuel costs mean we cannot operate in Victoria without a greater return," the hydro official said.

Bill Webb, president of the Vancouver Island branch, Canadian Restaurant Association, said Premier Bennett promised last February that gas rates would be reduced in Victoria.

WORK DEEP UNDER

The power house on the Peace River's Portage Mountain dam will be 500 feet underground.

FLY ASH CONTROLLED BY WINTER

The smoke and fly ash problem at B.C. Forest Products should be over by the end of the year.

Work will start in November on a $131,000 smoke and fly ash control installation, mill manager Herbert Barnes said Thursday.

Tenders have been called returnable Monday for the installation of blow pipes and equipment auxiliary to the collectors which will be placed in three different boilers.

The installation is guaranteed to bring the discharge of smoke and ash to within limitations set by the city's smoke control bylaw, he said.

Mr. Barnes thought everything could be in place and functioning by the end of the year.

Moly Offered VIEW Choice

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two directors of Cascade Molybdenum Mines Ltd. said Thursday they are buying Vancouver Iron and Engineering Works.

Elroy McCaw of Seattle said in a telephone interview from New York that he and millionaire jet plane manufacturer William Lear will own the firm before the end of the month.

"The papers are being drawn up," he said. No price was mentioned.

Mr. McCaw added that shareholders of Cascade Moly will have first refusal on the deal.

"If they think it will fit into Cascade Moly, all well and good, Mr. McCaw said. "If they don't want V.I.E.W. we will keep it as a personal investment."

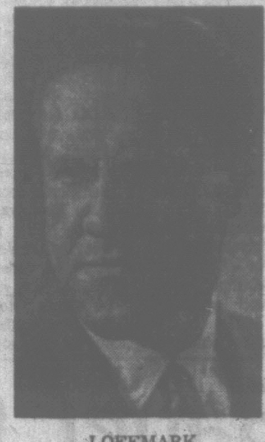
FLOOD OF JAPANESE ON WAY—LOFFMARK



LOFFMARK
. . . good or bad?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark said Thursday that British Columbia will be flooded with thousands of technically-skilled Japanese if the federal government goes ahead with proposed new immigration policies.

He declined to say whether or not he approved of the Ottawa policy proposals made known by Immigration Minister Jean Marchand.

Mr. Loffmark predicted in an interview that most of the Japanese who would enter Canada under the relaxed immigration policy would stay in B.C.

Effects would include changes in ethnic proportions in B.C. and an increasing dependency on Japanese market, he said.

PGE Talks Collapse, Strike Set Sunday

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations on a new contract for 400 non-operating employees of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway broke down after only a half-hour of talks Thursday.

No new talks were scheduled and the federation of PGE employees said its Sunday midnight strike deadline remained in effect.

Federation spokesman Dave Chapman said the new offer proposed by the company Wednesday was little different from its original proposal.

The PGE, owned by the provincial government, originally promised to match the 18 per cent increase awarded employees of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways plus whatever was won through mediation.

The latest PGE offer was a guarantee of 50 cents an hour more for tradesmen and 40 cents for apprentices and tradesmen no matter what the outcome of the federal mediation.

The employees asked for the terms of a conciliation board report recommending 25 cents hourly retroactive to Jan. 1 and a further 25 cents from Jan. 1 next year plus holiday and welfare benefits.

Chapman said: "We are not prepared to pull off our strike deadline if there is nothing worthwhile to pull it for."

Company officials were not available for comment.

FINANCING TERM CHANGE AGREED

Young Nations Get Protection

MONTREAL (CP) — Commonwealth finance ministers agreed Thursday that financing arrangements for aid programs in the developing countries should be changed to avoid burdening these countries with excessive debt charges.

The agreement came out of a two-day closed meeting of the Commonwealth's economic consultative committee which concentrated on development problems and reform of the international monetary system.

Another agreement termed significant by Finance Minister Sharp was that the developing countries should be allowed to participate in discussions leading up to new monetary arrangements.

Mr. Sharp said the Commonwealth countries have never before reached complete agreement on this point.

Some European countries oppose using the International Monetary Fund, which would include developing countries in the talks, on the grounds that these countries might ease up in efforts to improve their own economic situation.

A conference communique echoed the views of other international groups that plans must be made now to increase international liquidity — although there is enough liquidity now.

SAYS IMPORTANT ISSUE

The liquidity issue was described by Mr. Sharp as esoteric and one he did not pretend to understand in all its complexities. But it was important to solve if international trade was to continue to grow.

The view of developing countries that they are falling behind in efforts to close the economic gap between them and the wealthier nations was reflected in the communique.

Mr. Sharp told a press conference that in the last five years there has been no net increase in transferring resources from the wealthy to the poorer nations.

In the same period the gross national product of the main industrialized countries had increased about $250,000,000,000.

SHARE DECREASED

The communique said the developing countries' share in world trade has fallen, export prices of several important primary commodities have continued to decline and net capital flows have dropped.

It said the ministers agreed it was desirable to work out international arrangements for stabilizing prices at equitable and remunerative levels for commodities of special interest to Commonwealth countries.

It was not intended that the conference make any earth-shaking decisions. The meeting provides an opportunity to discuss in a Commonwealth context the issues to be raised at next week's meetings in Washington of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

Shopping Centre

CALGARY (CP) — Petro Chemical Buildings Ltd. of Calgary said Thursday it plans to build a shopping centre on an 88-acre site in northwest Calgary. Estimated cost was reported at $20,000,000. A Hudson's Bay Co. spokesman said his company is "seriously negotiating with the developer" to include a branch of 100,000-150,000 square feet, in the centre, which would be Calgary's largest.

THREE-YEAR CONTRACT SIGNED . . . . . . WITH COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM

National Hockey League Cracks U.S. TV Market

NEW YORK (CP)—A three-year, $3,600,000 television deal that will make dozens of athletic young Canadians featured performers on U.S. television screens was announced Thursday.

Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Hockey League disclosed the general terms of a pact under which the CBS network will present color telecasts of an NHL Game of the Week. The games will be shown on weekends during the second half of the next three NHL seasons and during the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The NHL regards U.S. network television as the quickest way to win a substantial new following for the game that now is an institution in Canada and in U.S. cities near the Canadian border. The agreement covers a period in which the NHL will double in size by expanding into six U.S. cities.

Announcement of the agreement was made by William C. MacPhail, vice - president of CBS television sports, and Bruce A. Norris of Detroit, chairman of the NHL board of governors.

MacPhail told a press conference that the contract is for "by far the largest amount ever paid for any sports series other than football or baseball."

As it did for pro baseball and football, network TV provides hockey with a substantial new source of revenue. This is of vital interest to the league, which has for years played to near - capacity crowds in most of its arenas.

"Only five per cent of NHL house seats were not filled last year, so we can't expand much that way," said William M. Jennings, president of the New York Rangers and chairman of the NHL's TV committee.

Although the NHL and CBS refused to discuss financial details, it was learned the NHL will be paid $600,000 the first year, $1,200,000 the second and $1,800,000 in 1968-69.

The present NHL teams—Toronto, Montreal, New York, Boston, Detroit and Chicago—will share equally the first - year payment. The money will be split 12 ways in the next two years, when a second NHL division will be in action.

The league has awarded conditional new franchises to Los Angeles, Minneapolis - St. Paul, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, San Francisco - Oakland and St. Louis, effective in 1967.

CBS, bound by prior commitments for the television season now under way, has arranged to farm out its Game of the Week until next spring's Stanley Cup playoffs. An independent network, Madison Square Garden-RDO General Sports Presentations, with more than 100 stations, will produce and show regular - season games on eight weekends from the weekend of Feb. 10 through April 2.

The CBS network will then televise weekend playoff games, possibly three in all.

MacPhail said the games will be offered to close to 200 CBS stations, with a probably blackout in the city from which the game originates. He said CBS believes the U.S. South is becoming increasingly interested in hockey since the establishment of minor professional teams there.

During the second and third years of the agreement, the CBS network will telecast regular - season NHL games on Saturday or Sunday afternoons —details have not yet been worked out—starting right after the U.S. pro football season, probably in mid-January.

CBS is paying $37,600,000 for two years for exclusive rights to televise National Football League games.

Jennings said that after expansion, the NHL and CBS "have agreed . . . that we will televise at least 10 or 12 regular - season games, including games from the interlocking schedule."

He also indicated the Stanley Cup playoffs will last longer, with elimination series in two divisions.

The agreement with CBS does not require suspension of individual club arrangements for TV and radio coverage, although on some weekends it may duplicate the local broadcasts.

Bauer Gets His Numbers And Orioles Collect Flag

By The Associated Press

"I won't be satisfied," Hank Bauer said two weeks ago, "until we have a 10-game lead with nine games to play."

The numbers fell neatly into place Thursday for Bauer's Baltimore Orioles.

California Angels' 5-3 victory over second - place Detroit Tigers in the opener of a doubleheader was old news at Kansas City when Baltimore centre fielder Russ Snyder speared Dick Green's ninth - inning line drive and the Orioles' first American League pennant.

Snyder's catch completed a 6-1 triumph over the Athletics, mathematically buried the Tigers and made Baltimore a major league title town for the first time since 1896, when the old Orioles captured the last of their three National League flags.

The champagne was still flowing in the Baltimore clubhouse when Detroit won its nightcap against the Angels 7-0, finishing the day 10 games behind the Orioles.

YANKS DRAW ONLY 413

While the Orioles secured their World Series berth, New York Yankees bowed 4-1 to Chicago White Sox before 413 foul-weather fans and slipped further into the league basement. The crowd was the smallest in the majors this season and the smallest on record for a Yankee Stadium game.

The Boston - Washington doubleheader, only other action on the AL schedule, was rained out.

Frank Robinson drilled two doubles and a single, driving in two runs and pacing the Orioles' 12-hit attack against loser Lew Krausse and four successors. The three hits boosted Frank's league - leading average to .316. He also leads in homers, with 49, and RBI, with 120.

PALMER WINNER

Jim Palmer, Baltimore's winningest pitcher, checked the Athletics on five hits for his 15th victory and first complete game since July 22.

Johnny Podres tossed a five-hitter and knocked in two runs with a eighth - inning double, helping the Tigers gain a doubleheader split after rookie Jay Johnstone had sparked the Angels' first - game victory with four hits, including a run-scoring triple.

Torrid Braves Pound Pirates

By The Associated Press

Second-place Pittsburgh Pirates moved into Atlanta Thursday night, hoping to cut the National League lead of the idle Los Angeles Dodgers to one game.

Instead, the Braves trounced the Pirates 14-1 and boosted the Dodgers' margin to two games.

The victory was the Braves' sixth straight, 19th in the last 21 games and 30th against 12 defeats since coach Billy Hitchcock became manager Aug. 9.

The surge has taken them from seventh place, 12½ games out, to fourth place, eight games out.

"The big thing has been that we go to the ball park and know who's going to play," catcher Joe Torre said, explaining the change in the team's attitude and fortunes. "You don't have to look on the board to see if you are playing.

"If a player knows he's going to play, he can conduct himself accordingly. Your mental attitude has a lot to do with it."

The victory Thursday night was their fourth straight over the Pirates, the first three having come in Pittsburgh earlier this month. And there are three games to go before Pittsburgh leaves Atlanta.

The Braves ruined any chance the Pirates had for a victory by erupting for six runs in the inning. Then, Hank Aaron hit his 40th homer, a three-run blow.

Romeo Runs To Jug Win

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — George Sholty, who has been piloting harness horses for almost half of his 33 years, finally hit the jackpot Thursday when he guided classy Romeo Hanover to an impressive triumph in the Little Brown Jug.

The big bay colt methodically pulled away from the 11 other horses in the field to capture the $75,000 pacing classic for three-year-olds in straight heats.

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Flamboyant, a two - year - old filly driven by Billy Haighton, held off the closing surge of the favored Pay Dirt and won the $100,000 E. Roland Harriman Trot at Yonkers Raceway Thursday night by three-quarters of a length.

Flamboyant quicky drew out around the final turn into the stretch, then withstood the closing drive of the 8-5 favorite, Pay Dirt.

Brewer Hits Roadblock In Bid to Get Freedom

By The Canadian Press

Just when former all-star defenceman Carl Brewer was beginning to see daylight in his efforts to play for Canada's national hockey team, Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks threw up a roadblock.

Brewer, suspended by Toronto Maple Leaf manager - coach Punch Imlach after walking out of pre - season training camp a year ago, is seeking reinstatement as an amateur to join Canada's entry in the world hockey championships in Vienna next March.

To get it, the suspension must be lifted and Brewer must be waived by all other teams in professional hockey.

He got a couple of breaks Thursday. First, the Leafs announced they have written to Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, agreeing to free him. Then Emile Francis, manager-coach of New York Rangers, agreed not to claim him on waivers. Francis earlier had said he would.

LOOKING BRIGHT

The future was looking bright for Brewer, a nine - year veteran with the Leafs, until Thursday night when Hap Emms, general - manager of Boston Bruins, said in London, Ont., his team would "take him . . . that's for sure."

And Tommy Ivan, manager of Chicago Black Hawks, said:

"I'd be a pretty poor general manager if I passed up a player like Brewer. Let them put him on waivers and let them find out."

The Rangers, last - place finishers in the NHL last season, would have first chance to pay the $30,000 waiver price for Brewer and the Bruins, a notch higher in fifth place, would get second chance.

Emms suggested the Leafs were simply trying to improve their public image by agreeing to let Brewer go.

"It takes them off the hook publicly," he said, "but they know they darn well one of the other clubs will pick him up for the waiver price."

Toronto, however, made it definitely understood they were not letting Brewer pass to another pro team.

BREWER AGREEABLE

"May I make it quite clear that if Carl is to abandon professional hockey in favor of playing for our national team, then we have no objection," said the letter from Maple Leaf Gardens' president Stafford Smythe. It adds that if Brewer returns to pro ranks, it must be with the Leaf organization.

This would be agreeable to Brewer, his lawyer, Al Eagleson of Toronto, has said. The ex-Leaf announced his desire to leave pro hockey three weeks ago.

PUNCH NETTLED

The letter, an executive move, overruled Imlach who was obviously nettled Thursday.

"It's stupid; they can't do it," he said at the team's Peterborough training camp. "Who's going to tell the other U.S. pro teams not to touch him? There would be a lineup."

Brewer already has permission from the International Ice Hockey Federation to play in Vienna if he's reinstated.

★ ★ ★

Biggest news around the NHL training camps Thursday was the departure from Chicago Black Hawks of Elmer (Moose) Vasko.

Saying he couldn't get interested in practice, Vasko walked out of camp to join goalie Glenn Hall among the Chihawk absentees. Hall announced Wednesday he was retiring from hockey.

Toronto Maple Leafs had bad news when Bob Pulford was sidelined for perhaps a week with a bruised knee.

In Kingston, New York manager Emile Francis said he might change his mind about fining Bob Plager $200 for reporting late to camp.

Plager said he was delayed by being subpoenaed as a witness in a court case.

JACK BRAUCKMANN

Grid Steelers Hire Assistant Manager

Ken Hole, vice-president of Victoria Steelers, today announced the appointment of Jack Brauckmann as assistant to the general manager of the pro football club.

Hole said Brauckmann will handle public relations and promotion for the Pacific Coast Football League team and will coordinate all phases of club activities for the remainder of the 1966 season.

The Steelers have a 0-2 record in the PCFL, with eight games remaining on the schedule, four of them at Macdonald park here. They play the Thunderbirds Sunday at Portland.

★ ★ ★

Brauckman, 33, was an editor with The Canadian Press International News Service before resigning to become campaign manager for Evan Wolfe and Herb Capozzi in the Vancouver constituency during the recent election.

He served as reporter, sports writer and editor for various newspapers in B.C., including daily newspapers in Vancouver and Penticton, and weekly papers in Burnaby and elsewhere during the past six years.

A former jet pilot with service in Korea, Brauckmann received his education at Holy Cross College and Boston University in Massachusetts.

Surgenor Favored For Jalopy Crown

Seventy-five times around the Western Speedway circuit in jig time Saturday wwill bring one of 33 pilots the jalopy racing year's most coveted title.

The oval racing season hits the checkered flag with the Vancouver Island championship at the Speedway.

Ross Surgenor, points champion for the past two years, is favored to handle the challenges of other top-rated jalopy jockeys, including Bob Bissenden, Larry Walker and John Harris.

But perhaps due for a big win is Bisseneden, a driver who has been swallowing Surgenor's exhaust all this year and last.

Runner-up in 14 main events this year, Bissenden was second in the points race behind Surgenor the past two seasons.

In addition to the jalopy marathon, the Victoria Motor Sports Club will stage a sports car race during the program.

SENATE OKs GRID MERGER

The measure would permit the two professional leagues to proceed with their plans to combine into one league without fear the merger would subject them to anti - trust prosecution.

Goalby Six Under In Opening Round

EVERETT, Wash. (AP)—Bob Goalby of Belleville, Ill., found the Everett Country Club golf course to his liking Thursday when he started the $50,000 Seattle-Everett golf tournament with a record-cracking 65.

Refusing to flirt with danger on the ultra-narrow, tree-fringed fairways, Goalby used irons almost exclusively off the tees, pitched well and putted beautifully.

His six-under-par trip beat by a stroke the record set in 1963 by Seattle, Wash., amateur Tom Story in the Northwest Open.

Two players matched the former record. M. C. Pitts of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Homero Blancas of Texas, former national collegiate champion, each had 66s.

Defending champion Gay Brewer Jr. shot a 78.

Vancouver Has Job For John

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says John Prentice, manager of Scotland's national soccer team, is among those interviewed for the job of head coach of Vancouver's first-ever entry into the field of pro international soccer.

The morning paper says Prentice is due to fly to New York this weekend and will meet with Brig. Ted Eakins who is prominent in a group organizing the Vancouver team for the new North American soccer league.

* * *

The newspaper says Prentice will return here with Eakins following the New York talks and will stay several days.

Jeff Cross, the Province's soccer writer, says: "If he likes us—and we like him—he's our man. And the odds are on just that."

No salary terms for the head coach's job have been announced but the Province says the job would probably be worth between $12,000 and $14,000 a year.

The Grads won 18 Canadian women's basketball championships and four Olympic championships before disbanding in 1940, mainly due to a lack of opponents.

Other new members from Edmonton are William Rankin, a former quarterback of the Edmonton Eskimos football team and Canadian Olympic boxing contender in 1924;

Ross Sheppard, who represented Canada in the triple jump in the 1924 Olympics;

Clifford Manahan, former Alberta and Canadian curling champion;

The new members, bringing the hall's total to 32, will be honored at a banquet in Edmonton Saturday. A torch, a copy of the Olympic torch, will be lit on the city hall steps in Calgary Friday and brought to Edmonton by a team of runners operating in relays.

The ran, longest ever staged in Alberta, is expected to cover the 200-mile span in 30 hours, with the final runner carrying the torch to the banquet hall.

Arrived By Error, Stays to Play

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) Arkansas A. and M College offered Dale Reid of Bangor, Me. a work-study grant thinking he was a Negro.

Reid, 20, accepted, thinking the offer was from a white school.

* * *

When Reid arrived on the A and M campus, he realized a mistake had been made. He found himself one of only three white students among 2,000 Negroes.

His work-study grant called for him to teach gymnastics and help with intra-mural athletics but he intended all along to try out for the football team.

He didn't let the mistake change his plans.

"I thought at first I would just return home without trying out for the team," Reid said.

* * *

"But I realized that the whole thing was just a mix-up and I decided to stay and play. Now I'm really proud in a way to play on this team."

Reid, who weighs 180, plays halfback and linebacker.

Health Quest Now Science

By The Canadian Press

Western Football Conference coaches, accustomed to scanning their rosters for healthy players have elevated the search to a science this season.

Each WFC club has physical problems and each will play at least once between Saturday and Tuesday. Calgary Stampeders, Saskatchewan Roughriders and British Columbia Lions are scheduled for two appearances each.

The Stamps play at home Saturday against Edmonton Eskimos and at Winnipeg Tuesday against the Blue Bombers. B.C. visits Toronto Argonauts Sunday and Montreal Alouettes Tuesday in Canadian Football League interlocking games.

The Roughriders, who lead the WFC standings, play Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday and and Ottawa Rough Riders Monday.

Calgary plans several changes in its bid to narrow the gap between fourth place and its third - place rivals, Edmonton and Winnipeg.

KEELING TO START

Coach Jerry Williams said Jerry Keeling will start at quarterback for the second time this season with Pete Liske operating at safety on defence.

Linebacker Jerry Campbell, out with a leg injury, may be replaced by Fred Forsberg, a late cut by Denver Broncos, of the American Football League.

Saskatchewan coach Eagle Keys hopes lineman Dick Schnell and defensive back Dale West will be fit to play. Schnell has knee problems and West has dislocated his shoulder three times this season.

HOMER DOUBTFUL

Coach Dave Skrien of the Lions had two doubtful starters—flanker Sonny Homer, complaining of chest pains, and defensive tackle Mike Cacic who has an ankle injury.

Edmonton coach Neill Armstrong reports one major injury—Jim (Tee) Thomas, second-best ground gainer in the west who is nursing a charleyhorse. Art Johnson returns from the injured list to work at defensive halfback.

Winnipeg coach Bud Grant reported no new injuries after a 43-9 victory Wednesday over Toronto and said his club is looking forward to a playoff berth.

A victory over Calgary Tuesday would allow Winnipeg to aim at a first-place finish, he said.

Saskatchewan leads the league, with Edmonton and Winnipeg tied for second, four points ahead of Calgary. B.C. occupies the WFC basement.

Injuries Fatal

NEENAH, Wis. (AP) — Jim Hayes, 24, a defensive back for the West Allis Racers of the Central States Football League, died Thursday of head injuries suffered in a game at Manitowoc Saturday night.

CAUGHT IN POLICE RAID ON N.Y. RESTAURANT

13 Crime Bosses Held for Grand Jury Appearance

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York State Supreme Court justice today held 13 Cosa Nostra bosses on a total of $1,300,000 bail after their arrest Thursday in what was described as the biggest raid involving crime syndicate figures since the 1957 Appalachian conferfence.

Bail was set at $100,000 each for the 13, all listed as prominent members of the Cosa Nostra's national crime network by underworld informer Joseph Valachi.

Justice Joseph Conroy said the men were being held as material witnesses in the investigation of "major crimes" in Queens County. The group was remanded to civil jail when they were unable to post bond.

Chief Inspector Sanford Garelik, who directed the roundup Thursday, called it the most important since the gangland conference at Appalachian, N.Y., in 1957 was broken up by state police. Sixty top hoodlums and their friends were arrested then.

Thursday's raid came as the group was eating in a basement dining room at La Stella restaurant in Forest Hills, about 20 minutes from Manhattan by car.

Among those charged with consorting with known criminals are:

Thomas (Tommy Ryan) Eboli, once barred as a fight manager after punching a referee, and now top man in the family of imprisoned Brooklyn leader Vito Genovese, who is considered the syndicate's "boss of bosses."

Michael Miranda, a guest at the Appalachian meeting, and under-boss of a New York Cosa Nostra family.

Carlos Marcello of New Orleans, described in Senate testimony as the Mafia's southern chieftain.

Santo Trafficante, a Cosa Nostra bigshot in Florida and former head of rackets in pre-Castro Cuba.

Others arrested are Don Along and Aniello Della Croce, both of California; Frank Gagliano of New Orleans; Anthony Corallo of Louisiana and California; Joseph Marcello of Texas and Joseph Gallo of New Orleans.

Detectives said the purpose of the raid was to keep track of how the men relate to each other in importance within the underworld hierarchy. They did not speculate on the reason for the Forest Hills meeting.

Queens District Attorney Nat Hentel said he planned to subpoena the 13 to appear at a special grand jury session investigating the meeting.

Since Appalachian, there have been reports of smaller scale syndicate meetings—in Worcester, Mass., in 1959; in Toronto in 1960; in Atlantic City, N.J., and a new series in New York

'Relieve Boredom, Agitation'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A coroner's jury inquiring into the suicide of an Oakalla Prison Farm inmate recommended Wednesday night that urgent steps be taken to relieve boredom and agitation among inmates in the remand section.

The jury attached blame to no one in the hanging death of Joseph Bernier, 27, the third suicide in the prison in the last three weeks and the sixth this year.

The jury was told that Bernier had tried to kill himself last July 1 and again on Aug. 14, but was not recommended for psychiatric treatment.

Dr. William Kent, a part-time physician at the prison, testified that two doctors who examined Bernier after the suicide attempts said he was recovering and they did not feel he would try again.

Bernier left a note that said he was "sick to my stomach with all these suicides and slashings since I have been here."

Bernier was in the remand section awaiting an appeal on his four-year sentence last June for breaking, entering and theft charges. Habitual criminal proceedings were also under way.

Ever wonder why our '67 Isuzu Bellett costs 5% more than the biggest-selling economy car?

We admit it. Our Isuzu '67 Bellett De Luxe isn't the cheapest economy car you can buy.

It comes at $2,098* which is about 5% more than the biggest-selling economy car.

But if you think that 5% makes an Isuzu Bellett a bit too expensive, think about this:

The Isuzu Bellett has 4 doors. That's 100% more than the biggest-selling economy car.

The Isuzu Bellet has 71 horsepower. That's 42% more than the biggest-selling economy car.

The Isuzu Bellett weighs 2,050 lbs. That's 19% more than the biggest-selling economy car.

The Isuzu Bellett has 4 headlights. That's 100% more than the biggest-selling economy car.

The Isuzu Bellett has an engine in the front. Back-up lights.

Tinted windows all 'round. Rack and Pinion Steering. A locking gas cap. Full-length, deep-pile carpeting. And 2-speed wipers.

(We can't figure out a percentage on these because the biggest-selling economy car doesn't have them.)

When you think about it, maybe the new Isuzu Bellett should become the biggest-selling economy car.

Partial Text of Spence Report on Security Scandal

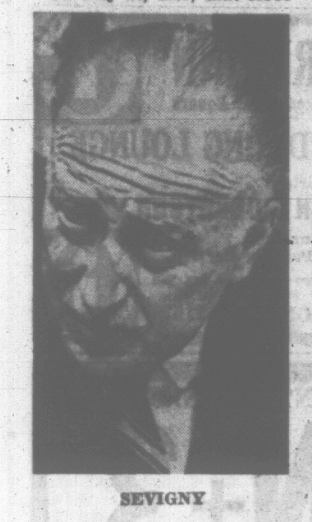
OTTAWA (CP) — Partial text of the report by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence on the Munsinger inquiry:

. . . My main task as commissioner is to determine whether "the case was handled in accordance with the rules and principles normally applicable to persons having access to classified information," although various other and related matters are also referred to this commission. . . .

Evidence was adduced to reveal a set of circumstances which may be very tersely, yet I believe accurately, be summarized as follows:

On June 28, 1960, one Gerda Munsinger applied to the Canadian citizenship court for Canadian citizenship. In accordance with the standard routine in such cases, her application was referred to the RCMP for security clearance.

On July 11, 1960, that force commenced its investigation of the applicant, which investigation culminated in the discovery that Gerda Munsinger had had such a checkered career and apparently had become associated with one or more members of the cabinet, that a report thereof reached the desk of the then prime minister, the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker.



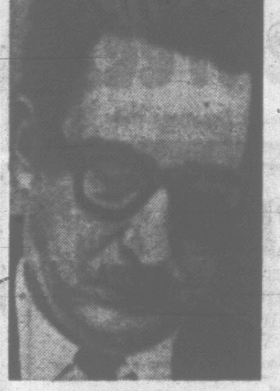
SEVIGNY

. . . The application for citizenship filed by Mrs. Munsinger disclosed that her maiden name was Gerda Heseler. Early in the RCMP investigation it was discovered that that name was the subject of a "warning card" showing that Gerda Meseler had been refused a visa for immigration to Canada in 1952.

Self-Admitted Espionage Agent

The investigation which had led up to that rejection disclosed that the then Miss Heseler was a self-admitted espionage agent and, moreover, that she had a record of convictions as a common prostitute, a petty thief and a smuggler. Such a record indicated that Gerda Heseler, as she then was, could very easily betray those who trusted her. . . .

Mrs. Munsinger's espionage activities, the RCMP reports reveal, had been of a minor character but had included contact over a considerable period with a major in the Russian intelligence service and the carrying out of several missions upon the latter's instructions.



CARDIN

There was no evidence that she had not carried out, with equal success, other more difficult missions.

Notwithstanding her previous rejection, Mrs. Munsinger gained entry to Canada in 1955, by the use of her married name. . . .

Following her arrival in Canada, Mrs. Munsinger was required to work as a domestic for one year, this having been a term of the grant to her of an assisted-passage loan. . . .

Paid Back Part of Loan

After her arrival in Canada, Mrs. Munsinger paid back a part only of the . . . loan . . . until November, 1960, when the fact that she had applied for citizenship permitted the immigration branch . . . to locate her and collect the balance. . . .

Mrs. Munsinger's application for citizenship revealed that, since her arrival in Canada in August, 1955, . . . she had visited Panama and Colombia from Nov. 8, 1958, to July 3, 1959, and during that time had visited Mexico. The application also indicated that she had visited West Germany during the weeks commencing on Jan. 8, 1958, and again from Feb. 8 to March 9, 1960.

Mrs. Munsinger was interviewed by the RCMP on Nov. 15 and Nov. 16, 1960, and was kept under very close surveillance from about that date until her final departure for Germany on Feb. 5, 1961.

From her interviews, and as a result of this surveillance, it was determined that Mrs. Munsinger had worked as a hostess and cashier at various night clubs in Montreal which were operated by well - known racketeers and persons who had some association with various operators in the narcotics racket.

She was, moreover, during this period engaged in an active career of prostitution and had as her companions, and apparent confidantes, other women in Montreal who were engaged in the same practice.

It appeared that Gerda Heseler had been born in that part of Germany which is now in the East sector. . . . Her father had been, prior to 1939, a teacher in the KPD school at Konigsberg. The initials KPD are an abbreviation for Kommunist Partische Deutschland, i.e., the German Communist party.

Married Soldier After Rejection

Following the rejection in 1952 of her application for entry into Canada, Gerda Heseler had married a United States Army sergeant named Michael Munsinger.

Her husband had returned to the United States shortly after the marriage but had failed to obtain the entry into the United States of his wife, although he had enlisted the support of a lawyer and a United States senator.

Michael Munsinger had then obtained a divorce from his wife in a court in Alabama on Oct. 14, 1954. . . .

Immediately upon her interview by the RCMP, and as a result of their observations thereafter, the RCMP were convinced that Mrs. Munsinger was having illicit sexual relations with Hon. Pierre Sevigny and, in their report, the RCMP described her as the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's "mistress."

This liaison between the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger was known to her fellow prostitutes and was the subject of some discussion amongst them.

It was also determined that Mrs. Munsinger was acquainted with Mr. Gaston Levesque, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's executive assistant, and that he had not only received messages and telephone calls from her for his minister but had intervened for her on several occasions in reference to her application for citizenship. . . .

Mrs. Munsinger had also boasted that she was acquainted with other cabinet ministers and had given the names of the Hon. George H. Hees and the Hon. Ellen Fairclough.

In discussion with a friend, she had stated that her application for employment in the Canadian embassy in Bonn would be furthered by the Hon. Mr. Hees. It should be noted that no trace of that application has been found and no trace of any connection therewith by the Hon. Mr. Hees has been found.

Bookkeeper For Building

The RCMP reports show that the office of a company, which had business associations with Soviet-bloc countries, was located in the same building in which Mrs. Munsinger resided in Montreal, and that Mrs. Munsinger had a part-time position as a bookkeeper for the building. This position would enable her to go from place to place within the building without question.

Much more detail was included in the RCMP reports and was also outlined in . . . Exhibit 20. . . .

Insofar as Exhibit 20 deals with matters known to the RCMP up to Dec. 7, 1960, such information was given on that day to the Hon. E. D. Fulton, then minister of justice, by the then commissioner of the RCMP, C. W. Harvison, and his deputy commissioner, J. B. McClellan. Such information was later reduced to a written report and that report delivered to the said minister on Dec. 12, 1960. . . .

The factor which precipitated the report by the two RCMP officers to their minister on Dec. 7, 1960, was that information had come from their staff in Montreal that Mrs. Munsinger's liaison with a cabinet minister was known to her questionable associates in Montreal and to the local police.

The RCMP officers, in their evidence, outlined three dangers to national security, which might have then existed:

(a) That Mrs. Munsinger might had been dispatched to Canada by Russian intelligence agents to carry out espionage work. The circumstance that no evidence had been uncovered to confirm this possibility by no means ruled it out.

HEES

(b) That, even if Mrs. Munsinger had come to Canada of her own volition and had intended to carry on as an ordinary immigrant, her past association with Russian espionage made her a likely subject for re-recruitment by them for resumption of such duties.

(c) That Mrs. Munsinger, and those who associated with her, were vulnerable to blackmail by underworld characters, particularly in Montreal, where her liaison with a prominent person was common knowledge in the underworld.

Immediately following the departure of the two RCMP officers from his office on Dec. 12 or 13, the Hon. Mr. Fulton arranged to see the then prime minister, the Rt. Hon. J. G. Diefenbaker, and . . . gave him a short oral report on the situation and left with him the report which had been left by the RCMP commissioner.

The following day, he returned to the prime minister's office. The Hon. Mr. Sevigny was summoned to the meeting, and upon questioning by the prime minister, according to the Hon. Mr. Fulton, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny denied any improper relations with Mrs. Munsinger.

Mistress Charge Denied

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny testified, however, that he did not deny that he had had a physical relationship with Mrs. Munsinger but merely kept silent, although he did deny to the prime minister that Mrs. Munsinger had been his "mistress" as she had been described in the RCMP report. . . .

The prime minister was, to quote the Hon. Mr. Fulton, "not interested in explanations" and told the Hon. Mr. Sevigny that he was concerned about the situation that had been created and that the relationship with Mrs. Munsinger must end and he be satisfied that no breach of security had occurred.

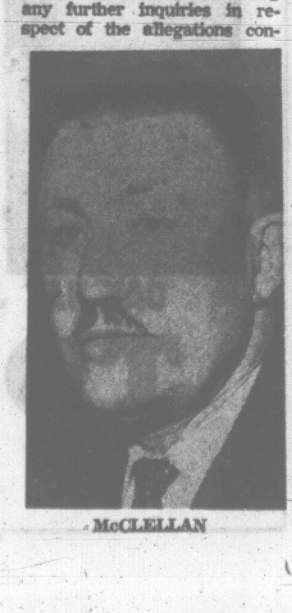
The Hon. Mr. Sevigny had stated that he did not understand why such a serious view was taken of the relationship since the Hon. Mr. George Hees knew her too.

The Hon. Mr. Fulton pointed out that the RCMP report had indicated that the Hon. Mr. Hees' relationship consisted of his seeing her in public on two occasions, unlike the much closer relationship the RCMP knew to exist between the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger.

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny told the prime minister that she was going to leave the country and that he was prepared to accept the prime minister's instructions to discontinue his relationship.

Until he reported the final departure of Mrs. Munsinger from Canada in February, 1961, the Hon. Mr. Fulton apparently did not discuss the matter further with the prime minister or with any other member of cabinet, except one unidentified member to whom he reported the situation so that someone else would have the date and circumstances in his mind if anything further came of it.

He did not recall making any further inquiries in respect of the allegations contained in the report, either from the RCMP or from other sources, nor did he . . . give any instructions to the department of citizenship and immigration. So far as he was aware, the prime minister did not take any further action either.



McCLELLAN

Mrs. Munsinger departed for Germany for a visit on Dec. 17, 1960, and returned to Canada . . . in January, 1961, only to make her final departure from the country on Feb. 5, 1961. This fact was, in due course, conveyed by the RCMP to the Hon. Mr. Fulton and through him to the prime minister.

Other testimony . . . showed that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny had, in September and October of 1960, through his executive assistant, made inquiries and representations on behalf of Mrs. Munsinger to the department of citizenship and immigration in connection with her application for citizenship.

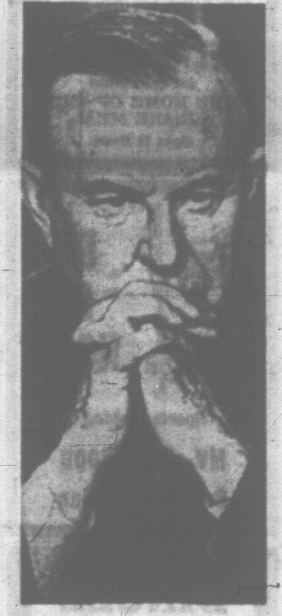
Staff Member Talked to Envoy

In addition, he admitted having had a member of his staff, in November, 1960, see the German consulate to attempt to obtain revalidation of Mrs. Munsinger's German passport.

He also admitted spending the night of Nov. 26 and 27 in her . . . apartment in Montreal, although he denied any impropriety since, through great fatigue, he had slept all night.

He had also seen her, together with Miss Jacqueline Delorme, in Montreal on Nov. 13, 1960, at which time he found her to be in a very bad physical and mental state, as was the case on his visit of Nov. 26, 1960.

Other reports indicate that her health was sufficiently robust that she was able to conduct a very active business in prostitution, had taken at least one trip to Ottawa, early in December went on a four-day trip to Western Canada with a male friend, took a three-week holiday trip to Europe later that month with yet another male friend, and generally led an extremely active round of social activities in Montreal. . . .



PEARSON

It was not until December, 1960, after the Hon. Mr. Sevigny saw the prime minister, that he instructed Mr. Levesque not to put any telephone calls from Mrs. Munsinger through to him. . . .

At the commencement of the session on May 18, Mr. C. F. H. Carson, QC, had announced that he and his co-counsel, Mr. C. L. Dubin, QC, and Mr. J. R. Houston, had been instructed by their clients, the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker and the E. D. Fulton, not to participate further in the hearings and to withdraw therefrom.

Deprived Of Submissions

This commission, therefore, regrettably was deprived of the opportunity to hear the submissions of these learned counsel. Such counsel, however, had participated fully in the proceedings of this commission prior to May 18, 1966. . . .

As I have already said, in my view, my main task as commissioner was to determine whether the proper decisions were made by the government of the day upon receipt of the reports of the RCMP.

It was clear from the evidence given by the Hon. E. D. Fulton that he accepted such reports at their face value and communicated them to the Right Hon. John G. Diefenbaker, the then prime minister, on the basis that they constituted a valid outline of the information available in the hands of the RCMP.

It will be seen, therefore, that the then prime minister was confronted with decisions as to whether there had been (a) a breach of security and-or (b) a security risk. . . .

For the purposes of this report, the word "security" must be understood to indicate the measures used to prevent, or at least hinder, the obtaining of classified information by persons who are agents of any foreign power or who are, or may be, in contact with such agents.

A "security breach," therefore, occurs when such persons are permitted to obtain such information.

A "security risk" on the other hand, is created when such persons might be able to obtain such information. . . .

I make the statement at once that there is no scintilla of evidence or any indication that there was any disloyalty involved in any of the circumstances which I have investigated . . .

Did Not Call For Review

Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker:

It was submitted in argument that, upon the presentation of the RCMP report, the then prime minister did not call for a complete review by his minister of justice or the latter's staff of the detailed reports upon which the brief, as the RCMP described it, was based.

It was also submitted that the then prime minister failed to order a continued and further investigation by the RCMP, under the guidance and direction of the law officers of the Crown, with the view of determining whether any security breach had occurred already or whether a situation which constituted a security risk existed. . . .

It was submitted that such continued investigation, and particularly a searching investigation of the relationship between the Hon. Pierre Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger during the months of 1960 following January, would have clearly indicated that the relationship had not been discontinued, except for a few casual occasions, as alleged by that minister, but that he was still in close and frequent touch and that, therefore, he told "less than the whole truth" to the then prime minister. . . .

Such investigation could only have resulted in the demand for his resignation. . . .

Continuing Security Risk

It was argued that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker did not seem to appreciate the continuing security risk posed by his retention of the Hon. Pierre Sevigny in his then cabinet post or any cabinet post. . . .

These dangers were both outlined to the Hon. E. D. Fulton by then commissioner Harvison, and the Hon. Mr. Fulton has testified that he alerted the then prime minister to such risks, who, nevertheless, seemed to conclude that it was sufficient to:

(a) Assure himself that no breach of security had occurred—and, in fact, all the RCMP could say was that they had no evidence whatsoever of it and that no further investigation had been ordered;

(b) Strictly forbid any further association by the Hon. Pierre Sevigny with Mrs. Munsinger.

This decision, he seemed to believe, was assisted by the prospect that Mrs. Munsinger was leaving Canada at an early date. The Hon. Mr. Fulton evidently regarded this as her decision to leave permanently.

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny has testified that he told the then prime minister that Mrs. Munsinger was preparing to leave the country in a permanent fashion. . . .

The memorandum on the citizenship file and the memorandum on the immigration file convince me, despite the Hon. Mr. Fulton's failure to remember, that in December, 1960, he knew Mrs. Munsinger intended to return to Canada—the first of these memos was previous to the conference of Dec. 12-13, 1960 with the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, and the second was made between Dec. 16 and 19, 1960.

. . . Even on the basis that he thought Mrs. Munsinger was leaving Canada permanently at an early date, was the forbidding of any continuance of the relationship between the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger sufficient to eliminate the security risk. . . .

It must be concluded that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker determined they were not, in fact, risks because of his personal assessment of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny as a person who would never permit pressure or blackmail to influence him.

Was the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker justified in this assessment of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny?

The Hon. Mr. Fulton has declared subsequent events vindicated the then prime minister.

Even if no security risk occurred thereafter as the result of the decision, surely that is not vindication. Doubt must always be resolved in favor of the "national security."

The cabinet directives make that plain, even in the case of a Crown servant in a much less sensitive area than any cabinet minister, let alone the associate minister of national defence.

Certainly the RCMP reports, which the Hon. Mr. Fulton says he accepted at their face value, raised doubt that such a risk existed and would, for the reasons outlined above, continue to exist after Mrs. Munsinger's departure.

The prime minister determined he could resolve that doubt in favor of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's retention in the cabinet on the basis of his personal assessment of the man.

But . . . even a check of the investigation reports which were the basis of the RCMP brief would have shown that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny was not telling the whole truth.

The minister had reacted badly under the pressure of the interview itself—had tried to claim he was no worse than a colleague, the Hon. George Hees, although he now admits he knew only of a very casual association between that minister and Mrs. Munsinger.

Moreover, and most important, was not the then prime minister too closely associated with the Hon. Mr. Sevigny to be able to make such a vital decision? . . .

Personal Decision

There is much merit in the argument submitted that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker should not have made a personal private decision on this most important question.

Cabinet solidarity and joint responsibility are real factors. The other members of the cabinet, in their everyday conduct of the nation's business, had to deal constantly with the Hon. Mr. Sevigny.

Surely it would have been only fair and proper, and wise as well, to consult them as to whether, in their opinion, that minister could continue in the cabinet without risk to the national security.

It may perhaps be conjectured that these other ministers would not have been content to make their decision on the basis of the RCMP brief and their personal acquaintance with the Hon. Mr. Sevigny, and would have insisted on a careful scrutiny of the reports which were the basis of that brief and on a further investigation as well.

It is significant that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker's decision was just to do nothing else but forbid the continued association. There was another alternative open to him. . . .

Consideration could have been given to appointing the Hon. Mr. Sevigny to a much less sensitive post.

A more dangerous cabinet position than that of national defence, from the point of view of espionage by enemy agents or information seeking by greedy racketeers, could hardly be imagined.

Given Post Not so Vital

Even if the decision could be made to retain the Hon. Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet, surely enough doubt lingered to justify, indeed demand, that he be moved to a cabinet post not so vital to the national security as that of associate minister of national defence.

It is difficult to understand how anyone could be retained in any cabinet post when the slightest doubt remained as to his reliability from the point of view of national security, as all ministers must have access to much classified information, but to retain him as associate minister of national defence under the circumstances would appear to have been most imprudent. . . .

Having left the Hon. Mr. Sevigny undisturbed in his portfolio as associate minister of national defence until his resignation Feb. 8, 1963, the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker refrained from even acquainting the senior minister in that department, the Hon. Douglas Harkness, of the security risk, for such I believe it was.

Even if the remainder of the cabinet need not be consulted or informed, it was, in my considered opinion, startling that the member of the cabinet chiefly responsible for the department of national defence should not have been informed of the situation.

FULTON

The Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker failed to inform the Hon. George Hees of the situation revealed in the RCMP brief. . . .

It would have been no less than ordinary prudence to have warned the Hon. Mr. Hees in what an invidious position even his past association with Mrs. Munsinger, no matter how casual it might have been, could place him, let alone what serious consequences might flow from a continuation or renewal of that association.

Not Improper In Character

I say this despite the fact that on all the evidence before this commission, the association between the Hon. George Hees and Mrs. Munsinger would appear to have been a casual one, not at all improper in character.

Indeed, the Hon. Mr. Hees himself, in his testimony, agreed that the information he later obtained, after this commission was created, would have precluded him from entering into even such a casual relationship.

There has been referred to this commission, by the provisions of the Privy Council order setting it up . . . what was said in the House of Commons on March 7, 1966.

At page 2299 of Hansard, the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker is reported as having said:

"Mr. Diefenbaker: Mr. Chairman, he thought by that—and the threat was made over and over again as to what they were going to do—that they were going to close our mouths.

"Let me make this statement unequivocally: In no case, and I am naturally bound by my oath as a privy councillor — which apparently did not apply to the minister of justice—was there ever any breach of security in this nation in any case referred to or conjured up by him.

"Secondly, there was no danger to national security and I will go into that tonight, in anything that took place."

This seems to be a most surprising statement in view of the uncontradicted evidence that the whole matter arose out of an investigation by the RCMP upon the subject of security, and the further fact that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker's own minister of justice admitted in his testimony that the report was concerned with a possible security risk ". . . a danger to national security," which the said minister of justice recognized.

It is, of course, to be regretted that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, did not see fit to appear before this commission and give me his testimony on this and many other subjects.

Accept Facts As Reported

The Hon. E. Davie Fulton:

It was submitted that the then minister of justice had not gone behind the RCMP brief to assure himself of the prima facie soundness of the allegations therein by checking the sources thereof. . . .

Mr. Fulton, in his evidence, has testified that "I accepted the correctness of the facts as they were reported to me."

"I made only one enquiry, as I think I told you; were they satisfied as to the accuracy of the allegations that they had made?"

It would seem to me that the action of the minister of justice in accepting the RCMP brief without verifying the conclusions contained therein was sufficient for the purpose of reporting to his prime minister, the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker. This reporting, with such promptness, is commendable.

It may well be that the Hon. Mr. Fulton should have given the most careful consideration to the RCMP reports which were the basis of their brief, or more properly have delivered them to the experienced law officers of Crown for such careful consideration in order to accomplish another and a very proper purpose.

The Hon. Mr. Fulton testified he inquired on several occasions whether there was any evidence of a breach of security for Canada and was informed that there was not.

Now officers of the RCMP are those charged with investigation in security matters and are the only skilled investigators who could make further investigation and reports on security matters.

RCMP Task: Fact-Finders

Any other information to the government would have to be submitted to them for confirmation. Their task, however, is that of fact-finders.

The evaluation of those facts in law and the testing as to whether all available facts have been properly investigated is the task of a skilled law officer.

I am of the opinion that the Hon. Mr. Fulton should not have been content to leave the question of whether there had been a breach of security, for instance any offence against the Official Secrets Act, to be determined only from the bare conclusion stated in the RCMP brief.

It must be remembered that the whole of the RCMP investigation up to the time the brief was handed to the Hon. Mr. Fulton was as to the past and present conduct of Mrs. Munsinger.

It is my certain view that the law officers would not be content with such a partial investigation and would not have agreed that there had been no breach of security—statement that there was up to then no evidence of such breach — without a complete investigation of the conduct of others than Mrs. Munsinger.

The duty of the prime ministers was to deal with the members of his cabinet and to determine, either alone where appropriate or in cabinet meeting, whether various of the members of it should so remain.

It was the duty of the minister of justice to determine by his own, or even better by his officers' careful consideration, whether any security offences had been committed.

Political Pressure

An example of a matter which certainly could have been the subject of further careful investigation and consideration was the statement . . . that Noel, the security officer of the Montreal shop which had caused Mrs. Munsinger's arrest on Feb. 3, 1961, reported that Montreal police had informed him that political pressure was being brought to bear on them for Mrs. Munsinger's release and that, if charges were pressed, an important political figure would be blackmailed.

This was one of the very types of danger to the national security which the RCMP feared.

The report indicated that an offence had been committed, not that one might be committed. There was certainly a duty to investigate further and, at that time, the sources of information were known and easily reached.

Yet I am not of the opinion that the RCMP, having reported to its minister, could have investigated further reports of political pressure and blackmail of an important political person without instructions from the minister of justice and these the Hon. Mr. Fulton did not give.

In my view, his direction to

Canadian Ballerina In 'Gallant' Effort

NEW YORK (CP) —Ballerina Sally Brayley of Halifax won praise for her "gallant" effort Thursday night in the ballet sequence of Ponchelli's grand opera La Gioconda, the second presentation of the Metropolitan Opera at its new home in Lincoln Center.

The opera was a colorful, long and lavish production complete with massive choruses, ballet and hit numbers for the principal singers, Renato Tebaldi and Franco Corelli.

Miss Brayley danced the Goddess of Night and Death in the Dance of the Hours.

Clive Barnes of the New York Times writes that Miss Brayley, now in her fifth season with the Met after a lengthy career with the National Ballet of Canada, was a victim of circumstance.

The ornate ballet sequence wasn't well-rehearsed, presumably because of last week's orchestra strike, and the costumes as well as the location of some of the scenery hampered the production. At one point in the ballet Miss Brayley almost fell.

Miss Brayley nevertheless was well received by the audience.

Barnes writes:

"Hampered by Beni Montrezor's costumes and ambushed by the steps of his scenery, Zachary Solov's pallidly conventional choreography looked painfully under-rehearsed . . . furthermore, while the ballerina Sally Brayley did a gallant best she was execrably partnered." Her partner was Bob Davis.

Last Friday Miss Brayley danced a lead in the spectacular opening of the Met in Antony and Cleopatra.

STUDENTS CHARGE:

'Teachers Make School Boring'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian teachers were accused Thursday of not keeping up with the times and creating in the schools a boring situation that resulted in an increasing number of dropouts.

The Canadian Education Association—for the first time in its 43-year history—decided to ask the students what was wrong with today's teaching.

Delegates to the annual convention heard the views of four British Columbia high school students, one from Edmonton and one from Nova Scotia.

Robert Hunka of Edmonton said:

"I think you'll find that students in 1966 are taught almost exactly the same way they were in the time of the Egyptians. They wrote things down, they memorized what they wrote—and they didn't learn a thing."

Gerald Ross of Sydney, N.S., said the basic reason now for remaining in school is help assure employment upon graduation. He said intellectual development should be placed ahead of a diploma.

STRESS CURRENT EVENTS

The students said current events should be stressed to liven up a dull curriculum.

"Today's teachers don't seem to want to face up to today's issues," said Jim McEwan of Vancouver. "A student has to be given some kind of motivation to want to learn."

One of the suggestions made by the students was course selection by a professional educationist board.

The students said co-ordination in education should be improved if the boredom in the school is to be solved.

'TIME HAS COME'

Dr. John Deutsch, chairman of Canada's Economic Council, told delegates:

"There is a general feeling that the time has come to take new and positive steps to bring about the necessary . . . co-operation between provinces, communities, educational authorities and teachers."

"The technology of education," said Dr. Deutsch, "must undergo a rigorous examination.

"There is a very great scope for co-operation and co-ordination of efforts at many levels in our greatly - decentralized system of education. There is a great scope for avoidance of waste and for more rapid progress."

He said achievement of the nation's economic goals will require a much larger investment in research by universities and private industry.

"In this country we have been lagging far too long," he said.

U of A Quits Student Union

EDMONTON (CP)—The University of Alberta has withdrawn from the Canadian Union of Students.

The decision came after three hours of debate during a students' council meeting. Members voted 12 to 4 in favor of withdrawal.

A spokesman said a referendum will be held March 3 during the general student election to give students an opportunity to vote themselves back into the national organization.

Branny Schepanovich, council president, said, "The decision was made on the principle that CUS cannot make representation on behalf of all students in Canada on international and national political issues."

LONDON (AP) — Fire destroyed an $85,000 chateau on a movie set Wednesday — three days before it should have happened before the cameras. The chateau was built for the movie The Dirty Dozen. The script called for it to be burned while full of German officers. No one was hurt.

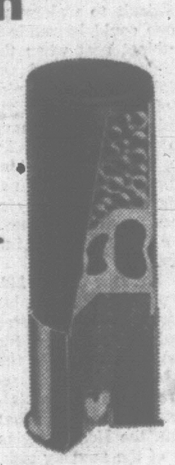
"Power Piston"



"Power Piston" puts up to 10% more knockdown power in the pattern of every Remington Shotgun shell. Here's why: The rounder the shot's kept, the more effective the pattern. Round shot travels straighter, travels farther, hits harder.

"Power Piston" helps keep the shot round . . . all the way to the target. It's that simple. "Power Piston" helps prevent pellets from flattening against the inside of the barrel. Prevents them from deforming against each other. Pellets start round, stay round. So more of them fly true. So more of them get out there where the target is.
Ask for Remington plastic shells with "Power Piston". They hit harder, yet cost no more. They're made in Canada and sold by your Authorized Remington Dealer.

Hanoi Receives Aid From Canadian Group

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — A Canadian group has given North Viet Nam $4,500 and a large quantity of medicines, the North Viet Nam news agency reported Thursday.

In a dispatch monitored here, the agency said the Canadian Aid for Viet Nam civilians donated the money and medicines as a gift to the Vietnamese people.

It said the chairman of the group, Dr. Alan M. Inglis, and his wife called on the North Viet Nam charge d'affaires in Moscow Tuesday. Inglis is clinical instructor in the department of surgery at the University of British Columbia.

"In this cordial meeting, the Canadian guest expressed the Canadian people's sympathy with and support for the Vietnamese people's just struggle against the U.S. imperialist aggressors," the agency said.

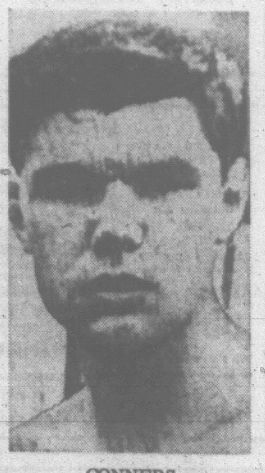
When Bullets Start Flying So Does He . . . Into a Hole

By PETER ARNETT



CONNERS
. . . freezes up

CU CHI, South Viet Nam (AP)—He stands six feet seven inches in his U.S. Army socks, weighs 220 pounds, and has the easy confidence of a football tackle until the bullets start flying.

Then Pfc. Edward T. Conners says, he forgets that a machine-gunner is the anchor man of his infantry suad. He forgets his rigorous training and military indoctrination. He bolts for the nearest hole or trench or anywhere else to escape the crackle of enemy fire.

"I freeze up. I can't face it out there," he says. "I am a liability to my squad."

Conner is 18. He joined the army at 16—to complete credit for a high school diploma and to support his wife and future daughter, now six months old. His father is a trucker in Kingsport, Tenn., and his mother a beautician.

Court-martialled by the 25th Ifantry Division, Conners pleaded guilty to willfully disobeying an officers order.

Conners wis dishonorably discharged and ordered to forfeit $50 a month, about a third of his pay. He wwill be shipped soon to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., to serve two years at hard labor.

He looked like an ideal soldier up to the morning of June 27, when he failed to fire his machine-gun to support the lead elements of his squad, under fire from Viet Cong guerrillas.

One of the squad was killed that day. Conners decided after two more night ambush patrols that he couldn't take it, and the wheels of military justice moved.

OPPOSE SEVERITY

Some of the officers who know Conners argue that the military board failed to understand the nuances of Conners' action. They feel he could have been moved to another job in the army without any fuss.

Others feel Conners got the least that he deserves.

Three weeks after arriving in South Viet Nam in January, Conners' platoon moved into action. Conners says: "I was scared. I couldn't fire my weapon. I thought it was just a normal reaction to the first time under fire. Then it kept recurring. I eventually realized that this feeling would never leave me."

The crisis came when the Viet Cong opened heavy fire. The squad leader yelled to Conners to move up with his machine-gun.

"I heard him shouting for me," Conners recalls. "I knew I was needed. But I couldn't get up there. I had hid in a Viet Cong tunnel. I didn't want to leave it.

"I'd do it again. I'm no good when those bullets fly. I'm sick or something."

More Planes Ordered To Replace Navy Loss

WASHINGTON (CP-AP)—The Johnson administration, faced with stronger ground opposition to bombing raids in Viet Nam, has ordered 280 additional warplanes in fiscal 1968 at a cost of $700,000,000.

Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara, announcing this Thursday, said most of the additional aircraft will go to the navy which he said has had a higher loss rate a mission in Viet Nam than originally expected.

McNamara claimed that thus far in Viet Nam the over-all aircraft loss rate is running "somewhat less than we estimated," but also noted that sorties have exceeded original estimates by five to 10 per cent.

Official figures show 505 U.S. planes have been downed to date, 383 in North Viet Nam.

In a statement, McNamara said the boost was estimated to be about 33 per cent over planned production.

The anndunced warplane procurement boost came a few hours after UN Ambassador Arthur Goldberg offered to halt the bombing of North Viet Nam targets in return for assurances of a "corresponding and appropriate de-escalation" by the Hanoi regime.

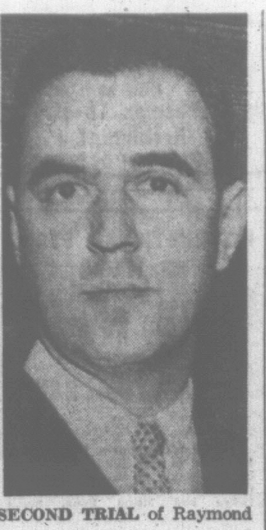
Asked whether the Pentagon announcement was the stick part of a "carrot-and-stick" manoeuvre, McNamara said "this relates to operations in South Viet Nam that were not affected by Goldberg's announcement."

Some observers noted, however, that much of the planned plane boost will go to the navy, which has not flown any attack missions in South Viet Nam since last year.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.



SECOND TRIAL of Raymond Denis, 33-year-old Montreal lawyer, will open in Ottawa, October 3. Former executive assistant to the immigration minister, Denis is charged with corruptly offering money to lawyer Pierre Lamontagne to have him drop opposition to bail for smuggler Lucien Rivard.

Voter List Available Official Tells NDP

TRAIL (CP) — Victor Arcuri, returning officer for Rossland-Trail, denied Thursday a charge by the New Democratic Party that an up-to-date voters list was not printed from Rossland-Trail until the day before the Sept. 12 provincial election.

The Rossland-Trail NDP Association said earlier it would take the complaint to the chief electoral officer. It also said it would give a report on a 19-year-old voter being turned away because the deputy returning officer did not know the voting regulations.

A spokesman for the association said the youth's name was on the voters' list.

"The registrar of voters had the list of voters out quite early — all they had to do was go to Rossland and pick them up," said Mr. Arcuri.

Bill Draper, registrar of voters, said the voters lists were available two weeks prior to the election. Liberals and Socreds both asked for and received 20 free copies and "the NDP could have had them but they never asked," he said.

Mr. Arcuri said all deputy returning officers and poll clerks were specifically instructed concerning 19-year-olds.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, SEPT. 23, 1966—PAGE 19

ARRIVAL of four baby boys, all less than a month old, and all adoptable, had Family and Children's Service social workers scurrying to find homes for them. Since no permanent homes have been found, all four are going to foster homes for maximum five-month period. Here foster parents Ann and William Greenhalgh, of 1682 Stellys Crossroad, hold foster child they will care for as three-year-old Jennifer Greenhalgh views the temporary family member. Other three babies in front await arrival of their foster parents. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Four Babies Trying Out New Parents

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

A young Victoria couple brought home a new baby Thursday to join their three-year-old girl and their boy, six.

But the baby, a boy, didn't make the usual trip from hospital to home.

Instead, he stopped halfway at the city welfare centre on Cook Street, where his new parents, William and Ann Greenhalgh, received last minute tips from social workers of the Family and Children's Service.

●

For they are his foster parents, and the baby is just theirs for a short time, five months at the most.

Besides the Greenhalgh's baby, three others, all less than a month old, all boys, were waiting at the centre for their foster parents.

Social worker Mrs. Olive Hatter, who is in charge of adoption placements for the Family and Children's Service, explained that it's rare that four babies, all adoptable, should arrive at once with no permanent homes waiting for them.

But since the beginning of the year 20 adoptable babies have come through the agency, including the four babies sent to foster homes Thursday.

For William Greenhalgh, a janitor at the Queen Alexandra Solarium, and his wife, their foster baby is a first.

And although the addition may take "a lot of adjusting," said Mrs. Greenhalgh with a smile, he's expected to fit into their family life nicely for the length of his stay.

The three other babies will go to foster parents who are a cross section of ones the Family and Children's Service accepts.

●

One goes to a widow who has three children of her own plus a "permanent" foster child, one who for various reasons cannot be adopted.

Another baby will find a home with a family which numbers three children and has already had one foster baby in their midst.

An older couple, in their 60s, with their own children married, will provide a foster home for the last baby.

But the big question is where will these babies go later? Foster homes are only temporary. Who will adopt them for ever?

It's the question that plagues Mrs. Hatter and other social workers year in, year out.

Prospective parents for a child are of course screened carefully by the agency, and much thought is given each case before a child will be placed permanently in a new home.

But the requirements, as Mrs. Hatter outlined them, are less strict than many people think.

For instance, there is no minimum income that a family must have before it can adopt a child.

●

"Just as long as they can manage" with an extra mouth to feed, they qualify.

A separate bedroom for the child isn't necessary either.

"We place a large number of babies in homes of service personnel," said Mrs. Hatter. "The adoption can be completed in another province if the family is transferred."

Because an unwed mother is more likely to keep a girl than a boy, "we have homes waiting for baby girls, but not for baby boys."

Consequently there is a one-year waiting period to adopt a girl, but for a baby boy the placement will be made almost as soon as a home is accepted by the agency.

Adopting parents must be at least 21, but babies are now being placed with couples up to 40 or 45 years old, said Mrs. Hatter, an increase on the age accepted for adopting parents previously.

Often, she said, babies are placed with older couples who may have been married later than most.

●

The four babies who left hospital Thursday may stay with their foster parents until the end of February at the latest.

Mrs. Hatter and other social workers have until then to find people who want these babies permanently.

Supreme Court Fight Due Over Buttle Lake

With more sound than fury, summer 1966 packed up, had a good cry and left for good.

The thunderstorm that lit Victoria skies Thursday leaving a third of an inch of rain, some fallen trees, and fields full of frightened livestock, ended just a few hours before autumn began.

The new season came in at 4:43 a.m.—two days later than usual, because of changes in the heavens.

Lower Island police departments report the two-hour storm did little damage beyond felling one tree at Swartz Bay, another at Sooke, and causing TV interference.

B.C. Hydro says it "got off lightly."

The one emergency crew it sent out "wasn't doing much more than chasing rainbows," said a spokesman.

RARE HERE

Victoria weather office said that while thunderstorms as spectacular as Thursday are rare here, other cities have them every month.

A weatherman said it can rain as much as four inches in six hours on Vancouver Island's west coast.

Early fall will be much like late summer—a little sun here, a little cloud there, and possibly rain on the weekend.

Injunction Sought By Island Group

The troubled waters of Buttle Lake reached boiling point today as the final clash between conservationists and mining interests drew near.

While conservationists lashed the decision to allow Western Mines to dump tailings in Buttle Lake, lawyers were preparing an appeal for an injunction against any dumping by the mine.

Said lawyer Anthony Sarich of Campbell River today: "We should know by Thursday or Friday whether the B.C. Supreme Court will grant an injunction.

"If the court doesn't allow the appeal, I have instructions to take the matter to the Supreme Court of Canada."

Mr. Sarich is representing Greater Campbell River Water District, chief opponents of the mine dumping. The district receives it's water supply from the lake.

COMMITTEE

Following the granting of a dumping permit to the mine by the provincial Pollution Control Board, Campbell River Chamber of Commerce Thursday night set up a special committee to publicize the controversial issue.

Granting of an injunction will leave two courses open to the water district.

It can appeal to the cabinet to rescind Western's permit.

Or apply for a Crown Office writ in which case the hearing would be held before a Supreme Court judge.

Either course, if successful, would prevent what opponents refer to as "pollution" of the beautiful lake in Strathcona Park, west of Campbell River.

NO HEARING

Conservationists and lawyers are upset that no public hearing was called before the permit was granted.

Said Mr. Sarich: "We had hired skilled personnel of the B.C. Research Council to help prepare our case.

In Victoria, Oak Bay Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane, who has opposed desecration of provincial parks in the legislature, called for a full review of the case at cabinet level.

MORE SUPPORT

Backing him up was New Democratic leader Robert Strachan who stated:

"This is only the beginning and I hope the public reaction against this final act (of desecration) will be of such magnitude that the government will have to reverse itself and change its position.

Howard Paish, executive director of B.C. Wildlife Service said: "The Pollution Control Board had its hands tied from the start.

"It's deplorable the way the politicians put the civil servants in this position."

"The whole thing is a complete and utter farce. The government's decision was ridiculous. There is a total lack of resource planning and resource management."

While the official guns await the decision of the legal machine, a number of unofficial guns have been brought to play.

VILLAGE COMMISSIONER

One of these is village commissioner Ken Forde, an outspoken Campbell River garage owner, who is circulating his own petitions.

By the beginning of next month he hopes to have 2,000 petitions completed with some 35 names on each.

The company has promised to dump the waste at a depth of 130 feet some 30 miles from where Campbell River draws its water and apparently has convinced the pollution control board that adequate precautions would be taken to ensure no pollution.

In an official statement Thursday, the board said:

"It is expected that the wastes will be rendered harmless at disposal; however, should there be evidence of a rising level to any harmful amount of any matters disposed of, the board will, by conditions of its permits, require Western Mines to remedy the situation."

The company has further promised to police the dumping operation and file regular reports to the Pollution Control Board.

HIGHWAY CRASHES KILL 2

Two Victorians met death in mainland traffic accidents Thursday.

Dead are Hugh Alfred Fletcher, 51, of 4271 Douglas, and Robert Johnstone Luney, 44, whose parents live in Oak Bay.

Mr. Fletcher died in a fiery two-car head-on collision near Salmon Arm at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in which a Salmon Arm girl was also killed and three persons were injured.

Injured were Mrs. Elizabeth Fletcher, in serious condition in Salmon Arm Hospital, and a Salmon Arm mother and her eight-year-old child.

Mr. Fletcher is survived by the widow, a son, Jan Patrick, 15; his mother, Mrs. A. Petrini, of 637 Dominion Road, and a brother, Pat Fletcher, a Montreal golf professional.

Mr. Luney died in a car crash nine miles west of Hudson's Hope shortly after midnight Thursday morning.

A passenger was also injured.

Mr. Luney is survived by Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Luney of 1178 Beach Drive, and two brothers, William Luney of 3905 Persimmon Drive and Gordon Luney of 2595 Arbutus Drive, and a sister, Mrs. Doreen Foster of Dartmouth, N.S.

UBCM Delegates Quiz Campbell on Remarks

By JIM HUME

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell was challenged this morning to make clear his stand on 19 proposed changes in the Municipal Act.

The challenge came from Mayor Bill Rathie, Vancouver, and Ald. Michael Griffin of Victoria on the last day of the 63rd convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at Penticton.

Ald. Griffin said he understood the minister had stated to the Victoria Times that he was opposed to all 19 recommendations proposing major changes in the existing act. (See earlier story on Page 6.)

Mayor Rathie said that if the statement was true the minister should be asked to give an accounting.

Mr. Campbell, out of the convention hall at the time, was hurriedly called to the platform.

ANSWER: NO

"I understand the question is 'Am I opposed to all the recommendations placed before the convention earlier' ", he said, "The answer is no.

"I have discussed this question with the reporter from the Victoria Times this morning and there is apparently a difference of opinion on what I said, which one comes to expect in public life.

"My department is neither the protagonist nor the antagonist of these recommendations."

Mr. Campbell said the recommendations, presented for an expression of opinion from the convention, would be studied further and would also be taken to the people of the province for an expression of their point of view.

"At this time we do not take a position either way," he said.

Ald. Griffin had one further question.

"Did you or did you not make the statement attributed to you in the Times?"

"I did not," answered Mr. Campbell. "I have already explained that I have talked with the reporter and there is a difference of opinion."

Thursday in an interview outside the convention hall Mr. Campbell said wide open shopping hours, one of the recommendations endorsed by the convention, "hasn't a hope of becoming law."

Asked if he was against wide open store hours Mr. Campbell replied "I am against every one of them," pointing to the list of 19 recommendations.

The quote was repeated to him and he was told that it would be used. He replied "Go ahead."

This morning, prior to the opening of the final session, he said he had obviously been misunderstood and made the statement he later repeated to the 1,100 delegates.

PATIENT INJURED IN CRASH

A Comox airman remains critically ill today after an ambulance rushing him to Victoria Thursday crashed with a car and overturned.

Leading Aircraftsman Norman Lambly suffered chest injuries in the collision at Admirals and Craigflower about suppertime.

A suspected appendicitis case, he was being rushed to the Canadian Forces Base hospital at Esquimalt for possible surgery.

Drivers of the car and ambulance received only minor injuries in the crash which caused $1,000 damage.

Reeve Adamson of Sidney, the ambulance driver and PO Roy Miller spent the night at the military hospital after being "badly shaken up."

The driver of the car, Norma Lohbrunner of Cogan Road, was released after treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

LAC Lambly was first taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital and later transferred to CFB Hospital. He had been flown to Victoria airport from the Comox base. A navy spokesman said the injured man's wife arrived in Victoria early today.

Expo Statement Brings Denial

The Greater Victoria Schools Band will not represent Vancouver Island at Expo '67 as reported Thursday.

The band had earlier planned to make the trip to the fair, but the plans were cancelled some time ago.

Expo directors, apparently unaware of the cancellation of plans, announced in error that the band would go to Montreal.

Auction After Show

The Esquimalt Garden Club fall show at Jubilee Hall on Fraser Street will be opened Saturday from 2 to 7 p.m. There will be an auction at 7 p.m. of the vegetables and flowers.

STORE HOURS CONTROVERSY

'UBCM Passing the Buck'

Municipal leaders were criticized today for wanting to opt out of administration and control of store hours.

The chairman of the retail group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Lloyd Davies, called the action "buck-passing" and a backward step.

John Nicol, a Victoria Labour Council delegate and member of a labor-merchant committee on store hours, commented:

"The whole issue can be summed up as a sick business world, a sick group of municipal leaders, business leaders and the community at large."

At the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention Thursday, the 1,100 delegates passed the resolution in less than two minutes.

Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Everett Brown said if the legislature endorses the resolution "it means as Reeve Emmott (of Burnaby) said that there will be no governing body to restrict or govern store hours in the future."

Mr. Davies said regulating store hours is a regional matter because each city has its own set of problems.

For example, Victoria was oriented towards tourism but this was not the case with Fraser Valley communities.

It would be unfair if the government set regulations for the whole province because the problems of each community differed.

Vancouver has its own charter and could do what it wants and this may lead other cities to requesting charters.

Mr. Nicol said probably it is not realized fully what effect bylaws can have on the retail industry at large.

But in the United States "the small man will soon become either extinct or a servant of the large corporations."

Mr. Nicol said there are no regulations in B.C. requiring stores or employees to have statutory holidays as a day of rest.

IT'S AN OLD SAW that campus cut-ups need for annual Community Chest Log Saw at Clover Point Saturday. Uvic students need chain saws and 200 feet of tug-of-war rope for attack on driftwood for sale as firewood to motorists. Shown practising for event are Frosh Queen candidates (left to right): Susan Fowler, Santosh Pallan, Sherry Cox, Bette Shuwell, Joan Robarts, Julie Mannin and Denise Forrest. Action is scheduled to start at 11 a.m.

EVERYTHING TURNS UP ROSES FOR 'FLOWER'

A strayed skunk has been returned to her owners, Mr. and Mrs. C. Blahitka, 4160 Carey, after her photo appeared in Wednesday's Times.

The SPCA knew her as Lotus Blossom. But to the Blahitkas, newcomers from Rainy River, Ont., she was just plain Flower.

Flower, or Lotus Blossom's big adventure began when she wandered from the Blahitkas' new home several weeks ago, and ended with a TV appearance Thursday.

SPCA officials were certain all along that she was someone's pet because she was deodorized, and because skunks are not native to the Island.

But several other owners of strayed skunks, both male and female, called in to see if Flower was theirs, so "it looks like we're going to have a skunk population after all," concluded one official.

Ask The Times

Q. What was the program at the Stratford, Ontario, festival this year? P.N.

A. Program for 1966 was Shakespeare plays, Henry VI trilogy, Henry V and Twelfth Night; Strindberg's The Dance of Death; a ballet, Rose Latulippe; a Mozart opera, Don Giovanni, and a new play, the Last of the Tsars. Stratford also offered 13 classical concerts, two jazz concerts, two art exhibitions and two seminars.

There may be no camp-fire or mud oven handy, but the sourdough biscuits that Mrs. Gilbert Brown makes in the kitchen of her Central Avenue home would draw nods of approval from any Barkerville ghost.

If Biscuits Are Any Criterion

THEY ATE LIKE KINGS

By PAT DUFOUR

Boy, who said that the Barkerville pioneers had it tough? After tasting sourdough biscuits cooked by Mrs Gilbert Brown this week, I'm willing to bet that those lusty old miners ate better than a lot of us!

Why pick on Barkerville? Because the culture which forms the base of Mrs. Brown's delicacies was started in the Cariboo 75 years ago. Divided many times in the Kettle Valley, the culture eventually found its way into several Victoria homes. Mrs. Brown's culture which she feeds and keeps in her refrigerator, has often been split and parts sent to such faraway places as Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Portland.

Dying to satisfy my curiosity and, at the same time, hating to show my ignorance, I asked Mrs. Brown how you go about feeding a culture.

"It's very easy," she said. "Twice a week you add one cup flour, one cup milk and a quarter cup of sugar."

Anticipating myself being chained to the house feeding an ever-growing problem child, I asked her what happened when you want to go on holiday. I was relieved to find that you can pop it into a freezer until you're ready to start the feeding process all over again. Must say, culture sounds easier to look after than African violets!

Still dithering in my ignorance, I was relieved when Mrs. Brown forestalled my next question and brought out an old pioneer cook book which tells how to make the culture. I print the recipe in its entirety.

"Two or three days before setting out on the trail, make your starter. Soak yeast in ½ cup warm water. Make a batter of four cups of flour, ½ cup of sugar and warm water. Add the soaked yeast. Let this work for two or three days. Carry this in a covered lard pail on a pack horse or tied to the side of the wagon box.

"On making camp, remove two cups of starter and set aside for future use. Work up again as before. To the rest (about four cups), add four cups of flour, one to two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and water to make a dough. Let this rise in the dishpan in the warmth of the campfire. Work down and divide into portions to suit the lard pails, gold pans or whatever there is to bake in. Let rise double in bulk. Set the lids on securely or invert a second gold pan over the first. Bury in a pit of campfire coals or a mud oven, preferably, to bake."

Sounds simple, doesn't it? The only difference in these and the ones that Mrs. Brown makes is the addition of some shortening and soda. Believe me, I thought that sourdough would stick to my teeth like hard tack. On the contrary, they're light as air, a positive menace to the willpower of someone watching the calorie count!

It's a good job that Mrs. Brown is a well-organized homemaker. She has a mammoth task ahead of her. Friends have prevailed on her good instincts and she's going to make a veritable mountain of her biscuits for a coffee party and tea, to be given by the Victoria branch of the World Federalists of Canada.

The parties will be held in the Douglas Room of The Bay on Friday, Oct. 7, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. under the convenership of Mrs. George Pears. Mrs. Brown is in charge of the coffee party and Mrs. R. Scholefield will convene afternoon tea.

The pioneers may have been tempted to call it "horse-trading" but would be just as happy as their descendants with the treasures that will go on sale at both affairs. There'll be stalls of "treasures," plants, flowers and sewing. Stall conveners are Mrs. I. R. Burrows, Mrs. O. Peace and Mrs. E. Gould. Mrs. R. Edmonds is in charge of publicity.

There may even be some unexpected guests at the parties. Who knows, a few friendly ghosts may drop in to finger and evaluate the patchwork quilts, made by Victoria women, that will form a colorful and unusual display!

If they do, you needn't be afraid. One taste of those butter-laden scrumptious biscuits is guaranteed to have any guest, ethereal or otherwise, in the best of humor.

Change of Date

The Women's Auxiliary to Trafalgar Branch No. 42, Royal Canadian Legion rummage sale, originally slated to be held on September 24, will be held instead on Monday, October 24. The location will be the Broad Street hall.

SHOPPING GUIDE

All-Vegetable 'Meat' Adds Zest to Meals

By Penny Saver

Never go shopping when you're tired. The strangest things can happen. I walked into a food shop the other day that was very unusual indeed. I looked at some of the canned foods and snickered—at first I thought it was all a joke. Other shoppers looked at me as if I was delirious from lack of food—either that or I was stark raving mad! I was sure that there were errors printed on the labels. I had to try some of these foods before I believed the labels.

The first food I tried was canned sausages. Instructions said that these could be broiled, barbecued or roasted over an open fire. Fry them, it went on, and serve with scrambled eggs, omelets or waffles for breakfast. The unbelievable part was that these sausages are completely meatless.

They contain wheat protein, rusk, mixed nuts, vegetable oils and seasoning. For picnics, these can be eaten cold or in salads. Price is $1.05 the 15-ounce can.

There is nothing quite like a steak dinner to pamper the tastebuds. Try steaks that don't even have a trace of animal in them. These contain wheat protein, tomato, onion and caramel.

Dip them in an egg batter, sprinkle with bread crumbs and fry in deep fat until they're golden brown. The resulting steak fritters are deliciously different.

Bake them in the oven and baste with the gravy in the can. Serve with fried onion rings.

These meatless steaks sell for 92 cents the 16-ounce can.

The old family favorite for busy days or barbecue feasts, the hamburger, comes in the meatless variety too. Heat and eat as a snack in the form of a quick, nourishing sandwich. These burgers add zest to cold plate luncheons and put a delightful new flavor into casserole dishes. Dress up leftovers by adding all-vegetable burgers. The 19-ounce can sells for 84 cents.

Try these meatless dishes. If you want to know where Penny shopped give her a call at 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

What Can You Do About Brown Spots on Hands?

Lowman

Q. Is there anything I can do about brown spots on my hands? What causes them? Are they from old age? I am only 53 and lots of women older than I am do not have any. I didn't have any, or they weren't very noticeable until just recently. How could they appear all of a sudden? What can I do?

A. I don't think anyone knows exactly what causes these except that it is a recognized fact that exposure to sunlight encourages them, to say the [illegible] You have probably been in the sun a lot this summer, and that is what made them pop out. Some women seem more prone to this change in skin pigmentation than others. However, if you will notice the women who do not have them I think you will find that they are not sun worshippers or outdoor folks, or if they are, they have protected their hands with creams and gloves.

Bleaching creams may help some. So will the measures I have mentioned above. These can be removed by a skin specialist.

Q. I have very dark hair and a very fair complexion. Therefore, the hair on my arms is very embarrassing. I don't have so much hair, but it is so dark that everyone notices it. What should I do, bleach it?

A. Since you are not heavily haired, you might try this. Apply peroxide to the hairs several times a week. Let it dry and then rinse it off. Or you might try mixing three tablespoons of peroxide with four drops of household ammonia. Pat this on with cotton and let it dry. Of course you can always remove the hairs with a depilatory or by shaving. You can have the hairs removed permanently with electrolysis.

Q. I don't have eye trouble. I have had my eyes examined professionally and have the correct glasses, but my eyes just feel tired after doing close work. Are there any restful exercises I could take?

A. Yes. Close the eyes and squeeze the lids together. Open the eyes widely. Squeeze. Open. Do this several times. The following routine is also most restful. Lie down for a few minutes. Close your eyes and put cotton pads over the lids. The pads should first be dipped in ice-cold water and then wrung out. Redip and reapply the cold pads several times, when they begin to warm up.

Attend Parties Here and in California

COUPLE CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary a little early, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Dawson will be guests of honor when Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Christopher (the former Helen Dawson) entertain at a dinner for family and friends in the Union Club this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson were married on October 19, 1916, in the home of Mrs. Dawson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Blennerhassett at Fort William, Ont.

The anniversary dinner will be held this evening so that Victoria friends may celebrate with the Dawsons, who leave next month for their winter home near Palm Springs.

Covers will be laid for 16 at this evening's dinner. Guests will include the honor couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. A. Dawson of Long Beach, Calif.; Mr. Dawson's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Dawson of White Rock; the Dawson's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Christopher of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wills, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Campbell, Major Stanley O'Kell and Mrs. O'Kell.

The honor couple has another son, George Andrew, now living in Vancouver; five grandsons and one granddaughter.

Last Sunday afternoon, a party was held in the honor couple's apartment at Bickerton Court, Douglas Street. The affair was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. George Dawson of Vancouver. A special guest was the mother of Mr. Dawson Sr., Mrs. Annie Dawson, who is 97½ years of age.

The Dawsons will be feted on the day of their anniversary in the south. Mrs. Dawson's sister, Mrs. P. C. Poulton, Mr. Frederick Thornes, both of Rialto, Calif., and the couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. A. Dawson, have planned a party in their honor.

Tomorrow evening, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Dawson will hold a dessert party in the Beach Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Weston when friends and relatives of the family will gather to celebrate the coming anniversary.

Mr. Dawson Sr. owned the Ford agency in Fort William and Port Arthur for several years. Because of ill health, he moved to Victoria in 1923. They lived in the family home at 10 Douglas Street, which he built, for 31 years.

He owned and operated the Victoria Credit Bureau and is well known for his community work, having been treasurer for the YMCA for five years and on the special names committee for several Community Chest drives.

His wife is an active member of First United Church Women, Red Cross, and the PEO.

On selling the old family home on Douglas Street 13 years ago, the Dawsons retired to a home in the desert, seven miles from Palm Springs.

Three years ago, they decided that Victoria was still very much their home and moved back, reducing their stays in California to winter holidays.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Patience, Kindness Is Only Answer

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. I hate to be hugged and kissed by my relatives. If I tell them to quit they might think I am a hateful child. My Uncle Joe has rough whiskers and my Aunt Alice sits with her arm around me, which is very uncomfortable. How can I tell them in a nice way to stop?

SQUASHED

DEAR SQUASHED: There is no "nice" way to tell people who have an honest affection for you to stop showing it. (Besides aunts and uncles wouldn't remember anyway.) We have all had Aunt Alices and Uncle Joes in our pasts, and have survived. And so will you honey. So be patient and kind. (And escape at the earliest possible moment.)

DEAR ABBY: Our son and his fiancee recently broke their engagement. The girl not only returned the ring, but she piled into a box all the gifts our son had given her during their courtship and left it on our porch. Everything was worn out, battered and beat up. An old pair of beach clogs, with matching grass hat and tote bag (pretty when new, but now rummage), several stuffed animals, his picture, badly abused, some used books, half a bottle of cologne, etc.

But she kept a sterling silver bud vase which had been in my family for years—a genuine antique, which meant a lot to me. Will you please spell out WHAT a girl should keep and what she should return, should the engagement be broken. What do you think of this girl?

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: All items based on the engagement should be returned. This includes gifts intended for use by the couple after their marriage as well as all heirlooms. To return used and useless gifts shows contempt and poor taste. Your son was lucky he didn't get the girl.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a fellow who says he loves me very much. He knows I will not go all the way because we have fought over this several times. I told him I wasn't going to change my mind, but he still tries to break down my resistance.

Abby, I really like him, but if he continues to act the way he has been, I don't know what I'll do. How can I get around this without losing him?

BATTLING

DEAR BATTLING: Let's get one thing straight. A fellow who loves a girl does not encourage her to do something that is immoral. If you lose him, you'll be lucky. Hold out for orange blossoms, honey. He's offering you poison ivy.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HAVE GROUNDS?" You had better see your lawyer about an annulment. If you did not know before your marriage that your husband was a homosexual, your state might grant you an annulment, which might be preferable to a divorce. Laws differ from state to state, however. Your lawyer can advise you as to your best course of action.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Membership Party

The clubhouse of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club was the setting when the Engineers' Wives' Association of Victoria opened the new season with a membership coffee party, Thursday. Program and social conveners, Mrs. J. Hvozdanski and Mrs. D. A. Shaw, were in charge of arrangements.

Members and prospective members were welcomed by president Mrs. W. E. Rolls and vice-president Mrs. R. D. Bennett.

Presiding at the head table were Mrs. A. B. Sanderson, Mrs. R. C. Thurber, Mrs. K. Dixon, Mrs. R. A Upward, Mrs D. A. MacLean, Mrs. F. D. Laronde and honorary life member Mrs. A. L. Carruthers.

An outline of interest groups was given and members were asked to indicate their choice.

A large number of friends gathered in the Fulford Harbor home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Akerman for a shower, given to honor their daughter, Mrs. Dale Cook, the former Catherine Akerman. The Salt Spring Island party was given by Mrs. Beverly Gibson and Mrs. Ray Simard. Corsages were presented to the honor guest, her mother and the groom's mother, Mrs. Nick Cook, Duncan. The latter and the honor guest's sister, Mrs. Tim O'Donnell, assisted the bride in opening her gifts. Refreshments were served and included a decorated cake, which was cut by the new Mrs. Cook.

Visits Parents

Mr. William McGrath, the well-known ballet dancer who received his initial training at Wynne Shaw's Dance Studio, left Victoria, Tuesday, with his wife and their five-year-old son, Dean, after spending the past five weeks visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGrath of Wordsworth Street. The visitors are now on their way to England, Japan and Greece as part of a world tour they are making before returning to Sydney, Australia, where Mr. McGrath is a television dancing star and choreographer. Before leaving Canada, he appeared on television shows produced in Vancouver and Toronto.

Entertains Niece

A corsage containing a pink rosebud and white chrysanthemum was presented to bride-elect Miss Patricia Hundleby when her aunt, Mrs. Maurice A. Hundleby gave a shower in her Eastdowne Road home. Yellow chrysanthemums en corsage were presented to the honor guest's mother, Mrs. L. Roy Hundelby; her grandmother, Mrs. Fred Emery, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Virginia McClung. Gifts were in a decorated laundry basket. Games were played and refreshments served. Also invited were Mrs. Douglas Sparling, Mrs. Jack MacIntosh, Mrs. Fred Atkin, Mrs. Jack Squire, Mrs. Conrad Vennberg, Mrs. Norman Parfitt, Mrs. George Gardner, Mrs. Arthur Cook, Mrs. Ernest Emery, Mrs. William Vanderlinde, Mrs. George Storrie, Mrs. William Hanson, Mrs. Russell Fitzsimmons, the Misses Frances Sand, Sandra and Diane Gardner.

. . . PARTIAL TEXT OF SPENCE REPORT

he kept informed generally, was not sufficient. . . .

I am not of the opinion that the Hon. Mr. Fulton can be criticized for taking the stand that, not only was the decision of whether or or not to retain the Hon. Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet that of the then prime minister, but that the decision to do so without further investigation was also his.

In my view, it would have been improper for the Hon. Mr. Fulton, without the then prime minister's instructions or approval, to have instituted a further investigation as to the continuing security risk. I have already commented on the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker's decision.

Should the Hon. Mr. Fulton have insisted that the whole matter be canvassed in cabinet, or at least that the Hon. Messrs. Harkness and Hees be informed and, failing in having either of these suggestions accepted, have resigned?

Fulton Agreed With Decision

It would appear to have been proper assistance to the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, in what must have been a difficult position, to have suggested cabinet consideration or at least that these two other ministers be informed.

The Hon. Mr. Fulton stated, however, the decisions were the then prime minister's and whether the decision was a wise one or not, I am ready to conclude that the Hon. Mr. Fulton, albeit with some considerable misgiving, agreed with it.

Indeed, he alleged it was vindicated by subsequent events. Therefore he did not consider that he was called upon to resign.

I am ready to conclude that the Hon. Mr. Fulton did personally, and on his own initiative, take some steps even before he conferred with the then prime minister.

I find the memorandum on the citizenship file, dated Dec. 7, 1960, . . . as most convincing. It reads:

"File of Mrs. Gerda Munsinger

"From: Registrar of Canadian citizenship

"Dr. Davidson spoke to me about this case today and said that the minister had informed him that a certificate was not to be granted until the case was first brought to her attention.

"I informed Dr. Davidson that the RCMP had reported by a letter on Oct. 21 that their inquiries were still under way and that we would be advised of the results at the earliest possible date.

"Care must be taken not to move towards the grant of a certificate of Canadian citizenship in this case until it has been brought to the attention of the deputy minister. Bring it to my attention as soon as the report is received from the RCMP.

"J. E. Duggan,
"Registrar."

Neither the Hon. Mr. Fulton nor Dr. Davidson nor Mr. Duggan . . . nor the Hon. Mrs. Fairclough . . . was able to remember the instance there recorded, but none could deny that it had occurred.

Convincing Evidence

I am of opinion that this is just an honest and reasonable failure of personal recollection after 5½ years and that the contemporaneous memoramdum is the most cogent and convincing evidence that, immediately on receiving the first verbal report from the RCMP on Dec. 7, 1960, the Hon. Mr. Fulton must have taken steps to stay Mrs. Munsinger's application for Canadian citizenship.

Further the long memorandum signed at Dr. Davidson's instructions by his assistant, Mr. J. S. Cross, dated Dec. 27, 1960, . . . contains the statement:

"He was hoping we might be willing to take a calculated risk and stamp her passport 'Refused Re-entry to Canada,' but after consultation with the minister and Mr. Fulton, minister of justice, also Bakserville and Chalmers) I said that we could not legally do that. It was finally decided that nothing could be done."

Again, neither the Hon. Mr. Fulton nor Dr. Davidson had any memory of the event reported in that sentence, although Dr. Davidson remembered the details in reference to the conference with the RCMP officers. . . .

Again, as against failing memory, I am convinced . . . that there was an attempt made by the RCMP to prevent Mrs. Munsinger's re-entry into Canada and that that effort had the co-operation of both the Hon. Mrs. Fairclough and the Hon. Mr Fulton.

Such independent action on the Hon. Mr. Fulton's part was commendable. It is regrettable that he did not take the other independent action which I have suggested above. . ..

The Hon. George H. Hees:

In considering the Hon. Mr. Hees' position, it is my intention to have regard only to the evidence adduced before the commission.

Many wild rumors were current and livid stories appeared, especially in the foreign press. . . . I intend to pay no more attention to them than in the case of others with whom this report is concerned.

The evidence before the commission consisted of two main sources: Firstly, the statements in the RCMP brief and, secondly, the evidence given to the commission by the Hon. Mr. Hees himself with some references to his situation in the evidence of the Hon. Mr. Fulton, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mr. Gaston Levesque.

In . . . the version of the RCMP reports prepared to eliminate matters of secrecy, it was stated . . . ". . . that she knew several members of the federal cabinet and named Mr. Hees, the former minister of transport and then minister of trade and commerce, and Mrs. Fairclough, the minister of citizenship and immigration, and said she knew others."

Again, . . . there appears the reported statement of Mrs. Munsinger to a friend that ". . . a friend of hers, George Hees, had been transferred from the ministry of transport to the ministry of trade and commerce.

"She claimed that he would probably start things popping and she said that she would call Mr. Hees and see what he was doing."

No Help To Gerda

In his testimony, the Hon. Mr. Hees denied that he had ever attempted to assist Mrs. Munsinger to obtain a position and that she, or anyone on her behalf, had ever requested that he do so.

The Hon. Mr. Hees also denied that he had ever exerted any pressure to have her released from arrest in February, 1961.

The Hon. Mr. Hees admitted knowing Mrs. Munsinger and testified he had been introduced to her at a banquet given in the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's honor in Montreal, about the end of September, 1959. At that banquet over 3,000 people were present.

The Hon. Mr. Hees could not identify the person who had so introduced him.

He further testified that, on two different occasions thereafter, Mrs. Munsinger had come to Ottawa and telephoned to request that he should take her out to luncheon—a request with which he complied. The Hon. Mr. Hees stated further that on one occasion, being in Montreal, he had requested her to accompany him to dinner and that she had done so.

The Hon. Mr. Hees testified that these were the only four occasions on which he had seen Mrs. Munsinger and that nothing improper occurred on any occasion.

That his memory might not have been totally accurate is indicated by the evidence of Gaston Levesque . . . that, in October, 1960, while attending Mrs. Munsinger at a bar in the Beacon Arms Hotel in Ottawa on the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's instructions, . . . the Hon. Mr. Hees entered, was greeted by Mrs. Munsinger, who went over to speak to him and returned to inform Mr. Levesque that the Hon. Mr. Hees was to be appointed minister of trade and commerce. He was so appointed on Oct. 11, 1960.

Association Was Unwise

There was certainly no breach of security revealed in the evidence above recited. The minister freely admitted that, judging from Mrs. Munsinger's character as revealed later and reported to this commission, even that slight association might have been unwise.

Accidental contacts and association with hundreds of peopl are difficult for any minister to avoid. Indeed, such avoidance is not desirable. . . .

Nevertheless, the Hon. Mr. Hees was a minister of the Crown holding an important portfolio in the government of Canada. He and other ministers must and do realize that many persons seek closer association with them than the positions of such persons justify, perhaps with the intention of improperly currying favors or exerting influence. It must have been apparent to the Hon. Mr. Hees that Mrs. Munsinger desired closer association with him. . . .

Would it not have been prudent on the Hon. Mr. Hees' part to have found out, from whomever introduced Mrs. Munsinger on the first occasion, something more about her — perhaps particularly, whether she had sought out the introduction?

There was no security breach; as events turned out, there was no security risk. But if the association had continued and intensified there might have been a security risk. The lack of discretion was slight but regrettable.

The Hon. Ellen Fairclough:

. . . The Hon Mrs. Fairclough did not appear before the commission and was not represented by counsel. Such incidental part as she played in the matter I have dealt with above and I have no further comment to make.

The Hon. Pierre Sevigny:

The associate minister of national defence is the minister with whose conduct and position this commission has been chiefly concerned.

He appeared before the commission and gave extensive evidence. He was subjected to careful cross-examination by all concerned.

Friend Called As Witness

Moreover, his counsel called as a witness Miss Jacqueline Delorme who was a friend of both the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger.

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny was appointed associate minister of national defence on Aug. 20, 1959. He has testified that in early September, 1959, he met Mrs. Munsinger ". . . at a social reunion in the Sheraton-Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal.

"I was present with quite a few friends who were more or less in a party mood. They told me they would be having dinner later, and one of them said his escort would be a very beautiful young lady. He eventually introduced me to Mrs. Munsinger."

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny was very emphatic in his description of the attractiveness of Mrs. Munsinger's person and her personality.

It would appear on his own testimony that their acquaintanceship ripened rapidly, and I can best summarize the result of long examination and cross-examination by quoting the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's testimony as to his conference with the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker and the Hon. Mr. Fulton on Dec. 13, 1960:

"But, My Lord, I never denied during that interview that I had had a relationship, a physical relationship, with Mrs. Munsinger."

In viewing that statement and the evidence which preceded it, there can be no other conclusion than that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger had for some time indulged in intimate sexual relations, and the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's counsel so admitted.

Maintained Position

It was the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's testimony that such close association ceased in January, 1960, after Miss Delorme had informed him that Mrs. Munsinger had an unfortunate tendency to speak much too openly of her association with well-known persons. . . .

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny maintained that position throughout cross - examination and even volunteered that he had instructed his office staff not to permit Mrs. Munsinger to speak to him on the telephone.

He assigned no definite time to the issuance of such instructions but it must have been, on his testimony, before November, 1960, for he gave this as the reason she could not speak to him on the telephone about the extension of her German passport immediately prior to their meeting of Nov. 26-27, 1960.

Even on the basis of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's testimony, however, the meetings during such period were not so infrequent as he pictured.

He admitted in cross-examination to a meeting "around February, 1960," when Mrs. Munsinger was engaged in a fashion show in Ottawa, and again in October, 1960, when Mrs. Munsinger had come to Ottawa with friends. . . .

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny has also admitted that he saw Mrs. Munsinger at her apartment on the night of Nov. 26, 1960, and that he left at 7:35 a.m. the next morning, as he testified, after falling asleep following a long day's work and a long conversation in regard to Mrs. Munsinger's problems. . . .

Evidence Revealing

Mr. Levesque's evidence is even more revealing. He testified that he became executive assistant to the Hon. Mr. Sevigny on Sept. 21, 1959, and remained such until the minister's resignation.

He remembers four occasions when, as such, he met Mrs. Munsinger, and that as well he had spoken to her on the telephone.

On cross-examination he detailed these four occasions as, once in the minister's office in the spring of 1960 before the beginning of May, once at the Riverside Steak House in Ottawa in the summer of 1960, once at the bar in the Beacon Arms Hotel on Oct. 10 or Oct. 11, 1960, and once in her apartment in Montreal at a date which he could not fix.

On the first occasion Mrs. Munsinger came to the office to see the Hon. Mr. Sevigny but he was at a meeting of the Privy Council and she left without seeing him.

On the third occasion, Mr. Levesque had been dispatched by the Hon. Mr. Sevigny to see Mrs. Munsinger.

On the second and fourth occasions, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny was present, and on the fourth Mr. Levesque departed, leaving the Hon. Mr. Sevigny in the apartment.

In addition, Mr. Levesque identified his letter appearing in the citizenship file . . . and dated September 9, 1960, as having been written on the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's instructions and swore that a telephone inquiry by him as indicated by a notation in the same file dated Nov. 24, 1960, would also have been made on the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's instructions.

All of this evidence leads one to the conclusion that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's association with Mrs. Munsinger during the whole of 1960 was closer and more frequent than he desired the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker to realize and much closer than he desired this commission to ascertain.

The inevitable corollary of this is that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny told his prime minister much less than the whole truth, and surely that fact alone should have driven him to tender his resignation.

. . . A more thorough investigation in 1960 on the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker's instructions would have revealed a situation which would have entitled him to call for his minister's resignation on this ground of concealment alone.

Such further investigation would have revealed as well that the liaison would have appeared to be within the knowledge of many other persons and of these at least some were said to be of unsavory reputation. The danger of blackmail and improper pressure would have been revealed as startling.

It would seem that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's position, and indeed that of the Hon. Mr. Fulton, was that his character was so sturdy that he could, and would, resist any attempt at blackmail or improper pressure.

Used Minister As a Shield

Yet, as counsel for the commission pointed out, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny when tested in the one instance of pressure—the confrontation by the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker and the Hon. Mr. Fulton on Dec. 13, 1960—displayed no such startling qualities. . . .

His attempt to use the Hon. Mr. Hees as a shield . . . was a far from bold acceptance of the situation when, on the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's testimony, all he knew of any association between the Hon. Mr. Hees and Mrs. Munsinger was her statement that she knew Mr. Hees.

I have come to the conclusion that the then prime minister, had he been properly apprised of all the facts, by verification of the RCMP brief, and had he then witnessed the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's lack of frankness, could not possibly have come to the conclusion that his retention in the cabinet constituted no security risk.

On all the evidence, and despite the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's somewhat vague denials, there would seem no doubt that he was actively using his influence to obtain Canadian citizenship for Mrs. Munsinger.

Acted on Instructions

Mr. Levesque has testified that his actions on Sept. 9, 1960, and Nov. 24, 1960, to which I have referred above, could only have been upon his minister's instructions.

I cannot fail to infer that, write such a letter as that of Sept. 9, 1960, . . . on the departmental letterhead and to follow up with a telephone call more than two months later, is to consciously exert influence in favor of the person who was the subject matter thereof.

It is true, of course, that neither the letter nor, so far as can be ascertained, the telephone conversation exhibited any pressure; the identified source of each was sufficient.

In my view, it was the height of indiscretion to authorize such action without a very careful investigation of the person whose application a minister of the Crown is attempting to further.

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny, in his testimony, outlined how perturbed he was when he found out that Mrs. Munsinger had used his name as one of the references in her application for citizenship and that he lectured her on this indiscretion when he learned of it on Nov. 13, 1960.

The application for citizenship executed by Mrs. Munsinger contains no mention of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's name. Indeed, the departmental form for such application makes no provision for the recital of the name of any recommenders . . .

In my view, a subject of far more concern to the Hon. Mr. Sevigny was the news that the RCMP had interviewed Mrs. Munsinger, not once as is usual upon a citizenship application being made, but twice, and that they had asked her all sorts of questions.

He testified that Mrs. Munsinger had warned him ". . . and they seemed to be particularly interested in asking the questions about you."

It is my conclusion that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny feared that Mrs. Munsinger would reveal the extent of her liaison with him, a fear which was well-founded. . . .

I have come to this conclusion even though I find that there was no evidence whatsoever that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny, at any time before he was informed of the RCMP reports, either knew or had any means of knowing of Mrs. Munsinger's espionage activities before she came to Canada.

'Certainly Not a Thief'

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny has testified that he "never had cause to suspect" such involvement. Moreover, he testified that "whilst I knew her, Mr. Dupre, she certainly was never . . . a prostitute nor a call girl, and certainly not a thief."

There is no other evidence to suggest that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny had any knowledge of those latter activities, although even casual inquiry should have provided him with some information thereon.

The mere fact that the liaison had occurred, even granting that it had done so without the Hon. Mr. Sevigny knowing the previous history or character of his associate, was sufficient, in my opinion, to leave doubt as to his reliability, and therefore to create a "security risk" requiring his retirement from the cabinet.

Indeed, the fact that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny had allowed this situation to develop without careful consideration of the suitability of the person with whom he was associating is, itself, a strong indication of his own unsuitability to hold any portfolio in the cabinet, let alone the most sensitive one of associate minister of national defence.

The Hon. Donald Fleming:

The Hon. Mr. Fleming was appointed minister of justice on Aug. 9, 1962. . . .

The only contact the Hon. Mr. Fleming had with the Munsinger case was on or about Jan. 30, 1963, when Commissioner Harvison and Assistant Commissioner McClellan (as they then were) delivered to him a copy of the brief . . . and also the outline of events occurring after Dec. 8, 1960.

The latter had been reported verbally to the Hon. Mr. Fulton. . . .

The Hon. Mr. Fleming immediately conferred with the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, even broaching the matter to the latter as they sat in the House.

The latter replied: "I know all about it, Fulton told me about it at the time."

The Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker assured the Hon. Mr. Fleming that he had dealt with the matter, and therefore the latter took no furher action and did not refer to the matter again. . . .

The Hon. Mr. Fleming, I am of the opinion, could not have been asked to take any further or different action in January, 1963. I can see no criticism of his course.

Produced His Client

Mr. Gaston Levesque:

On April 7, 1966, . . . Mr. Levesque . . . was informed that, if he wished to give evidence or make representations . . . he should make the appropriate arrangements with counsel for the commission.

On May 18, Mr. L. P. de Grandpre, QC, produced his client and he gave evidence and was cross - examined thereon.

I have already referred to Mr. Levesque's testimony and it requires no additional comment. I have found his evidence of great assistance in determining the factual situation up to and on Dec. 13, 1960, when the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker and the Hon. Mr. Fulton conferred with the Hon. Mr. Sevigny.

United Appeal Out in Duncan

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—Just as there will always be wars, so it seems there will always be tag days—in Duncan.

The city is not yet big enough or ripe enough for a Community Chest.

The public couldn't make a big enough pie for all the charities to get a slice to satisfy them.

This consensus was gathered Thursday from the people who donate their time and talent to raising charity funds.

Last year Sam Keeble chaired a campaign which netted $6,000 for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

This year he has set a target of $7,000. And he expects to reach it.

OLD CAMPAIGNER

Mr. Keeble is an old hand at collecting for charity.

A few weeks ago he was all fired up on selling the idea of a Community Chest.

He drew sympathetic murmurs from city hall. But he drew a blank when he spoke to Bob Corney.

Mr. Corney has for several years single-handedly run the Christmas Seals drive in Duncan.

His reaction was to state: "The TB society would never go for it.

"We stick to our own campaign and are different in respect that we sell something to the public."

CANCER SOCIETY

"No," was the uncompromising answer from Mrs. Marjorie Langlois, president of the Cowichan branch of the Cancer Society.

She feels a United Appeal would not give the society anything like the $3,612 it raised last year.

Mr. Keeble said one of the biggest drawbacks about a Community Chest is that the individual resident probably gives an average $10 a year to individual charity appeals.

He would probably only give $2 to the Chest.

Mr. Keeble said: "The load would be put on businesses and I don't think that's fair."

He deplores the present duplication of work.

So does Patrick Rogers, who ran last year's Cowichan fund drive for the Red Cross Society which brought in $6,350.

He says: "I think there should be a United Appeal.

"These campaigns are too much for one man to handle, and besides it would avoid people being continuously hounded for money."

Mr. Rogers thinks the Duncan district could raise $40,000 for an annual Chest drive and that this would give each organization as much as any of them could raise themselves.

"It would take a major effort to educate people to the idea of giving once a year instead of at least once a month."

Mayor Jack Dobson said: "I'm in favor, in principle, of a Community Chest.

LOSE IDENTITY

"However, even though donations can be specified to a particular cause, many worthwhile charities would lose their identities.

"The city is fast reaching the point where it can't add to the number of tag days."

Mayor Dobson said the introduction of a Chest is not something for city council to decide.

"There would be overhead expenses from having to hire administrative staff and I think a Community Chest is a bit premature for Duncan."

Mr. Keeble, conceding temporary defeat, said: "A Community Chest will come eventually, maybe five years from now.

"People have to be educated to give more generously in a one-shot deal."

TAKE THIS, add it to that, put it in there, and Hey Presto! . . . you've got pulp. It's not quite as simple as that, but millworker Gary Webster (left) tries to explain the pulp manufacturing process to chief forester G. Maybee, of Nova Scotia. Mr. Maybee was among a group of foresters from across Canada who paid a visit to Elk Falls mill and timber operation during a visit to Vancouver Island. (Gary Webster photo.)

THESE DAM BEAVERS KEEP MAN ON THE RUN

UNION BAY—Gordon Murdoch is a busy little beaver.

He has to be to keep up with the real beavers.

Maintenance superintendent at Langley Lake near here, he's having his job cut out cutting out what the beavers cut out—namely the water outlets,

During the summer dry spell the beavers have been busily blocking all the lake's outlets to prevent the water running away.

Mr. Murdoch has tried several remedies to deter them but to no avail.

They can rebuild a dam in two days—quicker than Mr. Murdoch can knock them down.

His one hope is heavy fall rains in the near future. With the dam level topped up again, the beavers will cease their conservation tactics.

Arsonist Sought

NANAIMO — Police here are on the lookout for an arsonist following a blaze in a city-owned warehouse this week.

"It was definitely set," said fire chief Colin McArthur today.

The fire did $1,000 damage to the warehouse and could easily have spread to the nearby civic arena.

The warehouse is used for making cement blocks as part of the city's winter works program. Chief McArthur said at least two other attempts to set fires in the building had been made.

FIRST FILM of 11-part series "The Incredible Forest" is presented to G. Neil Perry, deputy minister of education, left, by E. G. Stroyan, of MacMillan Bloedel, Ltd.

High Schools to See 'Incredible Forest'

"The Incredible Forest," a series of 11 color films about the forest industry, will be shown to all secondary school students in British Columbia.

The films were commissioned by MacMillan Bloedel Limited, which has presented 10 complete film sets to the British Columbia Department of Education.

The films will be circulated by the division of visual education during the current school year. A booklet provides the teachers with background knowledge.

Each 30-minute film contains a capsule story: Logging with modern equipment; logging in the old days; the vast reforestation program; the efforts to upgrade the forests; the scientific research into new forest products; the marketing of forest products; their transportation by water and over land; wildlife studies in the B.C. forests; the life cycle of trees; the planing of modern forest operations.

Alcoholics To Get Treatment

NANAIMO—An alcoholism clinic may be opened here in the near future.

The clinic was discussed this week at a special meeting of doctors, ministers and interested officials, mostly members of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C.

R. L. Clarkson, Island supervisor of the foundation, said a travelling clinic in Kamloops has requested permission to set up a clinic here.

The foundation is offering a weekly clinic service for the Nanaimo area through the facilities of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit.

Afternoon sessions would be in the form of treatment and counselling while evening sessions would basically be for group therapy.

The group agreed unanimously with the idea and another meeting was arragned in a few weeks time to arrange details for setting up of the clinic.

HIGHWAYS ENDANGERED

Motor Vehicle Branch Asked to Check Loads

PORT ALBERNI—George McKnight has written to the motor vehicle branch complaining of the number of incidents involving insecure truck loads.

The Port Alberni man said a load of paper rolls recently fell off a truck on the Alberni-Nanaimo Highway near Cameron Lake, tying up traffic for some time.

On another occasion, a car ran into a crate which was protruding over the side of a truck, seriously injuring the driver and two passengers.

Said Mr. McKnight: "It appears to me that your department is negligent in its duty to the motoring public in failing to adopt and enforce necessary measures to ensure that these loads are properly secured so that spillage on to the highway will be prevented."

He added: "On my own behalf, as a motorist, as well as on behalf of all the people who use this road in and out of the Alberni Valley, I would request that your department take whatever action may seem necessary and appropriate to ensure the safety of all concerned from the above hazard."

Repeat Winner

DUNCAN — Top record in the Cowichan Dairy Herd Improvement Association in August was made by Major's Crockett, an 8-year-old Holstein owned by the Westholme firm of E. and H. Huisman.

This cow gave 17,094 pounds of milk containing 786 pounds of butterfat. The same cow was a winner in June, 1965.

CHEMAINUS TO DRESS UP

Bustles and Hoops 'In'

CHEMAINUS — This town's one-man centennial committee is hoping to get everyone dressed in centennial costume once a month until the end of 1967.

Stafford Andrews said the idea is to organize sufficient centennial events in the next 15 months to make it worthwhile for people to make a costume.

Chemainus - Crofton Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the first effort Friday, Oct. 7.

Mr. Andrews said he is stealing the idea from back east "where it went over like a bombshell."

He said "On the occasion of the few centennial events so far, the people involved have mostly rented costumes.

MORE FUN

"I'm quite convinced from the experience of the visit of the centennial stagecoach that the people in costume enter more into the sprit of things and enjoy themselves more."

Mr. Andrews said: "Chemainus people are a pretty good bunch for community sprit so we're going to have a go at it."

The town's biggest employer, MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., has given its blessing "for office staff and where practical." But no hooped skirts on the green chain.

Already Mr. Andrews has the girls in the sawmill office, the local bank and post office busy at their sewing machines.

The costume can be centennial or national in character, and local merchants are donating prizes.

Mr. Andrews said today: "I'm sure the core of downtown Chemainus will back me up Oct. 7 and get the idea snowballing for the succeeding months.

"I think it will be contagious and spread to embrace Victoria and perhaps the whole of Vancouver Island."

Put yourself in South's position after West opens the deuce of spadcs against your slam contract. You apply the code word ARCH.

Opening lead—♠ 2

Analyze the lead and it looks as if West has opened low from three. If the deuce were a singleton, then East would have seven spades. Review the bidding. East has overcalled with a five-card suit. He almost surely holds the king of diamonds to give him enough for an overcall.

Count your winners and losers. You have enough winners but if the diamond finesse is wrong, as you expect, you have two losers before you can cash in.

How can you make the hand?

If West holds the king of diamonds you have a simple diamond finesse but you have already decided that he doesn't have it. You can try for an end play. If trumps break 2-2 you can draw trumps, play out three hearts in order to discard one of dummy's spades, ruff your fourth heart and throw East in with a spade.

The trouble with that line of play is that West probably holds a spade honor and East can play low in order to let West win that trick and lead a diamond.

Thus, there is no legitimate play but a swindle may work. South does draw trumps. Then he leads dummy's ace of diamonds and continues with the deuce. East may duck on the theory that South started with the singleton seven of diamonds. South will take his jack, game, slam and rubber.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

ABC Stage 67's "Olympus 7-000" may not have been a world beater, as seen on CBC's Show of the Week, but it was aimed in the right direction.

Stephen

No matter how you slice it, the series is going to be adventurous and even daring in its outings. This puts it in a class of its own this season, for it is the best thing to materialize from the big networks.

This was proven again with "Dare I Weep, Dare I Mourn" which starred James Mason and boasted an all-star cast including Hugh Griffith, Kay Walsh, Maureen Pryor and Jill Bennett. The play revolved around the Berlin Wall and the human beings separated by it.

As originally written by John Le Carre (author of The Spy Who Came In From the Cold), it involved a meek West German (Mason) who had to go into East Germany to bring out the body of his hated father and some jewels.

The production was definitely aided by location scenes near the Berlin Wall. It was further abetted because such things do happen in real life itself.

Director Ted Kotcheff had his actors chew their parts thoroughly then spit out interpretive roles that sang out with thorough believability.

"Dare I . . ." may not have been everybody's cup of tea, but it proved again that the Stage 67 series is offering the most excitement this season.

Two future Stage 67 presentations to look for are "Where It's At!" to be seen on CBC next Monday, Sept. 26, (U.S. telecast date is Nov. 16) and "The Kennedy Wit" about the late president, with Jack Paar as producer and host on Oct. 5, on ABC-TV (Channel 4.)

Where It's At! will feature some of the talented newcomers in the American field of comedy and satire. The cast includes Larry Hovis (a regular on Hogan's Heroes), Ronnie Schell (seen on Gomer Pyle), Pat McCormick (who has worked on shows with Jonathan Winters) and the Doodletown Pipers.

It also stars Dick Cavett who was formerly a comedy writer for Jack Paar, Groucho Marx, Jack E. Leonard and Jerry Lewis. With his laconic style and boyish innocence (Cavett) ought to go far.

We've only to go to the set to turn the channel selector next Monday and make up our own minds.

Immediate Attention Neede by All Bulbs

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

As soon as spring-flowering bulbs come into your house for fall planting they must be dealt with immediately according to their kind.

The narcissus bulbs, which include those commonly called daffodils, should be planted just as soon as the beds are ready for them.

If any of the little bulbs, crocuses, scillas, puschkinias and the like are in the order, get those into the soil even before the narcissi, for the smaller they are the faster they deteriorate when exposed to air.

FIRM, HEALTHY

Be sure that every bulb you plant, from whatever the source may be, is firm and healthy. If any appear doubtful, as may happen in a boxful donated by a friend or neighbor, discard them and be sure they are burned in a hot fire to prevent spread of the insect, or disease, which is the cause of the lack of health.

For added pleasure in the spring garden see that every group is clearly labelled with the correct name. You may be surprised how much interest your friends will show if they can read the name of the varieties without asking.

RELUCTANT

Some people are reluctant to ask questions, even though mildly curious. They just may not be curious enough to make them bold enough.

Two kinds of bulbs, the hybrid tulips and the so-called Dutch irises should have planting delayed until the soil is cooler, preferably well along into October, with early November as a deadline.

WARM SOIL

If planted into warm soil these two kinds of bulbs are more apt to make a hasty beginning of top growth, resulting in possible winter damage to the shoots and some weakening of the constitution before spring flowering.

While waiting for planting conditions, keep the bulbs in as cool a place as possible. In the home, the floor between two outside doors out of sunshine is about the coolest spot at this time of year, before furnace heat is in general use.

Price Slash Drive Urged For Timber

The head of the B.C. Truck Loggers' Association today called for a co-operative effort to cut prices in the slump-ridden lumber industry.

"The provincial government could help by reducing stumpage and taxation," said Bruce Welch, president of the association."

Mr. Welch agreed with a statement by Attorney-General Robert Bonner that the lumber industry should cut its prices in order to combat the drastic slump in sales.

"But this can only be done with the co-operation of all parties concerned," he said. "This includes government through stumpage and taxation, labor through productivity, wages and management through efficiency."

Mr. Welch said the prices of logs, lumber and plywood have already been reduced by management, as dictated by world markets.

"It will take a drastic all-round effort to reduce them further," he said.

HOUSING STARTS

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said he did not agree with Mr. Bonner's stand on reduced lumber prices.

"It isn't the narrow margin in prices that is causing the difficulty. That is not the answer. The basic problem is the reduced number of housing starts in Canada, the United States and Europe which have, in turn, reduced the market for lumber products."

The Council of Forest Industries of British Columbia, an association of major B.C. logging companies, is preparing a policy statement on the slump in lumber sales, it was learned today.

Hans Roine, president of the Northern Interior Lumberman's Association said in Prince George that sawmill operators are looking for ways to save themselves in the face of plunging market prices.

"Inevitably there will be casualties in the industry if new markets are not found for wood products — and soon.

"You just can't meet expenses on today's basis."

. . . MARTIN

peated the Canadian contention that any treaty on non-proliferation of nuclear weapons must define "proliferation" in such a way as to "prevent nuclear weapons from passing into the control of additional states or groups of states."

As an essential corollary to such a treaty, the nuclear powers and the United Nations "should urgently consider ways of extending meaningful guarantees to non-nuclear-weapon states who have foregone the right to acquire nuclear weapons."

Martin expressed disappointment over the "limited success" of the assembly's 18-country disarmament committee, of which Canada is a member, but said "it remains the best available forum for the negotiation of arms-control agreements."

Turning to economic aid questions, the Canadian foreign minister said he is "frankly appalled at the recent projections of the world food situation."

"They reveal how drastically world food reserves have fallen in the course of the last five years, and how grave is the prospect of an over-all world food deficit no later than 1985."

He told the assembly Canada's aid program, now totalling about $300,000,000 annually, will continue with the ultimate objective of reaching the level of one per cent of national income, as recommended by the assembly.

HURT BABY IMPROVING

Seven-month-old Shawn Olney was in fair condtion at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, today, after brain surgery.

The baby boy was rushed here from Campbell River Hospital after a car accident in which his father was killed.

Shawn, of Saratoga Beach, received multiple injuries but was said by a hospital spokesman to be "resting comfortably."

Eight Crewman Flee Sinking Fishpacker

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eight crew members escaped unhurt Thursday when the fishpacker Jessie Island No. 9, bound for Steveston in the Fraser River with a load of herring, sprang a leak and sank near the mouth of the river.

Skipper Alfred Hunt of Alert Bay and his seven crew members managed to beach the 68-foot boat on an island and were taken off by a power skiff from the nearby boat, Marine Girl.

A short time later the tide swept Jessie Island into deeper water and she went down in 54 fathoms. She had 70 tons of herring board.

What caused the fishpacker to spring a leak was not learned immediately.

. . . MUNSINGER

on several occasions in Germany upon espionage matters, and might well have been continuing to do so in Canada.

"Those reports showed that she could have available to her an efficient method of passing on any classified information obtained.

"Moreover, in the Profumo case the minister tendered his resignation and apologized to the House. The Hon. Mr. Sevigny neither resigned nor was his resignation requested.

"In these aspects, therefore, the Munsinger case might well be 'worse than the Profumo case'."

Mr. Justice Spence said Mr. Cardin's press conference statement that two or more Diefenbaker cabinet ministers were involved with Mrs. Munsinger "has been confirmed."

He concludes that Mr. Cardin had heard a false rumor of Mrs. Munsinger's death from leukemia, mentioned it at a press conference and believed that it came from the RCMP.

There had been no evidence whether any other cabinet minister knew that Mr. Cardin was going to mention the case, nor that former Diefenbaker ministers had been threatened with exposure 10 days before the case was mentioned in the Commons.

The judge said Mr. Fulton acted commendably in promptly informing Mr. Diefenbaker of the case and in taking action to try to prevent Mrs. Munsinger's re-entry to Canada.

But, he added, Mr. Fulton should have pressed the investigation into Mrs. Munsinger's background to determine whether any security offences had been committed.

"There was certainly a duty to investigate further and, at that time, the sources of information were known and easily reached."

No Instructions to RCMP

The RCMP could not have investigated further reports of political pressure and blackmail of an important political person without instructions from Mr. Fulton "and these the Hon. Mr Fulton did not give."

"In my view his direction to the RCMP to be kept informed generally was not sufficient."

Mr. Justice Spence said there appeared to be no valid criticism of the immigration department in connection with Mrs. Munsinger's arrival in Canada in 1955 after having been refused a visa in 1952.

Any error in issuing her a visa in 1955 appeared "to be the result of Mrs. Munsinger's planned avoidance of any revelation of her maiden name" Gerda Heseler.

Refusal to bar her re-entry in 1960—as had been requested by the RCMP—after she made a visit abroad "was a step taken or advice and after careful consideration."

"Finally, the desirable result of refusal to grant Canadian citizenship was attained despite considerable urging that such be granted."

The judge held that Mr. Hees' "lack of discretion was slight but regrettable."

He said he agreed with the statement of Clement Atlee, former British prime minister, that "it would be a great mistake to think that ministers should live cloistered lives."

In the case of Mr. Hees, "there was no security breach; as events turned out, there was no security risk."

"But if the association had continued and intensified there might have been a security risk."

Mr. Hees testified at the inquiry that he met Mrs. Munsinger four times and that he might have been indiscreet but never improper.

The judge said he had ignored the "many wild rumors . . . and livid stories . . . especially in the foreign press."

"I can find no criticism whatsoever of the RCMP" in connection with the case, Mr. Justice Spence said. "The action of the force was efficient, prompt and discreet."

He said C. W. Harvison, then commissioner, and George McClellan, then assistant commissioner, gave Mr. Fulton verbally and in writing all the facts of the case late in 1960. This had been repeated to Donald Fleming when he succeeded Mr. Fulton as justice minister in 1963.

Both officers testified they received no instructions from either minister of the justice department.

Having reported the situation "the RCMP would have no mandate to proceed with further investigation of the conduct of that cabinet member without specific instructions from the government conveyed properly through the minister of justice."

It's Not Their Business

"The RCMP are not and, so far as I have been able to discover, never has attempted to be a body investigating the personal conduct of any minister or any member of Parliament. That is not their business."

Regarding the actions of Commissioners Harvison and McClellan, the judge said:

"Less they could not have done. More they could not be required to do without specific instructions from their superiors."

He also said that with respect to Mr. Fleming's actions "I can see no criticism of his course." Mr. Fleming had reported to Mr. Diefenbaker when the RCMP officers informed him about the case.

Mr. Diefenbaker assured Mr. Fleming "he had dealt with the matter and therefore the latter took no further action and did not refer to the matter again."

Mr. Fleming "could not have been asked to take any further or different action in January, 1963."

In the introduction to his report, the judge said:

"I make the statement at once that there is no scintilla of evidence or any indication that there was any disloyalty involved in any of the circumstances which I have investigated."

He said the liaison between Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger "was known to her fellow prostitutes and was the subject of some discussion amongst them." Moreover, the liaison was common knowledge in the Montreal underworld.

RCMP reports showed that Mrs. Munsinger lived in the same Montreal building which housed the office of a company which had business associations with Soviet-bloc countries.

Mrs. Munsinger had a part-time position as a bookkeeper for the building. This enabled her "to go from place to place within the building without question."

Mr. Justice Spence said he found the evidence of Gaston Levesque, Mr. Sevigny's executive assistant, of great help in determining the facts in 1960.

At the hearings, it appeared possible that Mr. Diefenbaker might have been influenced in the course he adopted by statements made to him which were at variance with RCMP reports.

Mr. Levesque's testimony became relevant and "it was very important as it confirmed the RCMP report." This could have easily been elicited by questioning Mr. Levesque in 1960.

'Had Enough Muck-Raking'

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said today he hopes the Munsinger report will mean an end to political muck-raking.

"I hope the report closes the book on the case and will permit parliament to get down to more serious problems facing the country," he said. "We've had enough muck-raking."

MONKEYS SIGN ON

The Barbary apes of Gibraltar are officially listed as members of a Gibraltar "regiment" by the British army.

Cardin Happy Relieved

SOREL, QUE. (UPI)—Justice Minister Lucien Cardin, the man who started the Munsinger inquiry, said today he was "happy and relieved" with the conclusions of Supreme Court Justice Wishart S. Spence's report.

He was happy, "not only for me but also for my family," he said.

The minister who brought the matter to public attention said he regretted that it was necessary to do so and that an inquiry was needed.

Pound Devaluation Urged by Liberals

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters)—Britain's minority Liberal party today called for a phased devaluation of the pound in a surprise vote at its annual conference here.

It was the first time in modern political history that any British political party has gone on record publicizing devaluation as a policy.

The controversial motion was carried on a show of hands from delegates, despite opposition from the executive.

An amendment backed by the executive that would have rejected the devaluation call was defeated 431 to 340.

Christopher Layton, the party's economic adviser, proposed the motion, which also called for creation of a world currency system based on pooling of reserves by all big industrial countries.

He called for a devaluation of the pound, phased at about two per cent a year, and said that in view of the present deflation some time next year would be an excellent time to adjust the exchange rate.

Evacuation Studied

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Vietnamese authorities may have to evacuate 75,000 persons from two provinces severely flooded by the rising waters of the Mekong River, government officials said Thursday.

SOLUTION MONDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Ellen Bennett, age 10, of Nashville, Tenn., for her question:

Is a squid different from an octopus?

The big octopus is known as the devilfish because he looks like such a fearsome fellow. Actually, he is quite shy and not nearly as devilish as the squid. What's more, the squid has 10 arms. Two are extra-long and strong to grab and hold his struggling victims.

The largest squids and octopuses are monsters of the deep, and down there below the sunlit surface it is too dark to see the differences between them. But their smaller relatives live in shallow, shore waters where it is easy to tell the squids from the octopuses. A squid has 10 long arms. And octopus has only eight. If you do not have time to count them, you can recognize the squid's two extra arms at a glance. They are about twice as long as his other eight arms.

The body of an octopus looks like a round fleshy bag. A squid is shaped like a torpedo with a pair of rippling fins down his sides. He is more likely to be seen jetting hemself at high speed through the water. The baggy bodied octopus spends more time walking on the bottom, often like a ballet dancer on the tips of his toes.

A squid likes the company of his kinfolk and hundreds of the smaller ones dart through the water like flocks of flying arrows. An octopus is more timid and shy and tends to lead a lonely life. He stays on the bottom near a rocky shelter where he can hide from his foes. He is a clever and patient hunter and often waits hours for a tasty shellfish to emerge from its burrow. The squid likes to grab a fishy dinner as he darts through the water. He tends to be a bolder and fiercer hunter.

The arms of both the squid and the octopus are muscular tentacles to grasp fish and shellfish and stuff this food into their beak-like jaws. The underside of the tentacles are fitted with neat rows of round suckers to grip their struggling victims. Swarms of fist-sized squids throng the salty seas and countless fist-sized octopuses lead more quiet lives on the ocean floors.

Lives on Ocean Floor

The biggest octopus lives in a deep, dark underwater cave. He can spread his great arms in a circle 20 feet wide. The giant squid of the deep ocean has two 30-foot arms that can span more than 50 feet. His body measures five feet around and 18 feet long. He is the giant of all the world's backboneless animals.

All squids and octopuses belong in the cephalopoda class, the stomach-headed ones. The boneless body of a cephalopod is a baggy stomach with a short neck to fix it onto his fleshy head. Both squids and octopuses jet propel themselves backward with squirts of water. Both squirt ink to befuddle their foes and both can change colors. An octopus often glows with a rosy blush and when upset he twinkles with wavering greys and blues, pinks and yellows.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Mindy Jester, age 10, of Greenwood, Ind., for her question:

What makes flowers smell so sweet?

Roses and many other garden flowers give off heavy fragrances and even many wayside wild flowers wear delicate perfumes. Like lovely ladies, each flower has its own sweet scent, different from all the rest. The secret is locked in oily chemicals that tend to turn into vapors. When this happens, the gassy vapors drift into the warm summer air, carrying their lingering perfumes with them.

The perfumes of a flower are stored in small pockets among the cells of the petals. The plant manufactures them with chemicals from the soil and basic sugars made with air, water and sunshine. The warm sun makes lightweight oils in the fragrant mixtures change into gaseous vapors and the airy breezes carry their sweet scents to our noses.

Kissing Disease Afflicts Young

By WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Alvarez

Now that students are going to college by the thousand, there will be perhaps one in 20 who will get the so-called "kissing disease," or infectious mononucleosis. Mono means one and nucleus is the growing centre of the cell. Osis is a disease. Hence in this disease there is an excess of white cells in the blood and particularly of white cells with a single nucleus and one that tends to appear atypical. Also in the blood appears a substance called a heterophile antibody—the presence of which helps in making the diagnosis.

The disease almost certainly is due to a virus but this as yet has not been grown. It takes usually from one to two months for the disease to get going after the infection is passed from one student to another. According to Dr. John McMaster, director the student health service of the Wisconsin Medical Center, the symptoms usually include swollen lymph nodes ("glands") on each side of the neck; some sore throat; also fever, fatigue, some white coating on the tonsils, a loss of appetite, puffy eyelids, a skin rash, and perhaps an enlarged liver. A few of the patients get jaundiced and get a yellow color in their eyes and skin. The fever tends to last about two weeks, and then, fortunately, almost everyone recovers.

Many people have asked me, "What does a frightened person do when he wakes at 2 a.m. and finds himself or his wife or a sick child very ill?" One man told me he turned to the classified telephone directory and started ringing up doctors, from Aaron on down, but all he found were specialists who did not make calls.

Many of my patients have thanked me heartily for Chapter 14 in my paperback book, "Danger Signals," now in its thired edition, on Hints On Finding a Good Doctor. Sometimes when a man is a stranger in a city, if he will call the biggest hospital in the place, he may be able to get the name of a good doctor or perhaps the type of specialist that he needs.

I remember so well one night in some big city where I was going to speak to the medical society and the doctors took me into a room where there were several thelephone girls handling a switchboard designed especially to call doctors who would make calls. I remember hearing one of the girls say to the person inquiring over the phone, "Wait a minute; I think I can get Dr. Jones for you—about this time of the evening he's having dinner at the University Club."

I hear that in Chicago the medical society maintains such a doctors' emergency service with a special number. This service is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Diefenbaker Sharply Rapped In Munsinger Probe Report

MARTIN TELLS UN

All Nations Should Be Represented

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today said Canada wants to see all the people of the world represented in the United Nations—indicating a flexible Canadian government attitude on the question of admitting mainland China to the world body.

Martin told the UN General Assembly the capacity of the United Nations to act in the Viet Nam war remains doubtful "as long as certain parties involved in that conflict are not members of this organization and are not bound by the terms of the charter."

The world body wouldn't necessarily be able to settle the conflict if China and two Vietnamese states were members, but it "would have a better chance of doing so if those parties were sitting here today."

Martin, making Canada's first statement in general debate at the 1966 assembly session, said "there is a growing opinion in Canada that, if this organization (the UN) is to realize its potential capacities, all nations and especially those which, like continental China, represent a significant portion of the world's population, must be represented here."

"A solution to this problem of representation has eluded us for many years and, in spite of impelling reasons, I do not know whether it will be possible for us to resolve this question within the next few months. Universality, however, remains our objective."

The assembly has on its agenda this season a nine-country resolution calling for "restoration of the lawful rights of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations."

Non-Aligned Have Special Role

Martin said efforts to control and reduce armaments cannot hope to succeed unless all the principal world powers, including China, participate in the negotiations. He thought "the non-aligned countries have a special role to play in persuading the People's Republic of China to participate in such discussions."

The external affairs minister said Canada remains hopeful that the International Control Commission for Viet Nam — made up of Canada, India and Poland—can play a part in ending the war.

Noting that Canada has served on the commission since its inception in 1954 at the end of French colonial rule in Viet Nam and the other territories of Indochina, Martin said: "In that time we have witnessed at first hand the erosion of the ceasefire agreement of 1954. We have known—and we still experience—the frustrations of the observer who is powerless to prevent what is happening before his eyes."

The control commission was set up to watch over the observance of the ceasefire agreemnt and report infractions to the Soviet Union and Britain, co-chairmen of the Geneva conference at which the agreement was worked out.

Martin said that despite the deterioration of the Vietnamese situation into an intense; undeclared war, "we have attempted to develop our responsibilities into opportunities for constructive action."

Means of Facilitating Contacts

"It still seems to us that the commission can provide a means of facilitating contacts between the two sides. Nor have we excluded the possibility that the commission might help the parties to scale down hostilities as a means of eventual disengagement."

Martin noted that U.S. Ambassadoe Arthur Goldberg, speaking in the assembly Thursday, called on North Viet Nam to say whether it would take "corresponding" steps to cut down military action if the United States stopped bombing its territory and consented to a supervised and gradual withdrawal of troops.

"Against this background, it is all the more essential that channels for contacts between the two sides be developed and maintained to prepare the way for negotiations whenever they are possible. We also believe that such channels are important in circumstances where the risk of misunderstanding and miscalculation is ever present.

"In Canada's view, it is essential that the attention of the world community should not be diverted from the urgent necessity of a diplomatic solution."

Martin said an exclusively military solution of the conflict is impossible. Canada believed that "only a political settlement which takes into account the legitimate interests and aspirations of all concerned can restore peace and stability in that country."

He couldn't accept the view that the time isn't ripe for a settlement in Viet Nam. "The road to peace in Viet Nam will not be easy and it may not be quick. But a start on that road must be made."

On disarmament, Martin re-

GROMYKO IN UN

Soviet Rejects U.S. Peace Plan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union replied today to the latest U.S. Viet Nam peace proposals by demanding the immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from South Viet Nam as the only way to peace.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told the United Nations General Assembly in a policy declaration "there are still no signs testifying to the seriousness of the intention of Washington to seek a settlement of the Viet Nam war.

He dismissed the latest proposals of U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg as part of a "so-called peace offensive" and said each new peace move was followed by "a further escalation of aggressive actions."

Munsinger Report Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence's findings in the Munsinger inquiry:

The relationship between then associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny and Gerda Munsinger in 1959 — 61 constituted a "startling" security risk, although no actual breach of security was evident.

John Diefenbaker, then prime minister, did not properly handle the case when it was brought to his attention.

Mr. Sevigny did not tell the truth to Mr. Diefenbaker in December of 1960 wwhen he claimed to have ended his association with Mrs. Munsinger months earlier, and should properly have resigned or been dismissed from the cabinet.

The relationship between George Hees, then transport and later trade minister, and Mrs. Munsinger was a casual one, not at all improper in character. But Mr. Hees should have displayed more discretion.

Davie Fulton, then justice minister, should have investigated more fully the security aspects but such action would have been improper without the instructions or approval of the prime minister.

Despite his denial, there could be no other conclusion than that Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger had for some time indulged in intimate sexual relations.

Prime Minister Pearson's action in asking the RCMP for any reports of impropriety involving MPs was a natural and proper one.

Justice Minister Cardin was justified in his contention that certain aspects of the Munsinger case were worse than the Profumo scandal.

Mr. Fulton's action in reporting promptly to Mr. Diefenbaker when he learned of the Munsinger affair was commendable, but his later direction to the RCMP to be kept informed generally was not sufficient.

It was "startling" that Mr. Diefenbaker did not inform Douglas Harkness, then defence minister, of the security risk that had been created by the Sevigny-Munsinger liaison.

It was regrettable that Mr. Diefenbaker did not see fit to testify at the inquiry.

Mrs. Munsinger was a "self-admitted espionage agent" who had carried out assignments of a minor character in Germany for the Russian intelligence service.

She also had a record as a prostitute, petty thief and smuggler and "could very easily betray those who trusted her."

DIEF ON REPORT:

'It's Political Assassination'

TORONTO (CP) — The Star quotes Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker as saying the Munsinger report was "exactly what I expected."

Mr. Diefenbaker was interviewed in Boston, where he and Mrs. Diefenbaker were on a one-day visit. He had not yet read the report of Mr. Justice W. F. Spence criticizing his handling of the Gerda Munsinger affair.

"When he revealed that 'handy document,' I knew what to expect," Mr. Diefenbaker is quoted as saying in reference to a digest of police information released by the commission earlier this year but not dealt with as evidence.

"I simply state no judge or commissioner has the right to examine the exercise of discretion of a prime minister. That hasn't been done since the days of the Star Chamber."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the whole furor over the Munsinger case was "a flagrant attempt . . . at political assassination" by Prime Minister Pearson.

He said he had made his view clear in the past that no security was involved in the affair and he saw no reason to alter it.

Tories See PM Error In Suicide Episode

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today that Prime Minister Pearson when external affairs minister did not put national security first in the 1956 Herbert Norman security case.

In a "preliminary statement" on the judicial report into the Munsinger affair, Mr. Diefenbaker said that the point is made in the report that a doubt as to loyalty must be resolved in favor of the state.

"This was not followed by the present prime minister in the Herbert Norman case," Mr. Diefenbaker added in the statement issued by his office here.

Norman was Canadian ambassador to Egypt when he committed suicide after a U.S. senate committee revived charges against him that he was a communist as a youth.

He quoted Mr. Pearson as saying:

"It has always been a principle and, I think, a correct principle of our security investigation that we would not deal publicly in connection with a security inquiry with the details of any allegations made, for the reason that the details of a man's private life should not be the subject of accusation and rebuttal in public."

Mr. Diefenbaker added: "That was the principle in 1957."

Burning Indictment, Says Socred Chief

EDMONTON (CP)—Robert Thompson, national Social Credit Party leader, today described the Munsinger story, as it developed in the House of Commons and the Spence inquiry, as "a burning indictment of the present operations of politics in Canada."

He said he is convinced political reprisal, rather than the desire to protect the security and general good of the nation, was the reason for bringing the affair into the open.

"Our international reputation has been besmirched and politicians who thought they could gain from it have only lowered the image of public responsibility and the Canadian Parliament."

However he said the report pointed up the "urgent need" to establish a committee to investigate present Canadian security procedures, and to what extent subversive forces and organized crime are at work in the country. He said he had asked Prime Minister Pearson "at least 10 times" to set up such a committee.

"Now the prime minister can no longer procrastinate. To quiet the fears of Canadians and protect those in public life who are concerned over the image of parliament and the integrity of the individual, an investigating committee should be set up immediately."

Mister Diefenbaker has dished it out fer a long time. Now, kin he take it?

Should Have Fired Sevigny, Says Judge

OTTAWA (CP)—The judicial report on the Gerda Munsinger sex-and-security affair today criticized Opposition Leader Diefenbaker on every count.

The report by Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada said that Mr. Diefenbaker, then prime minister, should have removed Pierre Sevigny from the associate defence portfolio in 1960 when he found out about Mr. Sevigny's relationship with Mrs. Munsinger.

It said Mr. Diefenbaker had resolved doubt in a case of national security in favor of Mr. Sevigny instead of in favor of the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker should have consulted the cabinet on the case and have informed Defence Minister Harkness and Trade Minister Hees.

"It is difficult to understand how anyone could be retained in any cabinet post when the slightest doubt remained as to his reliability from the point of view of national security, as all ministers must have access to much classified information, but to retain him as associate minister of national defence under the circumstances would appear to have been most imprudent," the report said.

"A more dangerous cabinet position than that of national defence, from the point of view of espionage by enemy agents or information-seeking by greedy racketeers, could hardly be imagined.

Moved to Another Post

"Even if the decision could be made to retain Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet, surely enough doubt lingered to justify, indeed demand, that he be moved to a cabinet post not so vital to the national security as that of associate minister of national defence."

The report says Mr. Sevigny was sexually intimate with Mrs. Munsinger and told Mr. Diefenbaker "much less than the whole truth" about the affair and that was a "startling danger of blackmail and improper pressure."

PARTIAL TEXT OF REPORT PAGE 15

His attempted concealment of the closeness of his intimacy throughout 1960 "alone should have driven him to tender his resignation."

A more thorough investigation on Mr. Diefenbaker's orders would have revealed a situation which would have entitled Mr. Diefenbaker to call for Mr. Sevigny's resignation.

The judge said Mr. Hees' association with Mrs. Munsinger "would appear to have been a casual one, not at all improper in character."

The inquiry arose when Justice Minister Cardin charged that Mr. Diefenbaker had mishandled the Munsinger case when it was brought to his attention.

Staking his Commons seat on his charges, he also alleged that "two or more" ministers in Mr. Diefenbaker's cabinet were involved with the 37-year-old German woman and that this constituted a security risk.

Security Risk Did Exist

Mr. Justice Spence agreed that a security risk had existed. He also said he is convinced that Conservative Justice Minister Davie Fulton—"despite his failure to remember"—knew that Mrs. Munsinger intended to return to Canada when she left for a trip to Europe in December, 1960.

Mrs. Munsinger lived in Canada from August, 1955, to February, 1961

The judge said "it is to be regretted" that Mr. Diefenbaker didn't testify at the inquiry.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker had made a "most surprising statement" in the Commons March 7 that there had been no danger to national security in the Munsinger case.

He said Justice Minister Cardin's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker had not sought legal advice and that there were circumstances which might have affected security were "justified."

The report said it would have been imprudent and "clearly bad administration" on Prime Minister Pearson's part not to have asked RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan for files indicating impropriety or scandal involving any member of Parliament.

The prime minister's request had been made at the height of the Commons debates on the Lucien Rivard narcotics affair involving allegations of influence peddling.

Pearson Wasn't Prying

Neither Mr. Pearson nor the commissioner could have understood the prime minister's request as an attempt to pry into MPs' lives, the judge said.

"To have contemplated any further investigation by the RCMP four full years after they had reported in December, 1960, would have been purposeless."

Mr. Justice Spence says the same conclusion applies to Guy Favreau, former Liberal justice minister, who was given a copy of the RCMP report Dec. 1, 1964.

Mr. Justice Spence agreed with Mr. Cardin that in some aspects the Munsinger case might well have been worse than the Profumo scandal in Britain in 1963.

In the Profumo case, Christine Keeler had had no contact whatever with any matter concerning espionage or national security and Lord Denning had been satisfied in his investigation that she did not try to obtain any information from British War Minister John Profumo.

"Mrs. Munsinger, on the other hand, according to the RCMP reports which would appear to be the sole source of information available to the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, was said to have acted

FULTON:

'One Man's Opinion'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Davie Fulton, justice minister in the cabinet of then prime minister Diefenbaker at the time of the Munsinger affair, today said the report of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence is "nothing more than one man's opinion six years after the event."

"I do not agree with him," said the Kamloops Progressive Conservative MP. "I have already given my views in my testimony and in the letter I wrote to the commissioner in June.

"Accordingly I have no further comment to make on the commissioner's opinion."

Mr. Fulton added that he did not "think the report accomplishes anything except to demonstrate the pointlessness of the whole inquiry into events of six years ago.

"It is much more important for us to get on with today's business for Canada and that is what I intend to do."

It's Foolish Says Sevigny

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Sevigny, central figure of the Munsinger "affair," said when reached by phone at his brokerage firm here today that his only comment for now on the report of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence is that is "foolish."

"I haven't read it yet—I've been too busy — but I know what's in it," he said.

"This whole business was foolish to begin with and it's as foolish today as it ever was.

"I am not a security risk and I never was a security risk, and beyond that I have no further comment to make for the time being."

No Comment From U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — British authorities today steered clear of comment on the report of a Canadian commission of inquiry into the Gerda Munsinger sex and security scandal.

They declined to express any view on the judgment as a matter of protocol which prevents them from commenting on internal affairs, let alone jurisdiction, of a friendly nation.

The verdict revived, however, recollections of Britain's own sex scandal which involved former defence minister John Profumo during the premiership of Harold Macmillan.

APOSTLE OF NORTH

Broken . . . Buried Symbol Stands Again

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Second annual trek of the East Kootenay Historical Association was held last Sunday and believe it or not, I was in the gathering.

Motoring in the area with a friend, we saw the group on a stretch of ground above the Kootenay River just before you cross the bridge to go down to Canal Flats.

Forbes

Centred on this ground was a brand new provincial government marker well concealed by a Union Jack.

We slowed down to get a better look. In a moment we were waved over to a narrow approach, shown a spot to park our car and were being greeted by the association president, Betty Oliver, and Mayette Slade, who only recently bowed out as a newspaper publisher when she sold the Kimberley Daily Bulletin.

* * *

The marker, we were told, had been erected to the memory of Father Peter de Smet. It was to be unveiled by two oldtimers in the district. The television cameras were there. People had come from as far north as Invermere and from Cranbrook in the south to be present.

It was a short, simple ceremony. Mrs. Oliver spoke briefly on the historical significance of the event. A priest who seemed to know everyone by their first names said a prayer.

A few gentle tugs by aged fingers and the Jack dropped to reveal the shield-shaped marker with its dogwood emblem.

* * *

Sunshine flicked across the faces of those men and women who crowded close to get a good look. And it picked out in bold relief the first words on the marker — "The Apostle of the North."

In her talk Betty Oliver told us a little about this "black-robed priest" who came to the East Kootenays from Montana in 1845 and who travelled back and forth between the border and the Kootenay and Columbia rivers for some years.

He was a "great power for good in the land," she said, and he "smoothed out many difficulties between whites and Indians."

So beloved and respected did he become that the Indians named the country he travelled so frequently between Canal Flats (where we stood last Sunday) and Sinclair Creek (many miles away) the Plains of the Nativity.

In his turn Father de Smet erected a great wooden cross on a river bank in this territory to mark the fact that the Indians had accepted Christianity.

* * *

No doubt Father de Smet thought this cross would stand as a symbol of his time and work over many years. But flood waters on the rivers and streams decreed otherwise.

The cross was eventually broken and buried by mud and almost forgotten. Except by the old ones who knew the story and handed it on to their children.

Finally Oswald McGinnis, now of Invermere, and his brother who is a priest, determined to make an all-out search over the Plains of the Nativity for the relic.

Last Sunday, Mr. McGinnis, older now and slower in movement and speech, stood beneath the newly unveiled marker on the banks of the Kootenay River and told us something of that search.

First the two men read old records (some left by Father de Smet himself). They studied old maps that showed routes the priest had taken on his travels through the country. Then they talked to others who had looked for the cross and to Indians and whites who could go back to a day when the stories were not distorted by time.

* * *

And they pinpointed five or six acres as "about the place" the cross must have been erected. This ground was carefully worked over and narrowed down to an area that in Mr. McGinnis' own words "seemed most likely."

Here they went to work with rakes and shovels. "We covered every inch of it" he said with a quiet note of triumph in his voice," and we found it!"

The cross was in three pieces and scattered in different spots. When it was reassembled in the little Indian church on the Shuswap Reserve — where it stands today — it was 11 feet high and five-and-a-half feet wide.

Next stop on the historical association's trek was down on the flats where remains of a canal that once linked Columbia Lake and Kootenay River were to be viewed. We were invited to "come along."

But first the field director, a tall, dark-haired young man named Larry Miller, told us how and why the canal was built.

He also described the journey of the last boat to go through that canal — back in 1902.

On Monday, I'll try to give you something of that story in this column.

'Think For Yourself'

The world's hungry millions are no longer content to remain hungry, says Dr. Brock Chisholm.

Speaking to Sidney Elementary PTA, he said 20 years ago the hungry were resigned in their belief that their condition could not be altered but this is no longer true.

He said because of this there is a growing hostility towards those whose skins are white.

"White people are in the minority and are considered the bad people by the hungry masses," he said.

Dr. Chisholm said a solution to the world's problems is a radical change of thinking by the younger generation.

Children must be taught to think for themselves and not necessarily accept the ideas of their parents, he said.

Discarded Clothes Needed

Where there's a will there's a way.

Especially when it's Goodwill.

The handicapped society, with brand new offices in Victoria, has plenty of helpers and more than enough space.

But it's looking for a way to round up more odds of material and old clothing.

Said executive director Samuel Rea today: "Goodwill urgently needs more materials.

"We must appeal to the public for more of the discarded household materials on which our whole program is based."

NEW BOOTHS

As part of the stepped-up drive, 10 new blue-and-yellow collection booths are being placed at newly arranged locations throughout Vancouver Island.

At the same time, thousands of Goodwill bags bearing an urgent appeal message, will be distributed to housewives in a door-to-door operation by Goodwill staff and volunteers over the next 10 weeks.

The clothing and material is handled by handicapped people who make it into something useful for selling.

During the first eight months of this year, Goodwill provided training for 137 handicapped people — more than ever before — and paid a record $126,229 in wages.

PATIENT'S AUTOMATIC PILOT

VANCOUVER (CP)—An electronic nurse is the latest piece of equipment at Vancouver General Hospital.

It's called a cardioscope, a $3,600 electronic device presented to the hospital by Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Woodward.

It simultaneously monitors a child's heartbeat, temperature, respiration and pulse rate. It has a built-in alarm which gives warning when, for example, the patient's pulse rate drops below a safe level.

"It acts for the nurse in much the same manner as an automatic pilot in an aircraft," says Dr. Sydney Israels, head of the University of British Columbia pediatrics department.

Mine Fraud Alleged

VANCOUVER (CP) — A defunct Vancouver company and its former manager have been charged in an alleged $100,000 mineral claim fraud.

The charge alleges International Claim Brokers, Ltd., and Walter Harvey Link, 40, used false statements to defraud several persons between January, 1962, and September, 1963.

The case was called in magistrate's court Thursday. Both Link and the company were remanded to Sept. 29 without plea.

A second count charges Link and the company with using the mails for the purpose of transmitting letters and circulars containing a scheme devised or intended to defraud.

Special prosecutor John Spencer told Magistrate James Bartman the amount involved in the alleged fraud was upward of $100,000.

Newsprint Boosted

MONTREAL (CP) — The Newsprint Association of Canada announced Thursday that Canadian newsprint production in August amounted to 730,227 tons, an increase of 67,206 tons or 10.1 per cent over August 1965. Production per available working day averaged 24,855 tons, an increase of 1.5 per cent over the daily average in August 1965.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—After working into a range of both strength and weakness, trading in the grain futures market almost came to a stand-still today.

By early afternoon, soybeans had slid into further weakness for the fourth setback in five days this week. However, the grains were generally firm to strong.

Brokers said the weakness in soybeans reflected further scattered liquidation and a virtual absence of demand. Speculative short covering was credited with the support of wheat and rye, particularly.

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Grain Market took on a firmer appearance today in moderately active trade, steadied by modest rallies on the Chicago grain market.

Oilseeds were active with fair buying interest in flaxseed, spurred by confirmed reports of a major sale to France—estimated at about 8,000 tons—and to Japan. Other countries also were reported interested in flax. Hedging in early prices were fairly well absorbed.

Rapeseed was irregular with easier tones, reflecting a decline in the Chicago soybean market.

Oats and barley moved in a narrow range. A transaction with West Germany was pending on oats and there were reports of British interest in some grades of barley.

No Peace, So Prices Decline

Prices dropped in Wall Street today with no sign of peace in Viet Nam despite a new offer from the United States Thursday.

Toronto prices fell in sympathy with New York.

AT VANCOUVER five mining stocks fell to 1966 lows, Arctic, Jaye Explorations, McKinney, National Ex. and Silver Standard all dipped to new depths for the year as the market remained quiet.

In addition, Bethlehem and Granduc both lost 15 cents and Cascade Moly fell six cents to $1.71 on 33,225 shares.

Silver Arrow, however, recouped some of Thursday's loss by putting on eight cents to 58.

In the industrial section, Steel of Canada reached a new low of $22.50.

AT TORONTO, Inco tumbled 2⅛ to 84⅝ in pacing the market lower. A company spokesman said he knew of no reason for the decline.

Falconbridge, Canada's second largest nickel producer, also retreated, losing 1 to 87½. Bell Telephone slipped ⅝ to a low of 48⅛.

Uraniums sparked a base-metal advance. Denison, which has the world's largest known supply of the precious metal, climbed 1⅛ to 55⅝ and Rio Algom ⅝ to 24½.

AT NEW YORK key stocks lost from fractions to more than a point. Glamor stocks fell 2 or more points.

Du Pont lost 3, Polaroid nearly 5, Fairchild Camera 4, Scientific Data 2.

AT MONTREAL a morning rally failed to maintain itself and the market was almost unchanged towards 2 p.m. today.

Trans-Canada Pipe Line stood 1⅜ higher at 27⅞ and Royal Bank one point at 68⅞.

AT LONDON the stock market was even quieter today than Thursday when markings were at a 1966 low.

Partial Text of Spence Report on Security Scandal

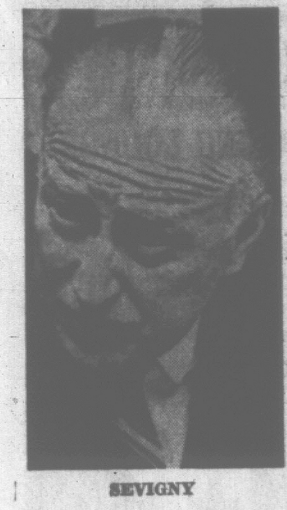
OTTAWA (CP) — Partial text of the report by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence on the Munsinger inquiry:

. . . My main task as commissioner is to determine whether "the case was handled in accordance with the rules and principles normally applicable to persons having access to classified information," although various other and related matters are also referred to this commission. . . .

Evidence was adduced to reveal a set of circumstances which may be very tersely, yet I believe accurately, summarized as follows:

On June 28, 1960, one Gerda Munsinger applied to the Canadian citizenship court for Canadian citizenship. In accordance with the standard routine in such cases, her application was referred to the RCMP for security clearance.

On July 11, 1960, that force commenced its investigation of the applicant, which investigation culminated in the discovery that Gerda Munsinger had had such a checkered career and apparently had become associated with one or more members of the cabinet, that a report thereof reached the desk of the then prime minister, the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker.



SEVIGNY

. . . The application for citizenship filed by Mrs. Munsinger disclosed that her maiden name was Gerda Heseler. Early in the RCMP investigation it was discovered that that name was the subject of a "warning card" showing that Gerda Meseler had been refused a visa for immigration to Canada in 1952.

Self-Admitted Espionage Agent

The investigation which had led up to that rejection disclosed that the then Miss Heseler was a self-admitted espionage agent and, moreover, that she had a record of convictions as a common prostitute, a petty thief and a smuggler. Such a record indicated that Gerda Meseler, as she then was, could very easily betray those who trusted her. . . .

Mrs. Munsinger's espionage activities, the RCMP reports reveal, had been of a minor character but had included contact over a considerable period with a major in the Russian intelligence service and the carrying out of several missions upon the latter's instructions.

CARDIN

There was no evidence that she had not carried out, with equal success, other more difficult missions.

Notwithstanding her previous rejection, Mrs. Munsinger gained entry to Canada in 1955, by the use of her married name. . . .

Following her arrival in Canada, Mrs. Munsinger was required to work as a domestic for one year, this having been a term of the grant to her of an assisted-passage loan. . . .

Paid Back Part of Loan

After her arrival in Canada, Mrs. Munsinger paid back a part only of the . . . loan . . . until November, 1960, when the fact that she had applied for citizenship permitted the immigration branch . . . to locate her and collect the balance. . . .

Mrs. Munsinger's application for citizenship revealed that, since her arrival in Canada in August, 1955, . . . she had visited Panama and Colombia from Nov. 8, 1958, to July 3, 1959, and during that time had visited Mexico. The application also indicated that she had visited West Ger- weeks commencing on Jan. 8, 1958; and again from Feb. 8 to March 9, 1960.

Mrs. Munsinger was interviewed by the RCMP on Nov. 15 and Nov. 16, 1960, and was kept under very close surveillance from about that date until her final departure for Germany on Feb. 5, 1961.

From her interviews, and as a result of this surveillance, it was determined that Mrs. Munsinger had worked as a hostess and cashier at various night clubs in Montreal which were operated by well-known racketeers and persons who had some association with various operators in the narcotics racket.

She was, moreover, during this period engaged in an active career of prostitution and had as her companions, and apparent confidantes, other women in Montreal who were engaged in the same practice.

It appeared that Gerda Heseler had been born in that paet of Germany which is now in the East sector. . . . Her father had been, prior to 1939, a teacher in the KPD school at Konigsberg. The initials KPD are an abbreviation for Kommunist Partische Deutschland, i.3., the German Communist party.

Married Soldier After Rejection

Following the rejection in 1952 of her application for entry into Canada, Gerda Heseler had married a United States Army sergeant named Michael Munsinger.

Her husband had returned to the United States shortly after the marriage but had failed to obtain the entry into the United States of his wife, although he had enlisted the support of a lawyer and a United States senator.

Michael Munsinger had then obtained a divorce from his wife in a court in Alabama on Oct. 14, 1954. . . .

Immediately upon her interview by the RCMP, and as a result of their observations thereafter, the RCMP were convinced that Mrs. Munsinger was having illicit sexual relations with Hon. Pierre Sevigny and, in their report, the RCMP described her as the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's "mistress."

This liaison between the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger was known to her fellow prostitutes and was the subject of some discussion amongst them.

It was also determined that Mrs. Munsinger was acquainted with Mr. Gaston Levesque, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's executive assistant, and that he had not only received messages and telephone calls from her for his minister but had intervened for her on several occasions in reference to her application for citizenship. . . .

Mrs. Munsinger had also boasted that she was acquainted with other cabinet ministers and had given the names of the Hon. George H. Hees and the Hon. Ellen Fairclough.

In discussion with a friend, she had stated that her application for employment in the Canadian embassy in Bonn would be furthered by the Hon. Mr. Hees. It should be noted that no trace of that application has been found and no trace of any connection therewith by the Hon. Mr. Hees has been found.

Bookkeeper For Building

The RCMP reports show that the office od a company, which had business associations with Soviet-bloc countries, was located in the same building in which Mrs. Munsinger resided in Montreal, and that Mrs. Munsinger had a part-time position as a bookkeeper for the building. This position would enable her to go from place to place within the building without question.

Much more detail was included in the RCMP reports and was also outlined in . . . Exhibit 20. . . .

Insofar as Exhibit 20 deals with matters known to the RCMP up to Dec. 7, 1960, such information was given on that day to the Hon. E. D. Fulton, then minister of justice, by the then commissioner of the RCMP, C. W. Harvison, and his deputy commissioner, J. B. McClellan. Such information was later reduced to a written report and that report delivered to the said minister on Dec. 12, 1960. . . .

The factor which precipitated the report by the two RCMP officers to their minister on Dec. 7, 1960, was that information had come from their staff in Montreal that Mrs. Munsinger's liaison with a cabinet minister was known to her questionable associates in Montreal and to the local police.

The RCMP officers, in their evidence, outlined three dangers to national security, which might have then existed:

(a) That Mrs. Munsinger might had been dispatched to Canada by Russian intelligence agents to carry out espionage work. The circumstance that no evidence had been uncovered to confirm this possibility by no means ruled it out.

HEES

(b) That, even if Mrs. Munsinger had come to Canada of her own volition and had intended to carry on as an ordinary immigrant, her past association with Russian espionage made her a likely subject for re-recruitment by them for resumption of such duties.

(c) That Mrs. Munsinger, and those who associated with her, were vulnerable to blackmail by underworld characters, particularly in Montreal, where her liaison with a prominent person was common knowledge in the underworld.

Immediately following the departure of the two RCMP officers from his office on Dec. 12 or 13, the Hon. Mr. Fulton arranged to see the then prime minister, the Rt. Hon. J. G. Diefenbaker, and . . . gave him a short oral report on the situation and left with him the report which had been left by the RCMP commissioner.

The following day, he returned to the prime minister's office. The Hon. Mr. Sevigny was summoned to the meeting; and upon questioning by the prime minister, according to the Hon. Mr. Fulton, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny denied any improper relations with Mrs. Munsinger.

Mistress Charge Denied

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny testified, however, that he did not deny that he had had a physical relationship with Mrs. Munsinger but merely kept silent, although he did deny to the prime minister that Mrs. Munsinger had been his "mistress" as she had been described in the RCMP report. . . .

The prime minister was, to quote the Hon. Mr. Fulton, "not interested in explanations" and told the Hon. Mr. Sevigny that he was concerned about the situation that had been created and that the relationship with Mrs. Munsinger must end and he be satisfied that no breach of security had occurred.

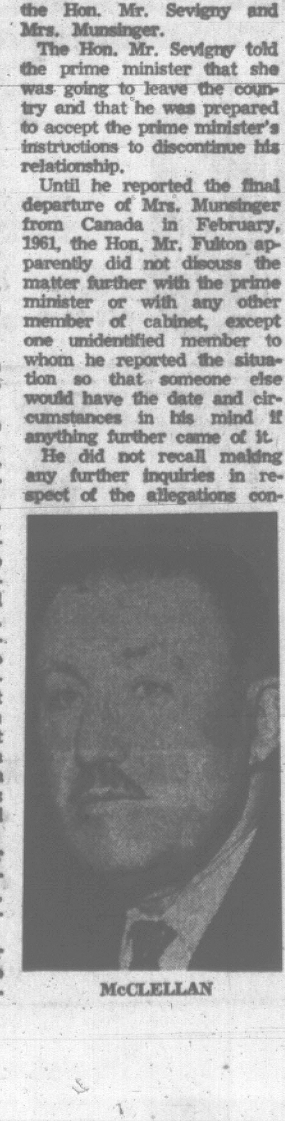
The Hon. Mr. Sevigny had stated that he did not understand why such a serious view was taken of the relationship since the Hon. Mr. George Hees knew her too.

The Hon. Mr. Fulton pointed out that the RCMP report had indicated that the Hon. Mr. Hees' relationship consisted of his seeing her in public on two occasions, unlike the much closer relationship the RCMP knew to exist between the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger.

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny told the prime minister that she was going to leave the country and that he was prepared to accept the prime minister's instructions to discontinue his relationship.

Until he reported the final departure of Mrs. Munsinger from Canada in February, 1961, the Hon. Mr. Fulton apparently did not discuss the matter further with the prime minister or with any other member of cabinet, except one unidentified member to whom he reported the situation so that someone else would have the date and circumstances in his mind if anything further came of it.

He did not recall making any further inquiries in respect of the allegations contained in the report, either from the RCMP or from other sources, nor did he . . . give any instructions to the department of citizenship and immigration. So far as he was aware, the prime minister did not take any further action either.



McCLELLAN

Mrs. Munsinger departed for Germany for a visit on Dec. 17, 1960, and returned to Canada . . . in January, 1961, only to make her final departure from the country on Feb. 5, 1961. This fact was, in due course, conveyed by the RCMP to the Hon. Mr. Fulton and through him to the prime minister.

Other testimony . . . showed that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny had, in September and October of 1960, through his executive assistant, made inquiries and representations on behalf of Mrs. Munsinger to the department of citizenship and immigration in connection with her application for citizenship.

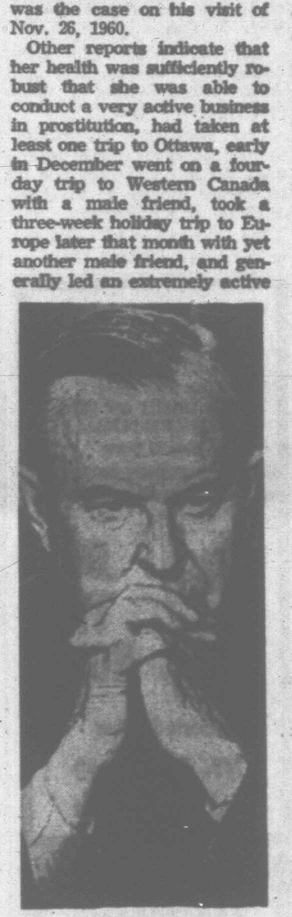
Staff Member Talked to Envoy

In addition, he admitted having had a member of his staff, in November, 1960, see the German consulate to attempt to obtain revalidation of Mrs. Munsinger's German passport.

He also admitted spending the night of Nov. 26 and 27 in her . . . apartment in Montreal, although he denied any impropriety since, through great fatigue, he had slept all night.

He had also seen her, together with Miss Jacqueline Delorme, in Montreal on Nov. 13, 1960, at which time he found her to be in a very bad physical and mental state, as was the case on his visit of Nov. 26, 1960.

Other reports indicate that her health was sufficiently robust that she was able to conduct a very active business in prostitution, had taken at least one trip to Ottawa, early in December went on a four-day trip to Western Canada with a male friend, took a three-week holiday trip to Europe later that month with yet another male friend, and generally led an extremely active round of social activities in Montreal. . . .



PEARSON

It was not until December, 1960, after the Hon. Mr. Sevigny saw the prime minister, that he instructed Mr. Levesque not to put any telephone calls from Mrs. Munsinger through to him. . . .

At the commencement of the session on May 18, Mr. C. F. H. Carson, QC, had announced that he and his cocounsel, Mr. C. L. Dubin, QC, and Mr. J. R. Houston, had been instructed by their clients, the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker and the E. D. Fulton, not to participate further in the hearings and to withdraw therefrom.

Deprived Of Submissions

This commission, therefore, regrettably was deprived of the opportunity to hear the submissions of these learned counsel. Such counsel, however, had participated fully in the proceedings of this commission prior to May 18, 1966. . . .

As I have already said, in my view, my main task as commissioner was to determine whether the proper decisions were made by the government of the day upon receipt of the reports of the RCMP.

It was clear from the evidence given by the Hon. E. D. Fulton that he accepted such reports at their face value and communicated them to the Right Hon. John G. Diefenbaker, the then prime minister, on the basis that they constituted a valid outline of the information available in the hands of the RCMP.

It will be seen, therefore, that the then prime minister was confronted with decisions as to whether there had been (a) a breach of security and-or (b) a security risk. . . .

For the purposes of this report, the word "security" must be understood to indicate the measures used to prevent, or at least hinder, the obtaining of classified information by persons who are agents of any foreign power or who are, or may be, in contact with such agents.

A "security breach," therefore, occurs when such persons are permitted to obtain such information.

A "security risk" on the other hand, is created when such persons might be able to obtain such information. . . .

I make the statement at once that there is no scintilla of evidence or any indication that there was any disloyalty involved in any of the circumstances which I have investigated. . . .

Did Not Call For Review

Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker:

It was submitted in argument that, upon the presentation of the RCMP report, the then prime minister did not call for a complete review by his minister of justice or the latter's staff of the detailed reports upon which the brief, as the RCMP described it, was based.

It was also submitted that the then prime minister failed to order a continued and further investigation by the RCMP, under the guidance and direction of the law officers of the Crown, with the view of determining whether any security breach had occurred already or whether a situation which constituted a security risk existed. . . .

It was submitted that such continued investigation, and particularly a searching investigation of the relationship between the Hon. Pierre Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger during the months of 1960 following January, would have clearly indicated that the relationship had not been discontinued, except for a few casual occasions, as alleged by that minister, but that he was still in close and frequent touch and that, therefore, he told "less than the whole truth" to the then prime minister. . . .

Such investigation could only have resulted in the demand for his resignation. . . .

Continuing Security Risk

It was argued that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker did not seem to appreciate the continuing security risk posed by his retention of the Hon. Pierre Sevigny in his then cabinet post or any cabinet post. . . .

These dangers were both outlined to the Hon. E. D. Fulton by then commissioner Harvison, and the Hon. Mr. Fulton has testified that he alerted the then prime minister to such risks, who, nevertheless, seemed to conclude that it was sufficient to:

(a) Assure himself that no breach of security had occurred—and, in fact, all the RCMP could say was that they had no evidence whatsoever of it and that no further investigation had been ordered;

(b) Strictly forbid any further association by the Hon. Pierre Sevigny with Mrs. Munsinger.

This decision, he seemed to believe, was assisted by the prospect that Mrs. Munsinger was leaving Canada at an early date. The Hon. Mr. Fulton evidently regarded this as her decision to leave permanently.

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny has testified that he told the then prime minister that Mrs. Munsinger was preparing to leave the country in a permanent fashion. . . .

The memorandum on the citizenship file and the memorandum on the immigration file convince me, despite the Hon. Mr. Fulton's failure to remember, that in December, 1960, he knew Mrs. Munsinger intended to return to Canada—the first of these memos was previous to the conference of Dec. 12-13, 1960, with the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, and the second was made between Dec. 16 and 19, 1960.

. . . Even on the basis that he thought Mrs. Munsinger was leaving Canada permanently at an early date, was the forbidding of any continuance of the relationship between the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger sufficient to eliminate the security risk. . . .

It must be concluded that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker determined they were not, in fact, risks because of his personal assessment of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny as a person who would never permit pressure or blackmail to influence him.

Was the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker justified in this assessment of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny?

The Hon. Mr. Fulton has declared subsequent events vindicated the then prime minister.

Even if no security risk occurred thereafter as the result of the decision, surely that is not vindication. Doubt must always be resolved in favor of the "national security."

The cabinet directives make that plain, even in the case of a Crown servant in a much less sensitive area than any cabinet minister, let alone the associate minister of national defence.

Certainly the RCMP reports, which the Hon. Mr. Fulton says he accepted at their face value, raised doubt that such a risk existed and would, for the reasons outlined above, continue to exist after Mrs. Munsinger's departure.

The prime minister determined he could resolve that doubt in favor of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's retention in the cabinet on the basis of his personal assessment of the man.

But . . . even a check of the investigation reports which were the basis of the RCMP brief would have shown that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny was not telling the whole truth.

The minister had reacted badly under the pressure of the interview itself—had tried to claim he was no worse than a colleague, the Hon. George Hees, although he now admits he knew only of a very casual association between that minister and Mrs. Munsinger.

Moreover, and most important, was not the then prime minister too closely associated with the Hon. Mr. Sevigny to be able to make such a vital decision? . . .

Personal Decision

There is much merit in the argument submitted that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker should not have made a personal private decision on this most important question.

Cabinet solidarity and joint responsibility are real factors. The other members of the cabinet, in their everyday conduct of the nation's business, had to deal constantly with the Hon. Mr. Sevigny.

Surely it would have been only fair and proper, and wise as well, to consult them as to whether, in their opinion, that minister could continue in the cabinet without risk to the national security.

It may perhaps be conjectured that these other ministers would not have been content to make their decision on the basis of the RCMP brief and their personal acquaintance with the Hon. Mr. Sevigny, and would have insisted on a careful scrutiny of the reports which were the basis of that brief and on a further investigation as well.

It is significant that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker's decision was just to do nothing else but forbid the continued association. There was another alternative open to him. . . .

Consideration could have been given to appointing the Hon. Mr. Sevigny to a much less sensitive post.

A more dangerous cabinet position than that of national defence, from the point of view of espionage by enemy agents or information seeking by greedy racketeers, could hardly be imagined.

Given Post Not so Vital

Even if the decision could be made to retain the Hon. Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet, surely enough doubt lingered to justify, indeed demand, that he be moved to a cabinet post not so vital to the national security as that of associate minister of national defence.

It is difficult to understand how anyone could be retained in any cabinet post when the slightest doubt remained as to his reliability from the point of view of national security, as all ministers must have access to much classified information, but to retain him as associate minister of national defence under the circumstances would appear to have been most imprudent. . . .

Having left the Hon. Mr. Sevigny undisturbed in his portfolio as associate minister of national defence until his resignation Feb. 8, 1963, the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker refrained from even acquainting the senior minister in that department, the Hon. Douglas Harkness, of the security risk, for such I believe it was.

Even if the remainder of the cabinet need not be consulted or informed, it was, in my considered opinion, startling that the member of the cabinet chiefly responsible for the department of national defence should not have been informed of the situation.

FULTON

The Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker failed to inform the Hon. George Hees of the situation revealed in the RCMP brief. . . .

It would have been no less d thanub dinary prudence to have warned the Hon. Mr. Hees in what an invidious position even his past association with Mrs. Munsinger, no matter how casual it might have been, could place him, let alone what serious consequences might flow from a continuation or renewal of that association.

Not Improper In Character

I say this despite the fact that on all the evidence before this commission, the association between the Hon. George Hees and Mrs. Munsinger would appear to have been a casual one, not at all improper in character.

Indeed, the Hon. Mr. Hees himself, in his testimony, agreed that the information he later obtained, after this commission was created, would have precluded him from entering into even such a casual relationship.

There has been referred to this commission, by the provisions of the Privy Council order setting it up . . . what was said in the House of Commons on March 7, 1966.

At page 2299 of Hansard, the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker is reported as having said:

"Mr. Diefenbaker: Mr. Chairman, he thought by that—and the threat was made over and over again as to what they were going to do—that they were going to close our mouths.

"Let me make this statement unequivocally: In no case, and I am naturally bound by my oath as a privy councillor — which apparently did not apply to the minister of justice—was there ever any breach of security in this nation in any case referred to or conjured up by him.

"Secondly, there was no danger to national security and I will go into that tonight, in anything that took place."

This seems to be a most surprising statement in view of the uncontradicted evidence that the whole matter arose out of an investigation by the RCMP upon the subject of security, and the further fact that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker's own minister of justice admitted in his testimony that the report was concerned with a possible security risk ". . . a danger to national security," which the said minister of justice recognized.

It is, of course, to be regretted that the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, did not see fit to appear before this commission and give me his testimony on this and many other subjects.

Accept Facts As Reported

The Hon. E. Davie Fulton:

It was submitted that the then minister of justice had not gone behind the RCMP brief to assure himself of the prima facie soundness of the allegations therein by checking the sources thereof. . . .

Mr. Fulton, in his evidence, has testified that "I accepted the correctness of the facts as they were reported to me."

"I made only one enquiry, as I think I told you; were they satisfied as to the accuracy of the allegations that they had made?"

It would seem to me that the action of the minister of justicein ac cepting the RCMP brief without verifying the conclusions contained therein was sufficient for the purpose of reporting to his prime minister, the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker. This reporting, with such promptness, is commendable.

It may well be that the Hon. Mr. Fulton should have given the most careful consideration to the RCMP reports which were the basis of their brief, or more properly have delivered them to the experienced law officers of Crown for such careful consideration in order to accomplish another and a very proper purpose.

The Hon. Mr. Fulton testified he inquired on several occasions whether there was any evidence of a breach of security for Canada and was informed that there was not.

Now officers of the RCMP are those charged with investigation in security matters and are the only skilled investigators who could make further investigation and reports on security matters.

RCMP Task: Fact-Finders

Any other information to the government would have to be submitted to them for confirmation. Their task, however, is that of fact-finders.

The evaluation of those facts in law and the testing as to whether all available facts have been properly investigated is the task of a skilled law officer.

I am of the opinion that the Hon. Mr. Fulton should not have been content to leave the question of whether there had been a breach of security, for instance any offence against the Official Secrets Act, to be determined only from the bare conclusion stated in the RCMP brief.

It must be remembered that the whole of the RCMP investigation up to the time the brief was handed to the Hon. Mr. Fulton was as to the past and present conduct of Mrs. Munsinger.

It is my certain view that the law officers would not be content with such a partial investigation and would not have agreed that there had been no breach of security—statement that there was up to then no evidence of such breach — without a complete investigation of the conduct of others than Mrs. Munsinger.

The duty of the prime ministers was to deal with the members of his cabinet and to determine, either alone where appropriate or in cabinet meeting, whether various of the members of it should so remain.

It was the duty of the minister of justice to determine by his own, or even better by his officers' careful consideration, whether any security offences had been committed.

Political Pressure

An example of a matter which certainly could have been the subject of further careful investigation and consideration was the statement . . . that Noel, the security officer of the Montreal shop which had caused Mrs. Munsinger's arrest on Feb. 3, 1961, reported that Montreal police had informed him that political pressure was being brought to bear on them for Mrs. Munsinger's release and that, if charges were pressed, an important political figure would be blackmailed.

This was one of the very types of danger to the national security which the RCMP feared.

The report indicated that an offence had been committed, not that one might be committed. There was certainly a duty to investigate furher and, at that time, the sources of information were known and easily reached.

Yet I am not of the opinion that the RCMP, having reported to its minister, could have investigated further reports of political pressure and blackmail of an important political person without instructions from the minister of justice and these the Hon. Mr. Fulton did not give.

In my view, his direction to

Four Babies Trying Out New Parents

ARRIVAL of four baby boys, all less than a month old, and all adoptable, had Family and Children's Service social workers scurrying to find homes for them. Since no permanent homes have been found, all four are going to foster homes for maximum five-month period. Here foster parents Ann and William Greenhalgh, of 1682 Stellys Crossroad, hold foster child they will care for as three-year-old Jennifer Greenhalgh views the temporary family member. Other three babies in front await arrival of their foster parents. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

A young Victoria couple brought home a new baby Thursday to join their three-year-old girl and their boy, six.

But the baby, a boy, didn't make the usual trip from hospital to home.

Instead, he stopped halfway at the city welfare centre on Cook Street, where his new parents, William and Ann Greenhalgh, received last minute tips from social workers of the Family and Children's Service.

●

For they are his foster parents, and the baby is just theirs for a short time, five months at the most.

Besides the Greenhalgh's baby, three others, all less than a month old, all boys, were waiting at the centre for their foster parents.

Social worker Mrs. Olive Hatter, who is in charge of adoption placements for the Family and Children's Service, explained that it's rare that four babies, all adoptable, should arrive at once with no permanent homes waiting for them.

But since the beginning of the year 20 adoptable babies have come through the agency, including the four babies sent to foster homes Thursday.

For William Greenhalgh, a janitor at the Queen Alexandra Solarium, and his wife, their foster baby is a first.

And although the addition may take "a lot of adjusting," said Mrs. Greerhalgh with a smile, he's expected to fit into their family life nicely for the length of his stay.

The three other babies will go to foster parents who are a cross section of ones the Family and Children's Service accepts.

●

One goes to a widow who has three children of her own plus a "permanent" foster child, one who for various reasons cannot be adopted.

Another baby will find a home with a family which numbers three children and has already had one foster baby in their midst.

An older couple, in their 60s, with their own children married, will provide a foster home for the last baby.

But the big question is where will these babies go later? Foster homes are only temporary. Who will adopt them for ever?

It's the question that plagues Mrs. Hatter and other social workers year in, year out.

Prospective aprents for a child are of course screened carefully by the agency, and much thought is given each case before a child will be placed permanently in a new home.

But the requirements, as Mrs. Hatter outlined them, are less strict than many people think.

For instance, there is no minimum income that a family must have before it can adopt a child.

●

"Just as long as they can manage" with an extra mouth to feed, they qualify.

A separate bedroom for the child isn't necessary either.

"We place a large number of babies in homes of service personnel," said Mrs. Hatter. "The adoption can be completed in another province if the family is transferred."

Because an unwed mother is more likely to keep a girl than a boy, "we have homes waiting for baby girls, but not for baby boys."

Consequently there is a one-year waiting period to adopt a girl; but for a baby boy the placement will be made almost as soon as a home is accepted by the agency.

Adopting parents must be at least 21, but babies are now being placed with couples up to 40 or 45 years ~~old,~~ said Mrs. Hatter, an increase on the age accepted for adopting parents previously.

Often, she said, babies are placed with older couples who may have been married later than most.

●

The four babies who left hospital Thursday may stay with their foster parents until the end of February at the latest.

Mrs. Hatter and other social workers have until then to find people who want these babies permanently.

With more sound than fury, summer 1966 packed up, had a good cry and left for good.

The thunderstorm that lit Victoria skies Thursday leaving a third of an inch of rain, some fallen trees, and fields full of frightened livestock, ended just a few hours before autumn began.

The new season came in at 4:43 a.m.—two days later than usual, because of changes in the heavens.

Lower Island police departments report the two-hour storm did little damage beyond felling one tree at Swartz Bay, another at Sooke, and causing TV interference.

B.C. Hydro says it "got off lightly."

The one emergency crew it sent out "wasn't doing much more than chasing rainbows," said a spokesman.

RARE HERE

Victoria weather office said that while thunderstorms as spectacular as Thursday are rare here, other cities have them every month.

A weatherman said it can rain as much as four inches in six hours on Vancouver Island's west coast.

Early fall will be much like late summer—a little sun here, a little cloud there, and possibly rain on the weekend.

Injunction Sought By Island Group

The troubled waters of Buttle Lake reached boiling point today as the final clash between conservationists and mining interests drew near.

While conservationists lashed the decision to allow Western Mines to dump tailings in Buttle Lake, lawyers were preparing an appeal for an injunction against any dumping by the mine.

Said lawyer Anthony Sarich of Campbell River today: "We should know by Thursday or Friday whether the B.C. Supreme Court will grant an injunction.

"If the court doesn't allow the appeal, I have instructions to take the matter to the Supreme Court of Canada."

Mr. Sarich is representing Greater Campbell River Water District, chief opponents of the mine dumping. The district receives it's water supply from the lake.

COMMITTEE

Following the granting of a dumping permit to the mine by the provincial Pollution Control Board, Campbell River Chamber of Commerce Thursday night set up a special committee to publicize the controversial issue.

Granting of an injunction will leave two courses open to the water district.

It can appeal to the cabinet to rescind Western's permit.

Or apply for a Crown Office Writ in which case the hearing would be held before a Supreme Court judge.

Either course, if successful, would prevent what opponents refer to as "pollution" of the beautiful lake in Strathcona Park, west of Campbell River.

NO HEARING

Conservationists and lawyers are upset that no public hearing was called before the permit was granted.

Said Mr. Sarich: "We had hired skilled personnel of the B.C. Research Council to help prepare our case.

In Victoria, Oak Bay Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane, who has opposed desecration of provincial parks in the legislature, called for a full review of the case at cabinet level.

MORE SUPPORT

Backing him up was New Democratic leader Robert Strachan who stated:

"This is only the beginning and I hope the public reaction against this final act (of desecration) will be of such magnitude that the government will have to reverse itself and change its position.

Howard Paish, executive director of B.C. Wildlife Service said: "The Pollution Control Board had its hands tied from the start.

"It's deplorable the way the politicians put the civil servants in this position."

"The whole thing is a complete and utter farce. The government's decision was ridiculous. There is a total lack of resource planning and resource management."

While the official guns await the decision of the legal machine, a number of unofficial guns have been brought to play.

VILLAGE COMMISSIONER

One of these is village commissioner Ken Forde, an outspoken Campbell River garage owner, who is circulating his own petitions.

By the beginning of next month he hopes to have 2,000 petitions completed with some 35 names on each.

The company has promised to dump the waste at a depth of 130 feet some 30 miles from where Campbell River draws its water and apparently has convinced the pollution control board that adequate precautions would be taken to ensure no pollution.

In an official statement Thursday, the board said:

"It is expected that the wastes will be rendered harmless at disposal; however, should there be evidence of a rising level to any harmful amount of any matters disposed of, the board will by conditions of its permit require Western Mines to remedy the situation."

The company has further promised to police the dumping operation and file regular reports to the Pollution Control Board.

UBCM Delegates Quiz Campbell on Remarks

By JIM HUME

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell was challenged this morning to make clear his stand on 19 proposed changes in the Municipal Act.

The challenge came from Mayor Bill Rathie, Vancouver, and Ald. Michael Griffin of Victoria on the last day of the 63rd convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at Penticton.

Ald. Griffin said he understood the minister had stated to the Victoria Times that he was opposed to all 19 recommendations proposing major changes in the existing act. (See earlier story on Page 6.)

Mayor Rathie said that if the statement was true the minister should be asked to give an accounting.

Mr. Campbell, out of the convention hall at the time, was hurriedly called to the platform.

ANSWER: NO

"I understand the question is 'Am I opposed to all the recommendations placed before the convention earlier' ", he said. "The answer is no.

"I have discussed this question with the reporter from the Victoria Times this morning and there is apparently a difference of opinion on what I said, which one comes to expect in public life.

"My department is neither the protagonist nor the antagonist of these recommendations."

Mr. Campbell said the recommendations, presented for an expression of opinion from the convention, would be studied further and would also be taken to the people of the province for an expression of their point of view.

"At this time we do not take a position either way," he said.

Ald. Griffin had one further question.

"Did you or did you not make the statement attributed to you in the Times?"

"I did not," answered Mr. Campbell. "I have already explained that I have talked with the reporter and there is a difference of opinion."

Thursday in an interview outside the convention hall Mr. Campbell said wide open shopping hours, one of the recommendations endorsed by the convention, "hasn't a hope of becoming law."

Asked if he was against wide open store hours Mr. Campbell replied "I am against every one of them," pointing to the list of 19 recommendations.

The quote was repeated to him and he was told that it would be used. He replied "Go ahead."

This morning, prior to the opening of the final session, he said he had obviously been misunderstood and made the statement he later repeated to the 1,100 delegates.

PATIENT INJURED IN CRASH

A Comox airman remains critically ill today after an ambulance rushing him to Victoria Thursday crashed with a car and overturned.

Leading Aircraftsman Norman Lambly suffered chest injuries in the collision at Admirals and Craigflower about suppertime.

A suspected appendicitis case, he was being rushed to the Canadian Forces Base hospital at Esquimalt for possible surgery.

Drivers of the car and ambulance received only minor injuries in the crash which caused $1,000 damage.

Reeve Adamson of Sidney, the ambulance driver and PO Roy Miller spent the night at the military hospital after being "badly shaken up."

The driver of the car, Norma Lohbrunner of Cogan Road, was released after treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

LAC Lambly was first taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital and later transferred to CFB Hospital. He had been flown to Victoria airport from the Comox base. A navy spokesman said the injured man's wife arrived in Victoria early today.

STORE HOURS CONTROVERSY

'UBCM Passing the Buck'

Municipal leaders were criticized today for wanting to opt out of administration and control of store hours.

The chairman of the retail group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Lloyd Davies, called the action "buck-passing" and a backward step.

John Nicol, a Victoria Labour Council delegate and member of a labor-merchant committee on store hours, commented:

"The whole issue can be summed up as a sick business world, a sick group of municipal leaders, business leaders and the community at large."

At the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention Thursday, the 1,100 delegates passed the resolution in less than two minutes.

Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Everett Brown said if the legislature endorses the resolution "it means as Reeve Emmott (of Burnaby) said that there will be no governing body to restrict or govern store hours in the future."

Mr. Davies said regulating store hours is a regional matter because each city has its own set of problems.

For example, Victoria was oriented towards tourism but this was not the case with Fraser Valley communities.

It would be unfair if the government set regulations for the whole province because the problems of each community differed.

Vancouver has its own charter and could do what it wants and this may lead other cities to requesting charters.

Mr. Nicol said probably it is not realized fully what effect bylaws can have on the retail industry at large.

But in the United States "the small man will soon become either extinct or a servant of the large corporations."

Mr. Nicol said there are no regulations in B.C. requiring stores or employees to have statutory holidays as a day of rest.

The Esquimalt Garden Club fall show at Jubilee Hall on Fraser Street will be opened Saturday from 2 to 7 p.m. There will be an auction at 7 p.m. of the vegetables and flowers.

EVERYTHING TURNS UP ROSES FOR 'FLOWER'

A strayed skunk has been returned to her owners, Mr. and Mrs. C. Blahitka, 4160 Carey, after her photo appeared in Wednesday's Times.

The SPCA knew her as Lotus Blossom. But to the Blahitkas, newcomers from Rainy River, Ont., she was just plain Flower.

Flower, or Lotus Blossom's big adventure began when she wandered from the Blahitka's new home several weeks ago, and ended with a TV appearance Thursday.

SPCA officials were certain all along that she was someone's pet because she was deodorized, and because skunks are not native to the Island.

But several other owners of strayed skunks, both male and female, called in to see if Flower was theirs, so "it looks like we're going to have a skunk population after all," concluded one official.

. . . PARTIAL TEXT OF SPENCE REPORT

be kept informed generally, was not sufficient. . . .

I am not of the opinion that the Hon. Mr. Fulton can be criticized for taking the stand that, not only was the decision of whether or or not to retain the Hon. Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet that of the then prime minister, but that the decision to do so without furher investigation was also his.

In my view, it would have been improper for the Hon. Mr. Fulton, without the then prime minister's instructions or approval, to have instituted a further investigation as to the continuing security risk. I have already commented on the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker's decision.

Should the Hon. Mr. Fulton have insisted that the whole matter be canvassed in cabinet, or at least that the Hon. Messrs. Harkness and Hees be informed and, failing in having either of these suggestions accepted, have resigned?

Fulton Agreed With Decision

It would appear to have been proper assistance to the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, in what must have been a difficult position, to have suggested cabinet consideration or at least that these two other ministers be informed.

The Hon. Mr. Fulton stated, however, the decisions were the then prime minister's and whether the decision was a wise one or not, I am ready to conclude that the Hon. Mr. Fulton, albeit with some considerable misgiving, agreed with it.

Indeed, he alleged it was vindicated by subsequent events. Therefore he did not consider that he was called upon to resign.

I am ready to conclude that the Hon. Mr. Fulton did personally, and on his own initiative, take some steps even before he conferred with the then prime minister.

I find the memorandum on the citizenship file, dated Dec. 7, 1960, . . . as most convincing. It reads:

"File of Mrs. Gerda Munsinger

"From: Registrar of Canadian citizenship

"Dr. Davidson spoke to me about this case today and said that the minister had informed him that a certificate was not to be granted until the case was first brought to her attention.

"I informed Dr. Davidson that the RCMP had reported by a letter on Oct. 21 that their inquiries were still under way and that we would be advised of the results at the earliest possible date.

"Care must be taken not to move towards the grant of a certificate of Canadian citizenship in this case until it has been brought to the attention of the deputy minister. Bring it to my attention as soon as the report is received from the RCMP.

"J. E. Duggan,
"Registrar."

Neither the Hon. Mr. Fulton nor Dr. Davidson nor Mr. Duggan . . . nor the Hon. Mrs. Fairclough . . . was able to remember the instance there recorded, but none could deny that it had occurred.

Convincing Evidence

I am of opinion that this is just an honest and reasonable failure of personal recollection after 5½ years and that the contemporaneous memorandum is the most cogent and convincing evidence that, immediately on receiving the first verbal report from the RCMP on Dec. 7, 1960, the Hon. Mr. Fulton must have taken steps to stay Mrs. Munsinger's application for Canadian citizenship.

Further the long memorandum signed at Dr. Davidson's instructions by his assistant, Mr. J. S. Cross, dated Dec. 27, 1960, . . . contains the statement:

"He was hoping we might be willing to take a calculated risk and stamp her passport 'Refused Re-entry to Canada,' but after consultation with the minister and Mr. Fulton, minister of justice, also Bakserville and Chalmers) I said that we could not legally do that. It was finally decided that nothing could be done."

Again, neither the Hon. Mr. Fulton nor Dr. Davidson had any memory of the event reported in that sentence, although Dr. Davidson remembered the details in reference to the conference with the RCMP officers. . . .

Again, as against failing memory, I am convinced . . . that there was an attempt made by the RCMP to prevent Mrs. Munsinger's re-entry into Canada and that that effort had the co-operation of both the Hon. Mrs. Fairclough and the Hon. Mr Fulton.

Such independent action on the Hon. Mr. Fulton's part was commendable. It is regrettable that he did not take the other independent action which I have suggested above. . . .

The Hon. George H. Hees:

In considering the Hon. Mr. Hees' position, it is my intention to have regard only to the evidence adduced before the commission.

Many wild rumors were current and livid stories appeared, especially in the foreign press. . . . I intend to pay no more attention to them than in the case of others with whom this report is concerned.

The evidence before the commission consisted of two main sources: Firstly, the statements in the RCMP brief and, secondly, the evidence given to the commission by the Hon. Mr. Hees himself with some references to his situation in the evidence of the Hon. Mr. Fulton, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mr. Gaston Levesque.

In . . . the version of the RCMP reports prepared to eliminate matters of secrecy, it was stated . . . ". . . that she knew several members of the federal cabinet and namedM r. Hees, the former minister of transport and then minister of trade and commerce, and Mrs. Fairclough, the minister of citizenship and immigration, and said she knew others."

Again, . . . there appears the reported statement of Mrs. Munsinger to a friend that ". . . a friend of hers, George Hees, had been transferred from the ministry of transport to the ministry of trade and commerce.

"She claimed that he would probably start things popping and she said that she would call Mr. Hees and see what he was doing."

No Help To Gerda

In his testimony, the Hon. Mr. Hees denied that he had ever attempted to assist Mrs. Munsinger to obtain a position and that she, or anyone on her behalf, had ever requested that he do so.

The Hon. Mr. Hees also denied that he had ever exerted any pressure to have her released from arrest in February, 1961.

The Hon. Mr. Hees admitted knowing Mrs. Munsinger and testified he had been introduced to her at a banquet given in the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's honor in Montreal, about the end of September, 1959. At that banquet over 3,000 people were present.

The Hon. Mr. Hees could not identify the person who had so introduced him.

He further testified that, on two different occasions thereafter, Mrs. Munsinger had come to Ottawa and telephoned to request that he should take her out to luncheon—a request with which he complied. The Hon. Mr. Nees stated further that on one occasion, being in Montreal, he had requested her to accompany him to dinner and that she had done so.

The Hon. Mr. Hees testified that these were the only four occasions on which he had seen Mrs. Munsinger and that nothing improper occurred on any occasion.

That his memory might not have been totally accurate is indicated by the evidence of Gaston Levesque . . . that, in October, 1960, while attending Mrs. Munsinger at a bar in the Beacon Arms Hotel in Ottawa on the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's instructions, . . . the Hon. Mr. Hees entered, was greeted by Mrs. Munsinger, who went over to speak to him and returned to inform Mr. Levesque that the Hon. Mr. Hees was to be appointed minister of trade and commerce. He was so appointed on Oct. 11, 1960.

Association Was Unwise

There was certainly no breach of security revealed in the evidence above recited. The minister freely admitted that, judging from Mrs. Munsinger's character as revealed later and reported to this commission, even that slight association might have been unwise.

Accidental contacts and association with hundreds of peopl are difficult for any minister to avoid. Indeed, such avoidance is not desirable. . . .

Nevertheless, the Hon. Mr. Hees was a minister of the Crown holding an important portfolio in the government of Canada. He and other ministers must and do realize that many persons seek closer association with them than the positions of such persons justify, perhaps with the intention of improperly currying favors or exerting influence. It must have been apparent to the Hon. Mr. Hees that Mrs. Munsinger desired closer association with him. . . .

Would it not have been prudent on the Hon. Mr. Hees' part to have found out, from whomever introduced Mrs. Munsinger on the first occasion, something more about her — perhaps particularly, whether she had sought out the introduction?

There was no security breach; as events turned out, there was no security risk. But if the association had continued and intensified there might have been a security risk. The lack of discretion was slight but regrettable.

The Hon. Ellen Fairclough:

. . . The Hon Mrs. Fairclough did not appear before the commission and was not represented by counsel, Such incidental part as she played in the matter I have dealt with above and I have no further comment to make.

The Hon. Pierre Sevigny:

The associate minister of national defence is the minister with whose conduct and position this commission has been chiefly concerned.

He appeared before the commission and gave extensive evidence. He was subjected to careful cross-examination by all concerned.

Friend Called As Witness

Moreover, his counsel called as a witness Miss Jacqueline Delorme who was a friend of both the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger.

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny was appointed associate minister of national defence on Aug. 20, 1959. He has testified that in early September, 1959, he met Mrs. Munsinger ". . . at a social reunion in the Sheraton-Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal.

"I was present with quite a few friends who were more or less in a party mood. They told me they would be having dinner later, and one of them said his escort would be a very beautiful young lady. He eventually introduced me to Mrs. Munsinger."

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny was very emphatic in his description of the attractiveness of Mrs. Munsinger's person and her personality.

It would appear on his own testimony that their acquaintanceship ripened rapidly, and I can best summarize the result of long examination and cross-examination by quoting the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's testimony as to his conference with the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker and the Hon. Mr. Fulton on Dec. 13, 1960:

"But, My Lord, I never denied during that interview that I had had a relationship, a physical relationship, with Mrs. Munsinger."

In viewing that statement and the evidence which preceded it, there can be no other conclusion than that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny and Ms. Munsinger had for some time indulged in intimate sexual relations, and the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's counsel so admitted.

Maintained Position

It was the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's testimony that such close association ceased in January, 1960, after Miss Delorme had informed him that Mrs. Munsinger had an unfortunate tendency to speak much too openly of her association with well-known persons. . . .

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny maintained that position throughout cross - examination and even volunteered that he had instructed his office staff not to permit Mrs. Munsinger to speak to him on the telephone.

He assigned no definite time to the issuance of such instructions but it must have been, on his testimony, before November, 1960, fr he gave this as the reason she could not speak to him on the telephone about the extension of her German passport immediately prior to their meeting of Nov. 26-27, 1960.

Even on the basis of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's testimony, however, the meetings during such period were not so infrequent as he pictured.

He admitted in cross-examination to a meeting "around February, 1960," when Mrs. Munsinger was engaged in a fashion show in Ottawa, and again in October, 1960, when Mrs. Munsinger had come to Ottawa with friends. . . .

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny has also admitted that he saw Mrs. Munsinger at her apartment on the night of Nov. 26, 1960, and that he left at 7:35 a.m. the next morning, as he testified, after falling asleep following a long day's work and a long conversation in regard to Mrs. Munsinger's problems. . . .

Evidence Revealing

Mr. Levesque's evidence is even more revealing. He testified that he became executive assistant to the Hon. Mr. Sevigny on Sept. 21, 1959, and remained such until the minister's resignation.

He remembers four occasions when, as such, he met Mrs. Munsinger, and that as well he had spoken to her on the telephone.

On cross-examination he detailed these four occasions as, once in the minister's office in the spring of 1960 before the beginning of May, once at the Riverside Steak House in Ottawa in the summer of 1960, once at the bar in the Beacon Arms Hotel on Oct. 10 or Oct. 11, 1960, and once in her apartment in Montreal at a date which he could not fix.

On the first occasion Mrs. Munsinger came to the office to see the Hon. Mr. Sevigny but he was at a meeting of the Privy Council and she left without seeing him.

On the third occasion, Mr. Levesque had been dispatched by the Hon. Mr. Sevigny to see Mrs. Munsinger.

On the second and fourth occasions, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny was present, and on the fourth Mr. Levesque departed, leaving the Hon. Mr. Sevigny in the apartment.

In addition, Mr. Levesque identified his letter appearing in the citizenship file, . . . and dated September 9, 1960, as having been written on the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's instructions and swore that a telephone inquiry by him as indicated by a notation in the same file dated Nov. 24, 1960, would also have been made on the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's instructions.

All of this evidence leads one to the conclusion that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's association with Mrs. Munsinger during the whole of 1960 was closer and more frequent than he desired the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker to realize and much closer than he desired this commission to ascertain.

The inevitable corollary of this is that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny told his prime minister much less than the whole truth, and surely that fact alone should have driven him to tender his resignation.

. . . A more thorough investigation in 1960 on the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker's instructions would have revealed a situation which would have entitled him to call for his minister's resignation on this ground of concealment alone.

Such further investigation would have revealed as well that the liaison would have appeared to be within the knowledge of many other persons and of these at least some were said to be of unsavory reputation. The danger of blackmail and improper pressure would have been revealed as startling.

It would seem that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's position, and indeed that of the Hon. Mr. Fulton, was that his character was so sturdy that he could, and would, resist any attempt at blackmail or improper pressure.

Used Minister As a Shield

Yet, as counsel for the commission pointed out, the Hon. Mr. Sevigny when tested in the one instance of pressure—the confrontation by the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker and the Hon. Mr. Fulton on Dec. 13, 1960—displayed no such startling qualities. . . .

His attempt to use the Hon. Mr. Hees as a shield . . . was a far from bold acceptance of the situation when, on the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's testimony, all he knew of any association between the Hon. Mr. Hees and Mrs. Munsinger was her statement that she knew Mr. Hees.

I have come to the conclusion that the then prime minister, had he been properly apprised of all the facts, by verification of the RCMP brief, and had he then witnessed the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's lack of frankness, could not possibly have come to the conclusion that his retention in the cabinet constituted no security risk.

On all the evidence, and despite the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's somewhat vague denials, there would seem no doubt that he was actively using his influence to obtain Canadian citizenship for Mrs. Munsinger.

Acted on Instructions

Mr. Levesque has testified that his actions on Sept. 9, 1960, and Nov. 24, 1960, to which I have referred above, could only have been upon his minister's instructions.

I cannot fail to infer that, write such a letter as that of Sept. 9, 1960, . . . on the departmental letterhead and to follow up with a telephone call more than two months later, is to consciously exert influence in favor of the person who was the subject matter thereof.

It is true, of course, that neither the letter nor, so far as can be ascertained, the telephone conversation exhibited any pressure; the identified source of each was sufficient.

In my view, it was the height of indiscretion to authorize such action without a very careful investigation of the person whose application a minister of the Crown is attempting to further.

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny, in his testimony, outlined how perturbed he was when he found out that Mrs. Munsinger had used his name as one of the references in her application for citizenship and that he lectured her on this indiscretion when he learned of it on Nov. 13, 1960.

The application for citizenship executed by Mrs. Munsinger contains no mention of the Hon. Mr. Sevigny's name. Indeed, the departmental form for such application makes no provision for the recital of the name of any recommenders. . . .

In my view, a subject of far more concern to the Hon. Mr. Sevigny was the news that the RCMP had interviewed Mrs. Munsinger, not once as is usual upon a citizenship application being made, but twice, and that they had asked her all sorts of questions.

He testified that Mrs. Munsinger had warned him ". . . and they seemed to be particularly interested in asking the questions about you."

It is my conclusion that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny feared that Mrs. Munsinger would reveal the extent of her liaison with him, a fear which was well-founded. . . .

I am of the opinion that the Hon.
that the doubt be resolved in favor of Canada and that his resignation be requested.

I have come to this conclusion even though I find that there was no evidence whatsoever that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny, at any time before he was informed of the RCMP reports, either knew or had any means of knowing of Mrs. Munsinger's espionage activities before she came to Canada.

'Certainly Not a Thief'

The Hon. Mr. Sevigny has testified that he "never had cause to suspect" such involvement. Moreover, he testified that "whilst I knew her, Mr. Dupre, she certainly was never . . . a prostitute nor a call girl, and certainly not a thief."

There is no other evidence to suggest that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny had any knowledge of those latter activities, although even casual inquiry should have provided him with some information thereon.

The mere fact that the liaison had occurred, even granting that it had done so without the Hon. Mr. Sevigny knowing the previous history or character of his associate, was sufficient, in my opinion, to leave doubt as to his reliability, and therefore to create a "security risk" requiring his retirement from the cabinet.

Indeed, the fact that the Hon. Mr. Sevigny had allowed this situation to develop without careful consideration of the suitability of the person with whom he was associating is, itself, a strong indication of his own unsuitability to hold any portfolio in the cabinet, let alone the most sensitive one of associate minister of national defence.

The Hon. Donald Fleming:

The Hon. Mr. Fleming was appointed minister of justice on Aug. 9, 1962. . . .

The only contact the Hon. Mr. Fleming had with the Munsinger case was on or about Jan. 30, 1963, when Commissioner Haryison and Assistant Commissioner McClellan (as they then were) delivered to him a copy of the brief . . . and also the outline of events occurring after Dec. 8, 1960.

The latter had been reported verbally to the Hon. Mr. Fulton. . . .

The Hon. Mr. Fleming immediately conferred with the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, even broaching the matter to the latter as they sat in the House.

The latter replied: "I know all about it. Fulton told me about it at the time."

The Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker assured the Hon. Mr. Fleming that he had dealt with the matter, and therefore the latter took no furher action and did not refer to the matter again. . . .

The Hon. Mr. Fleming, I am of the opinion, could not have been asked to take any further or different action in January, 1963. I can see no criticism of his course.

Produced His Client

Mr. Gaston Levesque:

On April 7, 1966, . . . Mr. Levesque . . . was informed that, if he wished to give evidence or make representations . . . he should make the appropriate arrangements with counsel for the commission.

On May 18, Mr. L. P. de Grandpre, QC, produced his client and he gave evidence and was cross - examined thereon.

I have already referred to Mr. Levesque's testimony and it requires no additional comment. I have found his evidence of great assistance in determining the factual situation up to and on Dec. 13, 1960, when the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker and the Hon. Mr. Fulton conferred with the Hon. Mr. Sevigny.

Diefenbaker Sharply Rapped In Munsinger Probe Report

MARTIN TELLS UN

All Nations Should Be Represented

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today said Canada wants to see all the people of the world represented in the United Nations—indicating a flexible Canadian government attitude on the question of admitting mainland China to the world body.

Martin told the UN General Assembly the capacity of the United Nations to act in the Viet Nam war remains doubtful "as long as certain parties involved in that conflict are not members of this organization and are not bound by the terms of the charter."

The world body wouldn't necessarily be able to settle the conflict if China and two Vietnamese states were members, but it "would have a better chance of doing so if those parties were sitting here today."

Martin, making Canada's first statement in general debate at the 1966 assembly session, said "there is a growing opinion in Canada that, if this organization (the UN) is to realize its potential capacities, all nations and especially those which, like continental China, represent a significant portion of the world's population, must be represented here."

"A solution to this problem of representation has eluded us for many years and, in spite of impelling reasons, I do not know whether it will be possible for us to resolve this question within the next few months. Universality, however, remains our objective."

The assembly has on its agenda this season a nine-country resolution calling for "restoration of the lawful rights of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations."

Non-Aligned Have Special Role

Martin said efforts to control and reduce armaments cannot hope to succeed unless all the principal world powers, including China, participate in the negotiations. He thought "the non-aligned countries have a special role to play in persuading the People's Republic of China to participate in such discussions."

The external affairs minister said Canada remains hopeful that the International Control Commission for Viet Nam — made up of Canada, India and Poland—can play a part in ending the war.

Noting that Canada has served on the commission since its inception in 1954 at the end of French colonial rule in Viet Nam and the other territories of Indochina, Martin said: "In that time we have witnessed at first hand the erosion of the ceasefire agreement of 1954. We have known—and we still experience—the frustrations of the observer who is powerless to prevent what is happening before his eyes."

The control commission was set up to watch over the observance of the ceasefire agreemnt and report infractions to the Soviet Union and Britain, co-chairmen of the Geneva conference at which the agreement was worked out.

Martin said that despite the deterioration of the Vietnamese situation into an intense, undeclared war, "we have attempted to develop our responsibilities into opportunities for constructive action."

Means of Facilitating Contacts

"It still seems to us that the commission can provide a means of facilitating contacts between the two sides. Nor have we excluded the possibility that the commission might help the parties to scale down hostilities as a means of eventual disengagement."

Martin noted that U.S. Ambassadoe Arthur Goldberg, speaking in the assembly Thursday, called on North Viet Nam to say whether it would take "corresponding" steps to cut down military action if the United States stopped bombing its territory and consented to a supervised and gradual withdrawal of troops.

"Against this background, it is all the more essential that channels for contacts between the two sides be developed and maintained to prepare the way for negotiations whenever they are possible. We also believe that such channels are important in circumstances where the risk of misunderstanding and miscalculation is ever present.

"In Canada's view, it is essential that the attention of the world community should not be diverted from the urgent necessity of a diplomatic solution."

Martin said an exclusively military solution of the conflict is impossible. Canada believed that "only a political settlement which takes into account the legitimate interests and aspirations of all concerned can restore peace and stability in that country."

He couldn't accept the view that the time isn't ripe for a settlement in Viet Nam. "The road to peace in Viet Nam will not be easy and it may not be quick. But a start on that road must be made."

On disarmament, Martin re-

GROMYKO IN UN

Soviet Rejects U.S. Peace Plan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union replied today to the latest U.S. Viet Nam peace proposals by demanding the immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from South Viet Nam as the only way to peace.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told the United Nations General Assembly in a policy declaration "there are still no signs testifying to the seriousness of the intention of Washington to seek a settlement of the Viet Nam war.

He dismissed the latest proposals of U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg as part of a "so-called peace offensive" and said each new peace move was followed by "a further escalation of aggressive actions."

Munsinger Report Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence's findings in the Munsinger inquiry:

The relationship between then associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny and Gerda Munsinger in 1959 — 61 constituted a "startling" security risk, although no actual breach of security was evident.

John Diefenbaker, then prime minister, did not properly handle the case when it was brought to his attention.

Mr. Sevigny did not tell the truth to Mr. Diefenbaker in December of 1960 when he claimed to have ended his association with Mrs. Munsinger months earlier, and should properly have resigned or been dismissed from the cabinet.

The relationship between George Hees, then transport and later trade minister, and Mrs. Munsinger was a casual one, not at all improper in character. But Mr. Hees should have displayed more discretion.

Davie Fulton, then justice minister, should have investigated more fully the security aspects but such action would have been improper without the instructions or approval of the prime minister.

Despite his denial, there could be no other conclusion than that Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger had for some time indulged in intimate sexual relations.

Prime Minister Pearson's action in asking the RCMP for any reports of impropriety involving MPs was a natural and proper one.

Justice Minister Cardin was justified in his contention that certain aspects of the Munsinger case were worse than the Profumo scandal.

Mr. Fulton's action in reporting promptly to Mr. Diefenbaker when he learned of the Munsinger affair was commendable, but his later direction to the RCMP to be kept informed generally was not sufficient.

It was "startling" that Mr. Diefenbaker did not inform Douglas Harkness, then defence minister, of the security risk that had been created by the Sevigny-Munsinger liaison.

It was regrettable that Mr. Diefenbaker did not see fit to testify at the inquiry.

Mrs. Munsinger was a "self-admitted espionage agent" who had carried out assignments of a minor character in Germany for the Russian intelligence service.

She also had a record as a prostitute, petty thief and smuggler and "could very easily betray those who trusted her."

DIEF ON REPORT:

'It's Political Assassination'

TORONTO (CP) — The Star quotes Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker as saying the Munsinger report was "exactly what I expected."

Mr. Diefenbaker was interviewed in Boston, where he and Mrs. Diefenbaker were on a one-day visit. He had not yet read the report of Mr. Justice W. F. Spence criticizing his handling of the Gerda Munsinger affair.

"When he revealed that 'handy document,' I knew what to expect," Mr. Diefenbaker is quoted as saying in reference to a digest of police information released by the commission earlier this year but not dealt with as evidence.

"I simply state no judge or commissioner has the right to examine the exercise of discretion of a prime minister. That hasn't been done since the days of the Star Chamber."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the whole furor over the Munsinger case was "a flagrant attempt . . . at political assassination" by Prime Minister Pearson.

He said he had made his view clear in the past that no security was involved in the affair and he saw no reason to alter it.

Tories See PM Error In Suicide Episode

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today that Prime Minister Pearson when external affairs minister did not put national security first in the 1956 Herbert Norman security case.

In a "preliminary statement" on the judicial report into the Munsinger affair, Mr. Diefenbaker said that the point is made in the report that a doubt as to loyalty must be resolved in favor of the state.

"This was not followed by the present prime minister in the Herbert Norman case," Mr. Diefenbaker added in the statement issued by his office here.

Norman was Canadian ambassador to Egypt when he committed suicide after a U.S. senate committee revived charges against him that he was a communist as a youth.

He quoted Mr. Pearson as saying:

"It has always been a principle and, I think, a correct principle of our security investigation that we would not deal publicly in connection with a security inquiry with the details of any allegations made, for the reason that the details of a man's private life should not be the subject of accusation and rebuttal in public."

Mr. Diefenbaker added: "That was the principle in 1957."

Burning Indictment, Says Socred Chief

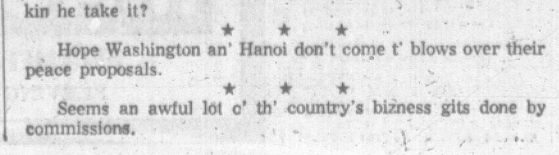
EDMONTON (CP)—Robert Thompson, national Social Credit Party leader, today described the Munsinger story, as it developed in the House of Commons and the Spence inquiry, as "a burning indictment of the present operations of politics in Canada."

He said he is convinced political reprisal, rather than the desire to protect the security and general good of the nation, was the reason for bringing the affair into the open.

"Our international reputation has been besmirched and politicians who thought they could gain from it have only lowered the image of public responsibility and the Canadian Parliament."

However he said the report pointed up the "urgent need" to establish a committee to investigate present Canadian security procedures, and to what extent subversive forces and organized crime are at work in the country. He said he had asked Prime Minister Pearson "at least 10 times" to set up such a committee.

"Now the prime minister can no longer procrastinate. To quiet the fears of Canadians and protect those in public life who are concerned over the image of Parliament and the integrity of the individual, an investigating committee should be set up immediately."



Mister Diefenbaker has dished it out fer a long time. Now, kin he take it?

Should Have Fired Sevigny, Says Judge

OTTAWA (CP)—The judicial report on the Gerda Munsinger sex-and-security affair today criticized Opposition Leader Diefenbaker on every count.

The report by Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada said that Mr. Diefenbaker, then prime minister, should have removed Pierre Sevigny from the associate defence portfolio in 1960 when he found out about Mr. Sevigny's relationship with Mrs. Munsinger.

It said Mr. Diefenbaker had resolved doubt in a case of national security in favor of Mr. Sevigny instead of in favor of the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker should have consulted the cabinet on the case and have informed Defence Minister Harkness and Trade Minister Hees.

"It is difficult to understand how anyone could be retained in any cabinet post when the slightest doubt remained as to his reliability from the point of view of national security, as all ministers must have access to much classified information, but to retain him as associate minister of national defence under the circumstances would appear to have been most imprudent," the report said.

"A more dangerous cabinet position than that of national defence, from the point of view of espionage by enemy agents or information-seeking by greedy racketeers, could hardly be imagined.

Moved to Another Post

"Even if the decision could be made to retain Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet, surely enough doubt lingered to justify, indeed demand, that he be moved to a cabinet post not so vital to the national security as that of associate minister of national defence."

The report says Mr. Sevigny was sexually intimate with Mrs. Munsinger and told Mr. Diefenbaker "much less than the whole truth" about the affair and that was a "startling danger of blackmail and improper pressure."

PARTIAL TEXT OF REPORT PAGE 15

His attempted concealment of the closeness of his intimacy throughout 1960 "alone should have driven him to tender his resignation."

A more thorough investigation on Mr. Diefenbaker's orders would have revealed a situation which would have entitled Mr. Diefenbaker to call for Mr. Sevigny's resignation.

The judge said Mr. Hees' association with Mrs. Munsinger "would appear to have been a casual one, not at all improper in character."

The inquiry arose when Justice Minister Cardin charged that Mr. Diefenbaker had mishandled the Munsinger case when it was brought to his attention.

Staking his Commons seat on his charges, he also alleged that "two or more" ministers in Mr. Diefenbaker's cabinet were involved with the 37-year-old German woman and that this constituted a security risk.

Security Risk Did Exist

Mr. Justice Spence agreed that a security risk had existed. He also said he is convinced that Conservative Justice Minister Davie Fulton—"despite his failure to remember"—knew that Mrs. Munsinger intended to return to Canada when she left for a trip to Europe in December, 1960.

Mrs. Munsinger lived in Canada from August, 1955, to February, 1961

The judge said "it is to be regretted" that Mr. Diefenbaker didn't testify at the inquiry.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker had made a "most surprising statement" in the Commons March 7 that there had been no danger to national security in the Munsinger case.

He said Justice Minister Cardin's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker had not sought legal advice and that there were circumstances which might have affected security were "justified."

The report said it would have been imprudent and "clearly bad administration" on Prime Minister Pearson's part not to have asked RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan for files indicating impropriety or scandal involving any member of Parliament.

The prime minister's request had been made at the height of the Commons debates on the Lucien Rivard narcotics affair involving allegations of influence peddling.

Pearson Wasn't Prying

Neither Mr. Pearson nor the commissioner could have understood the prime minister's request as an attempt to pry into MPs' lives, the judge said.

"To have contemplated any further investigation by the RCMP four full years after they had reported in December, 1960, would have been purposeless."

Mr. Justice Spence says the same conclusion applies to Guy Favreau, former Liberal justice minister, who was given a copy of the RCMP report Dec. 1, 1964.

Mr. Justice Spence agreed with Mr. Cardin that in some aspects the Munsinger case might well have been worse than the Profumo scandal in Britain in 1963.

In the Profumo case, Christine Keeler had had no contact whatever with any matter concerning espionage or national security and Lord Denning had been satisfied in his investigation that she did not try to obtain any information from British War Minister John Profumo.

"Mrs. Munsinger, on the other hand, according to the RCMP reports which would appear to be the sole source of information available to the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, was said to have acted

FULTON:

'One Man's Opinion'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Davie Fulton, justice minister in the cabinet of then prime minister Diefenbaker at the time of the Munsinger affair, today said the report of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence is "nothing more than one man's opinion six years after the event."

"I do not agree with him," said the Kamloops Progressive Conservative MP. "I have already given my views in my testimony and in the letter I wrote to the commissioner in June.

"Accordingly I have no further comment to make on the commissioner's opinion."

Mr. Fulton added that he did not "think the report accomplishes anything except to demonstrate the pointlessness of the whole inquiry into events of six years ago.

"It is much more important for us to get on with today's business for Canada and that is what I intend to do."

It's Foolish Says Sevigny

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Sevigny, central figure of the Munsinger "affair," said when reached by phone at his brokerage firm here today that his only comment for now on the report of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence is that is "foolish."

"I haven't read it yet—I've been too busy — but I know what's in it," he said.

"This whole business was foolish to begin with and it's as foolish today as it ever was.

"I am not a security risk and I never was a security risk, and beyond that I have no further comment to make for the time being."

No Comment From U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — British authorities today steered clear of comment on the report of a Canadian commission of inquiry into the Gerda Munsinger sex and security scandal.

They declined to express any view on the judgment as a matter of protocol which prevents them from commenting on internal affairs, let alone jurisdiction, of a friendly nation.

The verdict revived, however, recollections of Britain's own sex scandal which involved former defence minister John Profumo during the premiership of Harold Macmillan.

ARRIVAL of four baby boys, all less than a month old, and all adoptable, had Family and Children's Service social workers scurrying to find homes for them. Since no permanent homes have been found, all four are going to foster homes for maximum five-month period. Here foster parents Ann and William Greenhalgh, of 1682 Stellys Crossroad, hold foster child they will care for as three-year-old Jennifer Greenhalgh views the temporary family member. Other three babies in front await arrival of their foster parents. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Four Babies Trying Out New Parents

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

A young Victoria couple brought home a new baby Thursday to join their three-year-old girl and their boy, six.

But the baby, a boy, didn't make the usual trip from hospital to home.

Instead, he stopped halfway at the city welfare centre on Cook Street, where his new parents, William and Ann Greenhalgh, received last minute tips from social workers of the Family and Children's Service.

●

For they are his foster parents, and the baby is just theirs for a short time, five months at the most.

Besides the Greenhalgh's baby, three others, all less than a month old, all boys, were waiting at the centre for their foster parents.

Social worker Mrs. Olive Hatter, who is in charge of adoption placements for the Family and Children's Service, explained that it's rare that four babies, all adoptable, should arrive at once with no permanent homes waiting for them.

But since the beginning of the year 20 adoptable babies have come through the agency, including the four babies sent to foster homes Thursday.

For William Greenhalgh, a janitor at the Queen Alexandra Solarium, and his wife, their foster baby is a first.

And although the addition may take "a lot of adjusting," said Mrs. Greenhalgh with a smile, he's expected to fit into their family life nicely for the length of his stay.

The three other babies will go to foster parents who are a cross section of ones the Family and Children's Service accepts.

●

One goes to a widow who has three children of her own plus a "permanent" foster child, one who for various reasons cannot be adopted.

Another baby will find a home with a family which numbers three children and has already had one foster baby in their midst.

An older couple, in their 60s, with their own children married, will provide a foster home for the last baby.

But the big question is where will these babies go later? Foster homes are only temporary. Who will adopt them for ever?

It's the question that plagues Mrs. Hatter and other social workers year in, year out.

Prospective parents for a child are of course screened carefully by the agency, and much thought is given each case before a child will be placed permanently in a new home.

But the requirements, as Mrs. Hatter outlined them, are less strict than many people think.

For instance, there is no minimum income that a family must have before it can adopt a child.

●

"Just as long as they can manage" with an extra mouth to feed, they qualify.

A separate bedroom for the child isn't necessary either.

"We place a large number of babies in homes of service personnel," said Mrs. Hatter. "The adoption can be completed in another province if the family is transferred."

Because an unwed mother is more likely to keep a girl than a boy, "we have homes waiting for baby girls, but not for baby boys."

Consequently there is a one-year waiting period to adopt a girl, but for a baby boy the placement will be made almost as soon as a home is accepted by the agency.

Adopting parents must be at least 21, but babies are now being placed with couples up to 40 or 45 years old, said Mrs. Hatter, an increase on the age accepted for adopting parents previously.

Often, she said, babies are placed with older couples who may have been married later than most.

●

The four babies who left hospital Thursday may stay with their foster parents until the end of February at the latest.

Mrs. Hatter and other social workers have until then to find people who want these babies permanently.

Supreme Court Fight Due Over Buttle Lake

Injunction Sought By Island Group

The troubled waters of Buttle Lake reached boiling point today as the final clash between conservationists and mining interests drew near.

While conservationists lashed the decision to allow Western Mines to dump tailings in Buttle Lake, lawyers were preparing an appeal for an injunction against any dumping by the mine.

Said lawyer Anthony Sarich of Campbell River today: "We should know by Thursday or Friday whether the B.C. Supreme Court will grant an injunction.

"If the court doesn't allow the appeal, I have instructions to take the matter to the Supreme Court of Canada."

Mr. Sarich is representing Greater Campbell River Water District, chief opponents of the mine dumping. The district receives it's water supply from the lake.

COMMITTEE

Following the granting of a dumping permit to the mine by the provincial Pollution Control Board, Campbell River Chamber of Commerce Thursday night set up a special committee to publicize the controversial issue.

Granting of an injunction will leave two courses open to the water district.

It can appeal to the cabinet to rescind Western's permit.

Or apply for a Crown Office writ in which case the hearing would be held before a Supreme Court judge.

Either course, if successful, would prevent what opponents refer to as "pollution" of the beautiful lake in Strathcona Park, west of Campbell River.

NO HEARING

Conservationists and lawyers are upset that no public hearing was called before the permit was granted.

Said Mr. Sarich: "We had hired skilled personnel of the B.C. Research Council to help prepare our case.

In Victoria, Oak Bay Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane, who has opposed desecration of provincial parks in the legislature, called for a full review of the case at cabinet level.

MORE SUPPORT

Backing him up was New Democratic leader Robert Strachan who stated:

"This is only the beginning and I hope the public reaction against this final act (of desecration) will be of such magnitude that the government will have to reverse itself and change its position.

Howard Paish, executive director of B.C. Wildlife Service said: "The Pollution Control Board had its hands tied from the start.

"It's deplorable the way the politicians put the civil servants in this position."

"The whole thing is a complete and utter farce. The government's decision was ridiculous. There is a total lack of resource planning and resource management."

While the official guns await the decision of the legal machine, a number of unofficial guns have been brought to play.

VILLAGE COMMISSIONER

One of these is village commissioner Ken Forde, an outspoken Campbell River garage owner, who is circulating his own petitions.

By the beginning of next month he hopes to have 2,000 petitions completed with some 35 names on each.

The company has promised to dump the waste at a depth of 130 feet some 30 miles from where Campbell River draws its water and apparently has convinced the pollution control board that adequate precautions would be taken to ensure no pollution.

In an official statement Thursday, the board said:

"It is expected that the wastes will be rendered harmless at disposal; however, should there be evidence of a rising level to any harmful amount of any matters disposed of, the board will, by conditions of its permits, require Western Mines to remedy the situation."

The company has further promised to police the dumping operation and file regular reports to the Pollution Control Board.

With more sound than fury, summer 1966 packed up, had a good cry and left for good.

The thunderstorm that lit Victoria skies Thursday leaving a third of an inch of rain, some fallen trees, and fields full of frightened livestock, ended just a few hours before autumn began.

The new season came in at 4:43 a.m.—two days later than usual, because of changes in the heavens.

Lower Island police departments report the two-hour storm did little damage beyond felling one tree at Swartz Bay, another at Sooke, and causing TV interference.

B.C. Hydro says it "got off lightly."

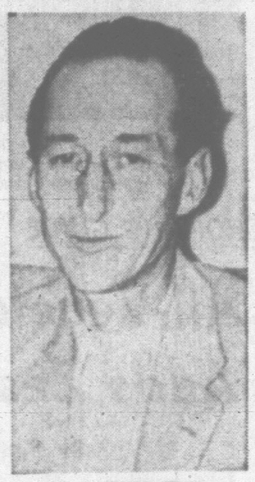
The one emergency crew it sent out "wasn't doing much more than chasing rainbows," said a spokesman.

RARE HERE

Victoria weather office said that while thunderstorms as spectacular as Thursday are rare here, other cities have them every month.

A weatherman said it can rain as much as four inches in six hours on Vancouver Island's west coast.

Early fall will be much like late summer—a little sun here, a little cloud there, and possibly rain on the weekend.



H. A. FLETCHER

HIGHWAY CRASHES KILL 2

Dead are Hugh Alfred Fletcher, 51, of 4271 Douglas, and Robert Johnstone Luney, 44, whose parents live in Oak Bay.

Injured were Mrs. Elizabeth Fletcher, in serious condition in Salmon Arm Hospital, and a Salmon Arm mother and her eight-year-old child.

Mr. Fletcher is survived by the widow, a son, Jan Patrick, 15; his mother, Mrs. A. Petrini, of 637 Dominion Road, and a brother, Pat Fletcher, a Montreal golf professional.

UBCM Delegates Quiz Campbell on Remarks

By JIM HUME

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell was challenged this morning to make clear his stand on 19 proposed changes in the Municipal Act.

The challenge came from Mayor Bill Rathie, Vancouver, and Ald. Michael Griffin of Victoria on the last day of the 63rd convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at Penticton.

Ald. Griffin said he understood the minister had stated to the Victoria Times that he was opposed to all 19 recommendations proposing major changes in the existing act. (See earlier story on Page 6.)

Mayor Rathie said that if the statement was true the minister should be asked to give an accounting.

Mr. Campbell, out of the convention hall at the time, was hurriedly called to the platform.

ANSWER: NO

"I understand the question is 'Am I opposed to all the recommendations placed before the convention earlier' ", he said. "The answer is no.

"I have discussed this question with the reporter from the Victoria Times this morning and there is apparently a difference of opinion on what I said, which one comes to expect in public life.

"My department is neither the protagonist nor the antagonist of these recommendations."

Mr. Campbell said the recommendations, presented for an expression of opinion from the convention, would be studied further and would also be taken to the people of the province for an expression of their point of view.

"At this time we do not take a position either way," he said.

Ald. Griffin had one further question.

"Did you or did you not make the statement attributed to you in the Times?"

"I did not," answered Mr. Campbell. "I have already explained that I have talked with the reporter and there is a difference of opinion."

Thursday in an interview outside the convention hall Mr. Campbell said wide open shopping hours, one of the recommendations endorsed by the convention, "hasn't a hope of becoming law."

Asked if he was against wide open store hours Mr. Campbell replied "I am against every one of them," pointing to the list of 19 recommendations.

The quote was repeated to him and he was told that it would be used. He replied "Go ahead."

This morning, prior to the opening of the final session, he said he had obviously been misunderstood and made the statement he later repeated to the 1,100 delegates.

PATIENT INJURED IN CRASH

A Comox airman remains critically ill today after an ambulance rushing him to Victoria Thursday crashed with a car and overturned.

Leading Aircraftsman Norman Lambly suffered chest injuries in the collision at Admirals and Craigflower about suppertime.

A suspected appendicitis case, he was being rushed to the Canadian Forces Base hospital at Esquimalt for possible surgery.

Drivers of the car and ambulance received only minor injuries in the crash which caused $1,000 damage.

Reece Adamson of Sidney, the ambulance driver and PO Roy Miller spent the night at the military hospital after being "badly shaken up."

The driver of the car, Norma Lohbrunner of Cogan Road, was released after treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

LAC Lambly was first taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital and later transferred to CFB Hospital. He had been flown to Victoria airport from the Comox base. A navy spokesman said the injured man's wife arrived in Victoria early today.

Expo Statement Brings Denial

The Greater Victoria Schools Band will not represent Vancouver Island at Expo '67 as reported Thursday.

The band had earlier planned to make the trip to the fair, but the plans were cancelled some time ago.

Expo directors, apparently unaware of the cancellation of plans, announced in error that the band would go to Montreal.

The Esquimalt Garden Club fall show at Jubilee Hall on Fraser Street will be opened Saturday from 2 to 7 p.m. There will be an auction at 7 p.m. of the vegetables and flowers.

STORE HOURS CONTROVERSY

'UBCM Passing the Buck'

Municipal leaders were criticized today for wanting to opt out of administration and control of store hours.

The chairman of the retail group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Lloyd Davies, called the action "buck-passing" and a backward step.

John Nicol, a Victoria Labour Council delegate and member of a labor-merchant committee on store hours, commented:

"The whole issue can be summed up as a sick business world, a sick group of municipal leaders, business leaders and the community at large."

At the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention Thursday, the 1,100 delegates passed the resolution in less than two minutes.

Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Everett Brown said if the legislature endorses the resolution "it means as Reeve Emmott (of Burnaby) said that there will be no governing body to restrict or govern store hours in the future."

Mr. Davies said regulating store hours is a regional matter because each city has its own set of problems.

For example, Victoria was oriented towards tourism but this was not the case with Fraser Valley communities.

It would be unfair if the government set regulations for the whole province because the problems of each community differed.

Vancouver has its own charter and could do what it wants and this may lead other cities to requesting charters.

Mr. Nicol said probably it is not realized fully what effect bylaws can have on the retail industry at large.

But in the United States "the small man will soon become either extinct or a servant of the large corporations."

Mr. Nicol said there are no regulations in B.C. requiring stores or employees to have statutory holidays as a day of rest.

IT'S AN OLD SAW that campus cut-ups need for annual Community Chest Log Saw at Clover Point Saturday. Uvic students need chain saws and 200 feet of tug-of-war rope for attack on driftwood for sale as firewood to motorists. Shown practising for event are Frosh Queen candidates (left to right): Susan Fowler, Santosh Pallan, Sherry Cox, Bette Shuwell, Joan Robarts, Julie Mannin and Denise Forrest. Action is scheduled to start at 11 a.m.

EVERYTHING TURNS UP ROSES FOR 'FLOWER'

A strayed skunk has been returned to her owners, Mr. and Mrs. C. Blahitka, 4160 Carey, after her photo appeared in Wednesday's Times.

The SPCA knew her as Lotus Blossom. But to the Blahitkas, newcomers from Rainy River, Ont., she was just plain Flower.

Flower, or Lotus Blossom's big adventure began when she wandered from the Blahitkas' new home several weeks ago, and ended with a TV appearance Thursday.

SPCA officials were certain all along that she was someone's pet because she was deodorized, and because skunks are not native to the Island.

But several other owners of strayed skunks, both male and female, called in to see if Flower was theirs, so "it looks like we're going to have a skunk population after all," concluded one official.

Ask The Times

Q. What was the program at the Stratford, Ontario, festival this year? P.N.

A. Program for 1966 was Shakespeare plays, Henry VI trilogy, Henry V and Twelfth Night; Strindberg's The Dance of Death; a ballet, Rose Latulippe; a Mozart opera, Don Giovanni, and a new play, the Last of the Tsars. SANDOWN PARK

Analyst's Comments

Saturday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE — Whaang Leather will probably be the short price and thrives at Sandown. But we were impressed with the fractions Evidently turned in before running out of oxygen. They may not send Evidently on the pace—he can come from off it—but if they do it could be quite a race. Sunrise Gal came to life and adds to the early speed duel. If Joe Papp runs one of his good ones (he likes Sandown) look out! . . . EVIDENTLY, Whaang Leather, Joe Papp.

SECOND RACE — In a field noticeably bereft of early speed Lees Time should have a ball. That's her trouble. She has fine foot but she handles corners occasionally as if they were square. Same Affair's debut was good enough to earn a share and he drops seven. Tammy Dee is in good hands and should improve. Much was expected of Abundant but delivery has been slow. Our serious thinking centred on Fuel Baron. He seems to prefer a fast strip but he moves resolutely and meets easier here . . . FUEL BARON, Same Affair, Tammy Dee.

THIRD RACE—What can go with Yankee Mac? That seems to be the main issue. If he gets it all his own way early they may not catch him. Humahawk can shift gears but lacks a race over the course. Missile Jill and Mystic Flash are threats in this company. Wifflaw has been marathoning. Justice John is very fresh; that means a lot at this time of year. All Danger will appreciate the distance but needs a pace duel to aid his rally. . . . YANKEE MAC, All Danger, Justice John.

FOURTH RACE — With not too much to hinder him early, Pils Friday might hit the road fast and try to steal it. Wee Jock and Aleja could have something to say about that. Court Glamour, Pepperoni and Donmaid do their gamboling late and will need alert navigating from the old oak tree in. First Fashion has a look with these. In a scramble . . . DONMAID, Pils Friday, Court Glamour.

FIFTH RACE—If class counts, Sir Kit is the one to fear. But he doesn't seem to be with it lately. He has run well here in the past. Eastern Imp is no stranger to the winner's circle and the turns shouldn't be a problem. If this was the Sefton Park who ran here last year the others could forget it. Peaceful Nite and General John put on the runaway freight train bit and figure prominently. Belles Sheilah is dropping . . . SIR KIT, General John, Sefton Park.

SIXTH RACE — Except for minor incidentals this looks like the same field that met opening day. Who's Haydn picks up three pounds for winning but the cast hasn't changed much. Bouncy Belle and Jolly Pop are there to punch holes in the wind. And despite his post, Lord Highland will no doubt have something to add to the frazzling fracas. He's quick and fresher than most of them but essentially the quick ones compromise each other's chances in here. This should set it up for Who's Haydn in the stretch. . . . WHO'S HAYDN, Jolly Pop, Lord Highland.

SEVENTH RACE — Few can pass the poles as hastily as Permano. If Phillips can give him a breather along the way he may not have real problems. Little Choo Choo was right there with the likes of Westbury Road and if he takes to the track is a threat. The girls, Princess Vega and Devonshire Cream, are sharp but unless it comes up soft they face a tall task. Keno's Boy should improve off his last. And if Gladys Ann ran to her Santa Anita races they could all stay in the barn . . . PERMANO, Little Choo Choo, Devonshire Cream.

EIGHTH RACE — Ky Master and Some Standard should take them most of the way. The former does not surrender easily. Fraser Canyon and Quarter Time will need hustling rides—they've been marathoning. June's Choice fits with these and Inner Guard has a look after his sprint try. . . . KY MASTER, June's Choice, Some Standard.

SUB RACE—There's no Swan Lady here to bother Bevy's Boy—if Shields can get him away well he could make it rough for Fair Duel and All Smoke. Hour Magic and Loodani can rub elbows with these and Corval is no slouch . . . BEVY'S BOY, Fair Duel.

Munsinger Report Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence's findings in the Munsinger inquiry:

The relationship between then associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny and Gerda Munsinger in 1959 — 61 constituted a "startling" security risk, although no actual breach of security was evident.

John Diefenbaker, then prime minister, did not properly handle the case when it was brought to his attention.

Mr. Sevigny did not tell the truth to Mr. Diefenbaker in December of 1960 when he claimed to have ended his association with Mrs. Munsinger months earlier, and should properly have resigned or been dismissed from the cabinet.

The relationship between George Hees, then transport and later trade minister, and Mrs. Munsinger was a casual one, not at all improper in character. But Mr. Hees should have displayed more discretion.

Davie Fulton, then justice minister, should have investigated more fully the security aspects but such action would have been improper without the instructions or approval of the prime minister.

Despite his denial, there could be no other conclusion than that Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger had for some time indulged in intimate sexual relations.

Prime Minister Pearson's action in asking the RCMP for any reports of impropriety involving MPs was a natural and proper one.

Justice Minister Cardin was justified in his contention that certain aspects of the Munsinger case were worse than the Profumo scandal.

Mr. Fulton's action in reporting promptly to Mr. Diefenbaker when he learned of the Munsinger affair was commendable, but his later direction to the RCMP to be kept informed generally was not sufficient.

It was "startling" that Mr. Diefenbaker did not inform Douglas Harkness, then defence minister, of the security risk that had been created by the Sevigny-Munsinger liaison.

It was regrettable that Mr. Diefenbaker did not see fit to testify at the inquiry.

Mrs. Munsinger was a "self-admitted espionage agent" who had carried out assignments of a minor character in Germany for the Russian intelligence service.

She also had a record as a prostitute, petty thief and smuggler and "could very easily betray those who trusted her."

JOHN DIEFENBAKER
. . . Severely castigated

DIEF ON REPORT:

'It's Political Assassination'

TORONTO (CP) — The Star quotes Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker as saying the Munsinger report was "exactly what I expected."

Mr. Diefenbaker was interviewed in Boston, where he and Mrs. Diefenbaker were on a one-day visit. He had not yet read the report of Mr. Justice W. F. Spence criticizing his handling of the Gerda Munsinger affair.

"When he revealed that 'handy document,' I knew what to expect," Mr. Diefenbaker is quoted as saying in reference to a digest of police information released by the commission earlier this year but not dealt with as evidence.

"I simply state no judge or commissioner has the right to examine the exercise of discretion of a prime minister. That hasn't been done since the days of the Star Chamber."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the whole furor over the Munsinger case was "a flagrant attempt . . . at political assassination" by Prime Minister Pearson.

He said he had made his view clear in the past that no security was involved in the affair and he saw no reason to alter it.

Tories See PM Error In Suicide Episode

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today that Prime Minister Pearson when external affairs minister did not put national security first in the 1956 Herbert Norman security case.

In a "preliminary statement" on the judicial report into the Munsinger affair, Mr. Diefenbaker said that the point is made in the report that a doubt as to loyalty must be resolved in favor of the state.

"This was not followed by the present prime minister in the Herbert Norman case," Mr. Diefenbaker added in the statement issued by his office here.

Norman was Canadian ambassador to Egypt when he committed suicide after a U.S. senate committee revived charges against him that he was a communist as a youth.

He quoted Mr. Pearson as saying:

"It has always been a principle and, I think, a correct principle of our security investigation that we would not deal publicly in connection with a security inquiry with the details of any allegations made, for the reason that the details of a man's private life should not be the subject of accusation and rebuttal in public."

Mr. Diefenbaker added: "That was the principle in 1957."

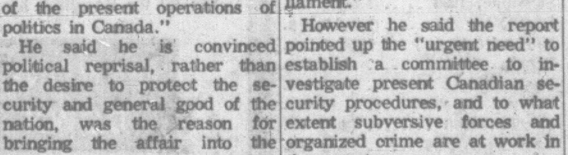
Burning Indictment, Says Socred Chief

EDMONTON (CP)—Robert Thompson, national Social Credit Party leader, today described the Munsinger story, as it developed in the House of Commons and the Spence inquiry, as "a burning indictment of the present operations of politics in Canada."

He said he is convinced political reprisal, rather than the desire to protect the security and general good of the nation, was the reason for bringing the affair into the open.

"Our international reputation has been besmirched and politicians who thought they could gain from it have only lowered the image of public responsibility and the Canadian Parliament."

However he said the report pointed up the "urgent need" to establish a committee to investigate present Canadian security procedures, and to what extent subversive forces and organized crime are at work in the country.



Mister Diefenbaker has dished it out fer a long time. Now, kin he take it?

'Should Have Fired Sevigny'

OTTAWA (CP)—The judicial report on the Gerda Munsinger sex-and-security affair today criticized Opposition Leader Diefenbaker on every count.

The report by Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada said that Mr. Diefenbaker, then prime minister, should have removed Pierre Sevigny from the associate defence portfolio in 1960 when he found out about Mr. Sevigny's relationship with Mrs. Munsinger.

It said Mr. Diefenbaker had resolved doubt in a case of national security in favor of Mr. Sevigny instead of in favor of the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker should have consulted the cabinet on the case and have informed Defence Minister Harkness and Trade Minister Hees.

"It is difficult to understand how anyone could be retained in any cabinet post when the slightest doubt remained as to his reliability from the point of view of national security, as all ministers must have access to much classified information, but to retain him as associate minister of national defence under the circumstances would appear to have been most imprudent," the report said.

"A more dangerous cabinet position than that of national defence, from the point of view of espionage by enemy agents or information-seeking by greedy racketeers, could hardly be imagined.

Moved to Another Post

"Even if the decision could be made to retain Mr. Sevigny in the cabinet, surely enough doubt lingered to justify, indeed demand, that he be moved to a cabinet post not so vital to the national security as that of associate minister of national defence."

The report says Mr. Sevigny was sexually intimate with Mrs. Munsinger and told Mr. Diefenbaker "much less than the whole truth" about the affair and that was a "startling danger of blackmail and improper pressure."

His attempted concealment of the closeness of his intimacy throughout 1960 "alone should have driven him to tender his resignation."

A more thorough investigation on Mr. Diefenbaker's orders would have revealed a situation which would have entitled Mr. Diefenbaker to call for Mr. Sevigny's resignation.

PARTIAL TEXT OF REPORT PAGE 15

The judge said Mr. Hees' association with Mrs. Munsinger "would appear to have been a casual one, not at all improper in character."

The inquiry arose when Justice Minister Cardin charged that Mr. Diefenbaker had mishandled the Munsinger case when it was brought to his attention.

Staking his Commons seat on his charges, he also alleged that "two or more" ministers in Mr. Diefenbaker's cabinet were involved with the 37-year-old German woman and that this constituted a security risk.

Security Risk Did Exist

Mr. Justice Spence agreed that a security risk had existed. He also said he is convinced that Conservative Justice Minister Davie Fulton—"despite his failure to remember"—knew that Mrs. Munsinger intended to return to Canada when she left for a trip to Europe in December, 1960.

Mrs. Munsinger lived in Canada from August, 1955, to February, 1961

The judge said "it is to be regretted" that Mr. Diefenbaker didn't testify at the inquiry.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker had made a "most surprising statement" in the Commons March 7 that there had been no danger to national security in the Munsinger case.

He said Justice Minister Cardin's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker had not sought legal advice and that there were circumstances which might have affected security were "justified."

The report said it would have been imprudent and "clearly bad administration" on Prime Minister Pearson's part not to have asked RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan for files indicating impropriety or scandal involving any member of Parliament.

The prime minister's request had been made at the height of the Commons debates on the Lucien Rivard narcotics affair involving allegations of influence peddling.

Pearson Wasn't Prying

Neither Mr. Pearson nor the commissioner could have understood the prime minister's request as an attempt to pry into MPs' lives, the judge said.

"To have contemplated any further investigation by the RCMP four full years after they had reported in December, 1960, would have been purposeless."

Mr. Justice Spence says the same conclusion applies to Guy Favreau, former Liberal justice minister, who was given a copy of the RCMP report Dec. 1, 1964.

Mr. Justice Spence agreed with Mr. Cardin that in some aspects the Munsinger case might well have been worse than the Profumo scandal in Britain in 1963.

In the Profumo case, Christine Keeler had had no contact whatever with any matter concerning espionage or national security and Lord Denning had been satisfied in his investigation that she did not try to obtain any information from British War Minister John Profumo.

"Mrs. Munsinger, on the other hand, according to the RCMP reports which would appear to be the sole source of information available to the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker, was said to have acted

MARTIN TELLS UN

All Nations Should Be Represented

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today said Canada wants to see all the people of the world represented in the United Nations—indicating a flexible Canadian government attitude on the question of admitting mainland China to the world body.

Martin told the UN General Assembly the capacity of the United Nations to act in the Viet Nam war remains doubtful "as long as certain parties involved in that conflict are not members of this organization and are not bound by the terms of the charter."

The world body wouldn't necessarily be able to settle the conflict if China and two Vietnamese states were members, but it "would have a better chance of doing so if those parties were sitting here today."

Martin, making Canada's first statement in general debate at the 1966 assembly session, said "there is a growing opinion in Canada that, if this organization (the UN) is to realize its potential capacities, all nations and especially those which, like continental China, represent a significant portion of the world's population, must be represented here."

"A solution to this problem of representation has eluded us for many years and, in spite of impelling reasons, I do not know whether it will be possible for us to resolve this question within the next few months. Universality, however, remains our objective."

The assembly has on its agenda this season a nine-country resolution calling for "restoration of the lawful rights of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations."

Non-Aligned Have Special Role

Martin said efforts to control and reduce armaments cannot hope to succeed unless all the principal world powers, including China, participate in the negotiations. He thought "the non-aligned countries have a special role to play in persuading the People's Republic of China to participate in such discussions."

The external affairs minister said Canada remains hopeful that the International Control Commission for Viet Nam — made up of Canada, India and Poland—can play a part in ending the war.

Noting that Canada has served on the commission since its inception in 1954 at the end of French colonial rule in Viet Nam and the other territories of Indochina, Martin said: "In that time we have witnessed at first hand the erosion of the ceasefire agreement of 1954. We have known—and we still experience—the frustrations of the observer who is powerless to prevent what is happening before his eyes."

The control commission was set up to watch over the observance of the ceasefire agreemnt and report infractions to the Soviet Union and Britain, co-chairmen of the Geneva conference at which the agreement was worked out.

Martin said that despite the deterioration of the Vietnamese situation into an intense, undeclared war, "we have attempted to develop our responsibilities into opportunities for constructive action."

Means of Facilitating Contacts

"It still seems to us that the commission can provide a means of facilitating contacts between the two sides. Nor have we exoluded the possibility that the commission might help the parties to scale down hostilities as a means of eventual disengagement."

Martin noted that U.S. Ambassadoe Arthur Goldberg, speaking in the assembly Thursday, called on North Viet Nam to say whether it would take "corresponding" steps to cut down military action if the United States stopped bombing its territory and consented to a supervised and gradual withdrawal of troops.

"Against this background, it is all the more essential that channels for contacts between the two sides be developed and maintained to prepare the way for negotiations whenever they are possible. We also believe that such channels are important in circumstances where the risk of misunderstanding and miscalculation is ever present.

"In Canada's view, it is essential that the attention of the world community should not be diverted from the urgent necessity of a diplomatic solution."

Martin said an exclusively military solution of the conflict is impossible. Canada believed that "only a political settlement which takes into account the legitimate interests and aspirations of all concerned can restore peace and stability in that country."

He couldn't accept the view that the time isn't ripe for a settlement in Viet Nam. "The road to peace in Viet Nam will not be easy and it may not be quick. But a start on that road must be made."

On disarmament, Martin re-

LONDON (UPI) — British authorities today steered clear of comment on the report of a Canadian commission of inquiry into the Gerda Munsinger sex and security scandal.

They declined to express any view on the judgment as a matter of protocol which prevents them from commenting on internal affairs, let alone jurisdiction, of a friendly nation.

The verdict revived, however, recollections of Britain's own sex scandal which involved former defence minister John Profumo

'Don't Know Just Where We're Going'

MONTREAL (CP) — Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Thursday party members are wondering where, if anywhere, the party is going.

"We no longer know what the party's policy is on the problem of Confederation, foreign affairs, defence, welfare," Mr. Camp said in an interview.

"The policy of a party is something other than a series of arbitrary judgments on the decisions of others."

The national president has raised a storm since making the suggestion earlier this week that appraisal of present party leadership is an urgent matter.

WOULDN'T DISCUSS CALL

Interviewed in Toronto Thursday night, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker declined to discuss a call by Mr. Camp for a convention decision on whether Mr. Diefenbaker should stay in office.

Mr. Camp in his interview said he has no ambitions for the party leadership, but there are indications that "there will be some very good candidates in the ranks and that satisfies me. . . . Unfortunately, we don't have in the party the climate necesary for the candidates to assert themselves openly."

The national president said he has ambitions only concerning the party's organization and a seat for himself in the Commons.

AFTER TORONTO PARLEY

Dief Remains Mum on Plans

By DAVID MILLER

TORONTO (CP) — Conservative Leader Diefenbaker emerged smiling and chipper Thursday night from a meeting with high-ranking party supporters, but remained silent on the question of his leadership.

The two-hour meeting with the Toronto Progressive Conservative Businessmen's Club was closed to the press, but informants said later Mr. Diefenbaker was asked if he planned to put his leadership on the line at the next party convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker was reported to have avoided the question, saying it was one that could cause dissension in the party ranks.

Dalton Camp, national party president, said in Toronto Tuesday that Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership should be confirmed—or otherwise—at the party's annual meeting in Ottawa in November.

Mr. Diefenbaker brushed off reporters' questions as he entered the meeting. Asked if he planned to resign, he said: "No comment. The street is no place for discussion."

GIVEN OVATION

He spoke for an hour to about 300 supporters who gave him several standing ovations. After his speech he answered questions which an aide described as "pointed and friendly."

In his speech, one informant said, Mr. Diefenbaker reviewed his years in and out of office and said he was confident as ever about the future. If an election was called tomorrow, he said, he would win.

Questions ranged from unification of the armed forces to Confederation. "The only leadership question discussed was that of Prime Minister Pearson's administration," an aide said.

When he left the meeting, Mr. Diefenbaker was asked on the street how secure he felt as leader of the party.

"What you should be thinking about is opportunity, rather than security," he replied.

Martin Refuses Probe

Health Minister Eric Martin said Thursday the provincial government will not act on a petition for a judicial inquiry into the affairs of Cariboo Memorial Hospital at Williams Lake.

Mr. Martin said the dispute between doctors and the administration is already under investigation. The request for a judicial probe will be held in abeyance, he said.

More than 300 citizens from the Interior community were reported to have signed a petition asking for the probe following suspension of hospital privileges to two doctors.

He said a committee representing the B.C. Medical Association, the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the B.C. Hospitals Association and the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service is going to Williams Lake today.

Maid Cleaned Room First

OTTAWA (CP) — Police searched a hotel room here Thursday night seeking clues to the bombing of the Cuban Embassy building but found it had been cleaned out by the maid.

The room in the Alexandria Hotel was registered to a man who signed is as Orlando Atienza of Miami. He stayed at the hotel Wednesday night after arriving without luggage and paying in advance.

Police checked the hotel after finding a rented car that apparently was used to transport the two anti-tank missiles used in the bomb attack. The car also was rented to a man who gave the name Orlando Atienza.

Only one of the 3.5-inch anti-tank rockets, of a type not used by Canadian forces, went off in the attack on the embassy Thursday morning No one was injured.

Party Officials Killed by Guards

MOSCOW (AP)—Chinese Red Guards are beating and murdering Communist party officials, Pravda reported from Peking today.

A dispatch in the Soviet Communist party newspaper described many brutal acts by the young militants unleashed to root out evidences of foreign influence and opposition to the teaching of Mao Tse-tung.

The Red Guards now are under daily attack in Soviet newspapers.

Pravda gave no details of the murders. The dispatch said the leaders of the Red Guards are trying to dissociate themselves with the extremist actions.

Another dispatch from Peking distributed by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said a group of Chinese workers from Fukien province had appealed to Mao Tse-tung for help against the "white terror" of the Red Guards.

The report said a Red Guard squad arrived in the province last month, seized a group of party workers and held them without food, occupied the radio station and post office in the workers' town, and denounced the party's provincial first secretary.

No Peace, So Prices Decline

Prices dropped in Wall Street today with no sign of peace in Viet Nam despite a new offer from the United States Thursday.

Toronto prices fell in sympathy with New York.

AT VANCOUVER five mining stocks fell to 1966 lows, Arctic, Jaye Explorations, McKinney, National Ex. and Silver Standard all dipped to new depths for the year as the market remained quiet.

In addition, Bethlehem and Granduc both lost 15 cents and Cascade Moly fell six cents to $1.71 on 33,225 shares.

Silver Arrow, however, recouped some of Thursday's loss by putting on eight cents to 58.

In the industrial section, Steel of Canada reached a new low of $22.50.

AT TORONTO, Inco tumbled 2⅛ to 84⅝ in pacing the market lower. A company spokesman said he knew of no reason for the decline.

Falconbridge, Canada's second largest nickel producer, also retreated, losing 1 to 87½. Bell Telephone slipped ⅜ to a low of 48⅛.

Uraniums sparked a base-metal advance. Denison, which has the world's largest known supply of the precious metal, climbed 1⅛ to 55⅝ and Rio Algom ⅝ to 24½.

AT NEW YORK key stocks lost from fractions to more than a point. Glamor stocks fell 2 or more points.

Du Pont lost 3, Polaroid nearly 5, Fairchild Camera 4, Scientific Data 2.

AT MONTREAL a morning rally failed to maintain itself and the market was almost unchanged towards 2 p.m. today.

Trans-Canada Pipe Line stood 1⅜ higher at 27⅞ and Royal Bank one point at 68⅞.

AT LONDON the stock market was even quieter today than Thursday when markings were at a 1966 low.

Immediate Attention Neede by All Bulbs

By HILDA BEASTALL

As soon as spring-flowering bulbs come into your house for fall planting they must be dealt with immediately according to their kind.

Hilda

The narcissus bulbs, which include those commonly called daffodils, should be planted just as soon as the beds are ready for them.

If any of the little bulbs, crocuses, scillas, puschkinias and the like are in the order, get those into the soil even before the narcissi, for the smaller they are the faster they deteriorate when exposed to air.

FIRM, HEALTHY

Be sure that every bulb you plant, from whatever the source may be, is firm and healthy. If any appear doubtful, as may happen in a boxful donated by a friend or neighbor, discard them and be sure they are burned in a hot fire to prevent spread of the insect, or disease, which is the cause of the lack of health.

For added pleasure in the spring garden see that every group is clearly labelled with the correct name. You may be surprised how much interest your friends will show if they can read the name of the varieties without asking.

RELUCTANT

Some people are reluctant to ask questions, even though mildly curious. They just may not be curious enough to make them bold enough.

Two kinds of bulbs, the hybrid tulips and the so-called Dutch irises should have planting delayed until the soil is cooler, preferably well along into October, with early November as a deadline.

WARM SOIL

If planted into warm soil, these two kinds of bulbs are more apt to make a hasty beginning of top growth, resulting in possible winter damage to the shoots and some weakening of the constitution before spring flowering.

While waiting for planting conditions, keep the bulbs in as cool a place as possible. In the home, the floor between two outside doors out of sunshine is about the coolest spot at this time of year, before furnace heat is in general use.

Price Slash Drive Urged For Timber

The head of the B.C. Truck Loggers' Association today called for a co-operative effort to cut prices in the slump-ridden lumber industry.

"The provincial government could help by reducing stumpage and taxation," said Bruce Welch, president of the association."

Mr. Welch agreed with a statement by Attorney-General Robert Bonner that the lumber industry should cut its prices in order to combat the drastic slump in sales.

"But this can only be done with the co-operation of all parties concerned," he said. "This includes government through stumpage and taxation, labor through productivity, wages and management through efficiency."

Mr. Welch said the prices of logs, lumber and plywood have already been reduced by management, as dictated by world markets.

"It will take a drastic all-round effort to reduce them further," he said.

HOUSING STARTS

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said he did not agree with Mr. Bonner's stand on reduced lumber prices.

"It isn't the narrow margin in prices that is causing the difficulty. That is not the answer. The basic problem is the reduced number of housing starts in Canada, the United States and Europe which have, in turn, reduced the market for lumber products."

The Council of Forest Industries of British Columbia, an association of major B.C. logging companies, is preparing a policy statement on the slump in lumber sales, it was learned today.

Hans Roine, president of the Northern Interior Lumberman's Association said in Prince George that sawmill operators are looking for ways to save themselves in the face of plunging market prices.

"Inevitably there will be casualties in the industry if new markets are not found for wood products — and soon.

"You just can't meet expenses on today's basis."

peated the Canadian contention that any treaty on non-proliferation of nuclear weapons must define "proliferation" in such a way as to "prevent nuclear weapons from passing into the control of additional states or groups of states."

As an essential corollary to such a treaty, the nuclear powers and the United Nations "should urgently consider ways of extending meaningful guarantees to non-nuclear-weapon states who have foregone the right to acquire nuclear weapons."

Martin expressed disappointment over the "limited success" of the assembly's 18-country disarmament committee, of which Canada is a member, but said "it remains the best available forum for the negotiation of arms-control agreements."

Turning to economic aid questions, the Canadian foreign minister said he is "frankly appalled at the recent projections of the world food situation."

"They reveal how drastically world food reserves have fallen in the course of the last five years, and how grave is the prospect of an over-all world food deficit no later than 1985."

He told the assembly Canada's aid program, now totalling about $300,000,000 annually, will continue with the ultimate objective of reaching the level of one per cent of national income, as recommended by the assembly.

HURT BABY IMPROVING

Seven-month-old Shawn Olney was in fair condtion at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, today, after brain surgery.

The baby boy was rushed here from Campbell River Hospital after a car accident in which his father was killed.

Shawn, of Saratoga Beach, received multiple injuries but was said by a hospital spokesman to be "resting comfortably."

Eight Crewman Flee Sinking Fishpacker

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eight crew members escaped unhurt Thursday when the fishpacker Jessie Island No. 9, bound for Steveston in the Fraser River with a load of herring, sprang a leak and sank near the mouth of the river.

Skipper Alfred Hunt of Alert Bay and his seven crew members managed to beach the 68-foot boat on an island and were taken off by a power skiff from the nearby boat, Marine Girl.

A short time later the tide swept Jessie Island into deeper water and she went down in 54 fathoms. She had 70 tons of herring board.

What caused the fishpacker to spring a leak was not learned immediately.

on several occasions in Germany upon espionage matters, and might well have been continuing to do so in Canada.

"Those reports showed that she could have available to her an efficient method of passing on any classified information obtained.

"Moreover, in the Profumo case the minister tendered his resignation and apologized to the House. The Hon. Mr. Sevigny neither resigned nor was his resignation requested

"In these aspects, therefore, the Munsinger case might well be 'worse than the Profumo case'."

Mr. Justice Spence said Mr. Cardin's press conference statement that two or more Diefenbaker cabinet ministers were involved with Mrs. Munsinger "has been confirmed."

He concludes that Mr. Cardin had heard a false rumor of Mrs. Munsinger's death from leukemia, mentioned it at a press conference and believed that it came from the RCMP.

There had been no evidence whether any other cabinet minister knew that Mr. Cardin was going to mention the case, nor that former Diefenbaker ministers had been threatened with exposure 10 days before the case was mentioned in the Commons.

The judge said Mr. Fulton acted commendably in promptly informing Mr. Diefenbaker of the case and in taking action to try to prevent Mrs. Munsinger's re-entry to Canada.

But, he added, Mr. Fulton should have pressed the investigation into Mrs. Munsinger's background to determine whether any security offences had been committed.

"There was certainly a duty to investigate further and, at that time, the sources of information were known and easily reached."

No Instructions to RCMP

The RCMP could not have investigated further reports of political pressure and blackmail of an important political person without instructions from Mr. Fulton "and these the Hon. Mr. Fulton did not give."

"In my view his direction to the RCMP to be kept informed generally was not sufficient."

Mr. Justice Spence said there appeared to be no valid criticism of the immigration department in connection with Mrs. Munsinger's arrival in Canada in 1955 after having been refused a visa in 1952.

Any error in issuing her a visa in 1955 appeared "to be the result of Mrs. Munsinger's planned avoidance of any revelation of her maiden name" Gerda Heseler.

Refusal to bar her re-entry in 1960—as had been requested by the RCMP—after she made a visit abroad "was a step taken or advice and after careful consideration."

"Finally, the desirable result of refusal to grant Canadian citizenship was attained despite considerable urging that such be granted."

The judge held that Mr. Hees' "lack of discretion was slight but regrettable."

He said he agreed with the statement of Clement Atlee, former British prime minister, that "it would be a great mistake to think that ministers should live cloistered lives."

In the case of Mr. Hees, "there was no security breach; as events turned out, there was no security risk."

"But if the association had continued and intensified there might have been a security risk."

Mr. Hees testified at the inquiry that he met Mrs. Munsinger four times and that he might have been indiscreet but never improper.

The judge said he had ignored the "many wild rumors . . . and livid stories . . . especially in the foreign press."

"I can find no criticism whatsoever of the RCMP" in connection with the case, Mr. Justice Spence said. "The action of the force was efficient, prompt and discreet."

He said C. W. Harvison, then commissioner, and George McClellan, then assistant commissioner, gave Mr. Fulton verbally and in writing all the facts of the case late in 1960. This had been repeated to Donald Fleming when he succeeded Mr. Fulton as justice minister in 1962.

Both officers testified they received no instructions from either minister of the justice department.

Having reported the situation "the RCMP would have no mandate to proceed with further investigation of the conduct of that cabinet member without specific instructions from the government conveyed properly through the minister of justice."

It's Not Their Business

"The RCMP are not and, so far as I have been able to discover, never has attempted to be a body investigating the personal conduct of any minister or any member of Parliament. That is not their business."

Regarding the actions of Commissioners Harvison and McClellan, the judge said:

"Less they could not have done. More they could not be required to do without specific instructions from their superiors."

He also said that with respect to Mr. Fleming's actions "I can see no criticism of his course." Mr. Fleming had reported to Mr. Diefenbaker when the RCMP officers informed him about the case.

Mr. Diefenbaker assured Mr. Fleming "he had dealt with the matter and therefore the latter took no further action and did not refer to the matter again."

Mr. Fleming "could not have been asked to take any further or different action in January, 1963."

In the introduction to his report, the judge said:

"I make the statement at once that there is no scintilla of evidence or any indication that there was any disloyalty involved in any of the circumstances which I have investigated."

He said the liaison between Mr. Sevigny and Mrs. Munsinger "was known to her fellow prostitutes and was the subject of some discussion amongst them." Moreover, the liaison was common knowledge in the Montreal underworld.

RCMP reports showed that Mrs. Munsinger lived in the same Montreal building which housed the office of a company which had business associations with Soviet-bloc countries.

Mrs. Munsinger had a part-time position as a bookkeeper for the building. This enabled her "to go from place to place within the building without question."

Mr. Justice Spence said he found the evidence of Gaston Levesque, Mr. Sevigny's executive assistant, of great help in determining the facts in 1960.

At the hearings, it appeared possible that Mr. Diefenbaker might have been influenced in the course he adopted by statements made to him which were at variance with RCMP reports.

Mr. Levesque's testimony became relevant and "it was very important as it confirmed the RCMP report." This could have easily been elicited by questioning Mr. Levesque in 1960.

'Had Enough Muck-Raking'

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said today he hopes the Munsinger report will mean an end to political muck-raking.

"I hope the report closes the book on the case and will permit parliament to get down to more serious problems facing the country," he said. "We've had enough muck-raking."

Cardin Happy Relieved

SOREL, QUE. (UPI)—Justice Minister Lucien Cardin, the man who started the Munsinger inquiry, said today he was "happy and relieved" with the conclusions of Supreme Court Justice Wishart S. Spence's report.

He was happy, "not only for me but also for my family," he said.

The minister who brought the matter to public attention said he regretted that it was necessary to do so and that an inquiry was needed.

Pound Devaluation Urged by Liberals

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters)—Britain's minority Liberal party today called for a phased devaluation of the pound in a surprise vote at its annual conference here.

It was the first time in modern political history that any British political party has gone on record publicizing devaluation as a policy.

The controversial motion was carried on a show of hands from delegates, despite opposition from the executive.

An amendment backed by the executive that would have rejected the devaluation call was defeated 431 to 340.

Christopher Layton, the party's economic adviser, proposed the motion, which also called for creation of a world currency system based on pooling of reserves by all big industrial countries.

He called for a devaluation of the pound, phased at about two per cent a year, and said that in view of the present deflation some time next year would be an excellent time to adjust the exchange rate.

Evacuation Studied

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Vietnamese authorities may have to evacuate 75,000 persons from two provinces severely flooded by the rising waters of the Mekong River, government officials said Thursday.
